LOAN TOTAL PAST BILLION MARK; CALL FOR MORE SPEED

Official Report, Not Including Yesterday, Shows Bond Sales Reached $952,923,250.

MINNEAPOLIS HELPS IN GAIN

Feeling of Disappointment, the Treasury Says, Particularly in the Large Cities.

RURAL REGIONS DO BETTER

Boston and San Francisco Districts Run Neck and Neck in the Honor Flag Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—While the Liberty Loan total by today's figures passed the billion mark, the rate of subscriptions is not reassuring. The total at the close of yesterday, the 16th, was $952,923,250. The billion mark was passed today, or possibly yesterday, in subscriptions not officially reported through the Federal Reserve Banks. The Treasury Department tonight gave out the following comment on the pace at which the campaign is going.

"Sales since the first days of the campaign, when they started with a rush, frankly are not up to expectations. There is a feeling of disappointment, particularly in the large cities. The country districts are doing better than they did during previous campaigns, but the gains that they are making are not of sufficient size to offset the lack of sales in the larger communities.

"The need for constant, steady driving by sales committees every day throughout the remainder of the campaign is plain. Only persistent daily and hourly effort will restore the campaign to the rate of speed which it had acquired a week ago, possibly under the impetus of the start of the honor flag race."

The gain, Tuesday, with Minneapolis reporting for the first time with a subscription of $25,000,000, was $123,317,150. This, compared with the gain made on Monday of $137,994,300, showed a falling off in the daily total of $14,677,150. The general percentage of subscriptions for the entire country is now 31. The St. Louis district still leads with 60 per cent., Chicago with 37 having passed up to second place and sending Dallas to third with 36. The rest stand in the following order: Kansas City, 33; New York, 33; Boston, 32; Cleveland, 28; San Francisco, 28; Philadelphia, 25; Minneapolis, 23; Richmond, 17; Atlanta, 7 per cent.

Subscriptions by Districts.

The totals reported for each Federal Reserve District are as follows:

District.	Subscription.
St. Louis	$78,568,950
Chicago	160,862,000
Dallas	29,390,050
Kansas City	48,263,850
New York	297,449,300
Boston	80,333,950
Cleveland	85,025,000
San Francisco	59,579,800
Philadelphia	64,360,350
Minneapolis	25,000,000
Richmond	22,469,100
Atlanta	6,611,900
Total	$952,923,250

To obtain the $3,000,000,000 sought it will be necessary for the entire country to maintain a daily average subscription of $120,000,000 throughout the working days of the campaign. Treasury officials said tonight that if this daily average was not increased by the end of the campaign, on May 4, the total of the loan would be approximately $240,000,000 short of the minimum amount of $3,000,000,000 asked for by Secretary McAdoo.

The St. Louis district still stands far out in front in the race for percentage of subscriptions obtained, but unofficial advices from Minneapolis say that its district hopes to take the lead within a few days. It is the firmly expressed belief of the Minneapolis District Committee that by the end of this week the district's quota of $105,000,000 will have been obtained.

Advices from St. Louis said the district was determined no other should head it in the list for percentage honors before or after it had obtained its quota. Intensive campaigning will continue in that district, it is declared, up to the last minute of the drive.

Berlin Willing to Consider Request to Restrict Air Raids

LONDON, April 17.—A Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam says that, according to advices from Berlin, at yesterday's sitting of the Reichstag Herr Geck, Socialist, suggested making an agreement with the Allies to cease aerial attacks on open towns outside the war zone.

A Government representative replied that no official request had come from the Allies, but that, should one be received, it would be examined by the military authorities.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 17.—Premier Clemenceau appeared this afternoon before a united meeting of the three grand parliamentary committees for national defense, those on Foreign Affairs, the Army and the Navy, for the purpose of making a statement with reference to the circumstances connected with the letters of Emperor Charles and the declarations of Count Czernin.

The members of the three commissions sat together in secret session and no word has been allowed to transpire as to the nature of their proceedings.

It is betraying no secret to say that the proposal for Clemenceau to explain his action regarding the letters originated among the opposition and that it was at first obviously directed against the premier. The triumphant vindication of Clemenceau by events, however, has brought about a marked change in this respect and it is now probable that the commissions will carry on a probe into the whole circumstances under which the Austrian letters of March, 1917, several months before Clemenceau took office, were turned down by France and the allies.

Clemenceau, according to the Temps, intends to lay before the commissions all the information which the Government possesses in regard to all attempts which have been made by the Austrian Government to enter into pourparlers with France in reference to peace, but the Emperor's two letters will, of course, form the most essential part of the investigation. The Temps states that the original of the letter communicated to President Poincaré March 31, 1917, remained in the possession of Prince Sixtus of Bourbon, but a copy was made by him and handed to M. Ribot, who was then Foreign Minister of France, by whom it was placed in the archives of the French Government.

"A copy of this letter," continues the Temps, "was handed to Premier Lloyd George by M. Ribot, at interviews which took place a few days afterward between the two statesmen at Folkestone. A little later, at a conference which took place at Saint Jean de Maurienne, among the heads of the French, British and Italian cabinets, the question was discussed as to what line of action the allied cabinets should take in the event of the Austro-Hungarian Government undertaking peace negotiations and an agreement on the matter was come to without difficulty.

"Let us add that this first letter from the Emperor determined the Allies to ask for supplementary explanations, as a consequence of which Prince Sixtus received a second letter from his imperial brother-in-law. This second letter was communicated to M. Poincaré and M. Ribot, but we believe we may state that it was decided unanimously by the Allies that its contents were of such a nature that it would be useless to continue the conversations any further."

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, April 17.—The battle from Wytschaete to Meteren and the line west of Merville still goes on furiously. The enemy is spending his strength of divisions recently thrown into this fighting by repeated attacks which during the last twenty-four hours have been repulsed almost everywhere with very great German losses.

Yesterday morning the fortune of war seemed again in favor of the enemy by the capture of Wytschaete Ridge down to Spanbroekmolen and by the entry of Meteren, west of Bailleul. The hard-pressed British troops were forced to give ground at both these places, after a grand resistance which cost the enemy many lives, but in the evening counterattacks hurled the enemy back from Wytschaete village, that pile of brick dust above stumps of dead trees which were Wytschaete Wood, and in a separate battle west of Bailleul the British regained, at least for a time, a part of Meteren. This morning renewed counterattacks gave them back all of Meteren and the enemy garrison there was destroyed.

Panorama of Open Warfare.

I watched the battle last night and again this morning from the centre of the arc of fire, which was like a loop flung around from Wytschaete to Bailleul and in a sharp curve around to Merris and the country about Merville, so that the great gunfire and whole sweep of battle were close about on three sides.

It was an astounding panorama of open warfare, such as I never dreamed of seeing on this western front, where for so long both sides were hemmed in by trenches. Every slope and village and windmill and town and road in this new line of battle had been familiar to me for more than three years, and now I could tell by a glance what places were being destroyed by the enemy's guns, and saw his barrage fire was flung around certain hillsides and what roads were smoking from his trail of high explosives.

Bailleul was still blazing. In the early evening, after a wet, misty day which filled all this battlefield with a whitish fog, one could only see that city under a cloud, but as the sky darkened and the wind blew some mist away enormous flames burned redly in the poor dead heart of Bailleul, and in their glare there were dark masses of walls and broken roofs outlined jaggedly by fire.

To the left the village of Locre was aflame under a storm of high explosives, and the enemy's guns were putting heavy shells down the roads which lead out to that place.

There were fires of burning farms and hamlets as far southward as Merville behind one, as one stood looking out to Bailleul, and lesser fires of single cottages and haystacks, and the wind drifted all the smoke of them across the sky in long white ribbons.

Drumfire Rocks Earth and Sky.

It was just before dusk when the counterattacks began northward from Wytschaete and southward for Meteren, and although before then there had been a steady slogging of guns and howling of shells, at that time this volume of dreadful noise increased tremendously, and drumfire broke out in fury, so that the sky and earth trembled with it. It was like the beating of all the drums of the world in muffled tattoo, above which and through which there were enormous clangoring hammerstrokes from the British and German heavies.

It went on till evening, with a few pale gleams of sun through storm clouds and the smoke of guns, and for miles all this panorama of battle was boiling and seething with bursting shells and curling wreaths of smoke from the batteries in action.

I was in the midst of wide concentric rings of field guns and heavy guns firing rapidly. When darkness came each battery was revealed by its flashes, and all the fields around were filled with red winkings and sharp stabs of flame. Single guns spoke with enormous overpowering voices, shaking the ground on which I stood with an earthquake tremor, and after the long traveling howl of each shell I could see it burst on the high ground near Bailleul.

There was no real darkness of night, for every second the sky was crossed by rushes of light and burning beacons in many places, and gun flashes etched outlines of trees and cottages.

Almost till darkness came birds of the British were on the wing, birds with brave hearts in them, flying over these frightful fields. The airmen were flying low, searching through the mists for movements of enemy troops, in order to call to the guns to shell and scatter them. Lights went up from Meteren about 7:30, and it was then the British sent up these rockets to tell their whereabouts.

Sing as They March to Fight.

Through the dusk and darkness there were many men moving in groups, mud-colored men who had been sleeping. They marched toward the fires. One party as it went broke into song, "Good-bye! Good-bye!" It was not a healthy spot. Shells had come over hedges white with thorn blossoms and into little orchards beyond, where the cherry blossom is thick as a fall of snow on their branches, and there were dead horses about and other things. But these boys shouted out their song, and nearby other men sat under the banks of ditches, smoking and chatting.

During the night the enemy brought up more guns of lengthened range and flung over eight-inch stuff and other abominable things with a wide, scattered fire over all these fields and villages, so that one could be blown to bits in fields of springing crops or in the back garden of any cottage.

It is just a question of luck, but among the soldiers who have to pass through places because it is their unpleasant job were old women, girls, farm boys, and babies. They had stayed there too long with a queer fatalistic belief that if the enemy was shelling the next village but one they were safe. But the enemy had brought forward his guns and lengthened his range, and now this morning these poor people in the zone of fire were in actual battlefields.

Even then some of them dallied to pack bundles. They were anxious, but not panic-stricken, and old ladies in black dresses tramped down lanes and roads under a scattered fire of shells that came roaring like devils as though it were nothing but a thun-

Ship Sinkings Increase Again; 11 Over 1,600 Tons, 4 Under

LONDON, April 17.—The losses to British shipping by mines or submarines in the last week totaled fifteen, according to the Admiralty report tonight. Eleven of the merchantmen sunk were 1,600 tons or over, and four under that tonnage. One fishing vessel was also sunk. Twelve vessels were unsuccessfully attacked. The arrivals numbered 2,211, sailings 2,456.

In the previous week only six British merchantmen were sunk by mines or submarines, four of them of more than 1,600 tons. In the week a year ago corresponding to the present report, nineteen British vessels of 1,600 tons or over and nine under were sunk, a total of twenty-eight.

RETAKE WYTSCHAETE HILLS

Berlin Reports the Retreating British Forces Thrown Across the Douve Brook.

CLAIMS GAINS ON THE LYS

Including the Recapture of Meteren and More Ground Around Merris Village.

BERLIN, April 17, (via London.)—Passchendaele, [on the ridge of the same name north east of Ypres,] Poelcapelle, and Langemarck [northeast of Ypres] have been occupied by the Germans, according to bulletins from General Headquarters, and the German lines have been advanced near Becelaere and Gheluvelt [east of Ypres.]

In early morning fighting German troops today, it is stated, drove the British from the Village of Wytschaete and neighboring heights, and pressed their retreating troops back across the Douve Brook.

British attempts, with French aid, to recapture Meteren failed, according to the official statements.

Following is the day report from General Headquarters:

On the blood-stained battlefields of last year's Flanders battle, General Sixt von Arnim's army occupied Passchendaele and advanced its lines near Becelaere and Gheluvelt.

North of the Lys during the early morning hours troops under General Siger stormed the village of Wytschaete and drove the enemy from the heights northeast and west of the village, in spite of vigorous countermeasures, and repulsed a strong counterattack. The enemy, who was retreating to the southwest of Wulverghem, was pressed back across the Douve Brook.

Bailleul and the stubbornly defended point of support Cappellynde, to the north of Bailleul, and Meteren were captured. By the use of strong forces the English, supported by French, vainly endeavored to recapture Meteren, and lost territory on both sides of Merris. Their attacks broke down with the heaviest losses.

The evening report says:

On the battlefield of last year's Flanders battle Poelcapelle and Langemarck have been taken.

KILL 2,000 GERMANS IN POISON GAS TRAP

First Lured by Harmless Fumes Into Laying Off Their Masks —Other New Gas Tricks.

PARIS, April 17.—The evolution of the use of gas shells has taken surprising form in the present battle. One new method is to fire heavy, slowly dispersing gases along charted lanes against the enemy, filling in the alternative spaces with quickly dissipating poison fumes. Storming attacks are then made by troops, who charge when a sufficient interval of time has been given for the light gases to rise.

The British gunners at one part of the line threw shells charged simply with a stinking composition. The Germans, after a few hours, discovered that this was non-poisonous, and began laying aside their masks. After these shells had been fird for another twelve hours there was a sudden change to poison gases. About 2,000 Germans were caught without their masks and suffocated.

London Calls for Sir William Robertson's Return; Asks Why the British Forces Are Outnumbered

LONDON, April 17.—The last five days have been the most anxious the British people have known since the beginning of the war.

There is no lack of confidence that the British soldiers will do all any men can do, but the question has forced itself upon the public whether it is fair to expect them to continue fighting indefinitely against such superior masses.

Another question is whether blame does not rest in high quarters that the soldiers are placed in the positions of being outnumbered constantly.

There has been great anxiety for news of the French reinforcements which Field Marshal Haig told his army were coming to his support. Tonight's announcement that the French are co-operating with the British in the north gives hope, as far as it goes.

In the meantime the newspapers are discussing the situation with great freedom. The War Cabinet is being criticised by some military experts and editors. Colonel Repington, in The Morning Post, says that the British forces are greatly inferior in numbers to the Germans, and that this inferiority is due to the refusal of the War Cabinet to act on the advice of the General Staff and the French Staff for an increase in man-power.

Several newspapers are calling for the return of Sir William Robertson, former Chief of the Imperial General Staff. The retirement of General Robertson was followed the past week by that of Major General Trenchard, chief of the air staff. He goes because of differences with Lord Rothermere, the civilian head of the air establishment, as General Robertson was supposed to have gone after differences with the Premier.

"Bring back Robertson," is the appeal with which the weekly paper, John Bull has placarded the country today.

DIVERGENT BRITISH AND FRENCH VIEWS OF THE BATTLE SITUATION

Gen. Maurice Says It's Like Waterloo, the Pounded British Waiting for Blucher.

ASKS, WHERE IS BLUCHER?

Contrasts Operations to Show Small British Army Has Been Nearly Three Times as Heavily Engaged as the French.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—Major Gen. Frederick Maurice, who has just returned from four days at the front, made a statement to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today on the ordeal through which the British Army is passing. In view of its importance it is given textually:

"Our army is going through a very severe strain—a strain, indeed, which is not confined to the army. We have passed through many critical moments, and the situation is still decidedly serious. But this must be remembered: We have plumped for a united front and a single command. We have placed our forces under the supreme command of one General. That was most wise, and that was a very wise and proper step; but we must accept its consequences and consider the military situation not from the point of view of our own sufferings and our own losses, but from the point of view of the front as a whole.

"The British Army is playing once more its historic rôle. As at Waterloo, it is being hammered while 'Blücher is marching to the battle.' Our feelings now are probably very much like those in London during Waterloo; but, provided we are standing firm and taking the hammering, and provided Blücher is marching to battle, there is no reason to despair. In fact, it is just the other way; there is every cause for encouragement."

General Maurice then gave these figures to show the tremendous strain the British Army had been meeting. He said:

"The Germans have thrown into the battle between Armentières and Hazebrouck twenty-eight divisions, and since their offensive opened on March 21 they have employed 126 divisions, [about 1,700,000 men.] Of these the British Army alone has engaged seventy-nine, the French Army alone twenty-four, and the British and French together twenty-three. The British have, therefore, had fights with 102 German divisions, and the French with forty-seven. But this does not complete the tale. The British Army has fought twenty-eight German divisions twice, and one three times. The French have fought four divisions twice. The British and French combined have fought fifteen divisions twice, and one three times. Thus the British had 138 fights alone with German divisions, and the French have had thirty-two. In all, the British, alone or assisted, have fought 174 divisions, and the French, alone or assisted, sixty-eight divisions.

"It is unpleasant business, standing the hammering; but the great question is: 'What has become of Blucher?' These figures show that, though the French Army is considerably larger than the British Army, we have practically taken the strain off them. Therefore there is no reason at all for a state of despair, such as I found some people in on my return last night, if you look at the battle from a broad point of view and consider how far our great sacrifices are necessary as part of the great plan."

French Seem to Regard Northern Fighting as Only Part of the General Battle.

FOE STILL BEFORE AMIENS

French Officers Counting on America to Send Large Forces in Time to Turn the Scale in Favor of the Allies.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

From a Staff Correspondent.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, April 17.—During the present comparative calm on the French front, discussion of the German intentions is the principal topic of conversation. Are the German operations in the north a subsidiary action or a genuine transference of the main battle? is the question which every one is asking.

In support of the former hypothesis is the known fact that part of the enemy reserves are still concentrated opposite the Arras-Amiens line. For the latter are urged the desperation of the recent German assaults and the obvious interest to the enemy to gain ground in the direction of the Channel ports.

One officer with whom THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent talked today summed up the whole question thus:

"The Germans are following their traditional tactics. As at Verdun, they strike a new blow elsewhere when checked in any particular sector, only in the present struggle, the area being much greater, one gets an impression that the new stroke is something entirely different.

"This is quite erroneous. The attacks in the north are just as much a part of the main effort as the drives against Mort Homme or Avocourt Wood were part of the battle of Verdun. If the enemy is checked, as he surely will be in Flanders, he will renew the action in the centre against Amiens, just as he returned against Souville, Thumont, and Fleury in the early Summer of 1916, when he found further progress impossible on the other bank of the Meuse."

On the French front, owing to reasons mentioned in a previous dispatch, the artillery is greatly superior, which permits the greatest economy of infantry.

Another officer with whom I talked said today:

"The situation is now a perfect game of chess. The enemy is trying to 'swap pieces' in an indiscriminate sacrifice with the hope that he will still have a sufficient superiority left to gain a victory. The German leaders have keyed up the people to bear even worse losses than at present by the promise that they will bring about an end of the war. The allied game is obviously to economize men in order that the famous 'last quarter of an hour' may find us with the numerical advantage."

Here in a nutshell are the aims of both sides in this great battle. It may well be that America holds that balance. Months may yet elapse before the decisive hour strikes—months in which tens and hundreds of thousands of Americans can be transported to France to turn the scale in our favor. At present the numbers are too nearly equal for victory to be certain. It rests with America to establish that certainty beyond doubt.

BRITISH UNABLE TO HOLD

Get Back in Wytschaete and Meteren, Then Are Forced Out

CHECK FOE ELSEWHERE

DRAWING BACK ON YPRES

War Office Reports Deliberate Falling Back from "Forward Positions" East of the City.

LONDON, April 17.—After effecting a temporary lodgment in the villages of Meteren and Wytschaete on the Lys front, British troops were today forced to retire again in the face of continued German attacks.

Along the whole Lys battle line the Germans this morning directed an intense bombardment upon the British positions. Then, on the twelve-mile stretch from the Forest of Nieppe to Wytschaete, they launched infantry attacks, all of which were repulsed.

French troops are now reported officially to be co-operating with the British on this front.

In the Ypres salient the War Office announces that "forward positions east of Ypres have been withdrawn to a new line." It is added that this was done deliberately and without interference by the enemy.

Haig Unable to Hold Early Gains.

The night statement reads:

This morning intense bombardments were opened by the enemy on practically the whole of the Lys battlefront and, from the forest of Nieppe to Wytschaete, were followed by infantry attacks. All these attacks have been repulsed and considerable losses inflicted on the enemy.

In counterattacks, reported in the morning communiqué, our troops succeeded in entering the villages of Meteren and Wytschaete, but, in the face of continued hostile attacks, were unable to maintain their position there.

French troops are co-operating with the British on this front.

On the remainder of the British front there is nothing to report.

Following is the text of the day report:

Yesterday evening we delivered a successful counterattack in the neighborhood of Wytschaete. At Meteren also our counterattack restored the situation, and the village remains in our hands. Throughout the afternoon and evening yesterday repeated hostile attacks north of Bailleul were repulsed with loss to the enemy. Bodies of German infantry advancing in close formation were caught under the fire of our troops at short range, and suffered heavy casualties. We secured a few prisoners.

The enemy also endeavored to develop an attack yesterday afternoon east of Robecq, following the bombardment already reported, but his advance was broken up by our artillery fire.

In consequence of the progress made by the enemy on the Lys front, our troops holding our forward positions east of Ypres have been withdrawn to a new line. The withdrawal was carried out deliberately, without interference by the enemy. Yesterday afternoon parties of his troops advancing over our old positions were caught by the fire of our outposts and destroyed.

On the battlefront south of Arras parties of German infantry who had entered our trenches opposite Boyelles were driven out yesterday afternoon, with the loss of several prisoners. Our line in this locality has been completely restored.

The hostile artillery activity in creased considerably early this morning on the British front south of the Somme.

An official statement on aerial operations issued tonight says:

The mist that has hung over the lines in the last few days turned to a drizzling rain Tuesday, making flying almost impossible. Movements on the battlefront, however, were watched by our machines flying very low, and a few bombs were dropped. One hostile machine was brought down, and another landed behind our lines. One of our machines is missing.

Belgians Capture 600 Germans.

PARIS, April 17.—Today's Belgian official communication says:

This morning the Germans attacked in force our system of advanced posts between Le Blanckaert Pond and the Ypres Railroad and succeeded in securing a foothold in a number of our positions, but energetic counterattacks by our troops drove them out. About 600 prisoners remain in our hands.

GLAD TO YIELD PASSCHENDAELE

British Soldiers Rejoice at Move, Which Was Not a Hasty Measure.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 17 (Associated Press.)—Had anyone said months ago that there would soon be rejoicing to see the British withdraw and abandon the Passchendaele Ridge system, which was won with such difficulty last Summer, it would have excited derision.

But the whole British army is glad at this bold move. It not only lessens the danger from the enemy drive about Wytschaete and Bailleul, but it greatly shortens the defensive line. It seems hard to give up ridges over which the British battled forward in such a spectacular fashion, but it is for the best and will help defeat Prussianism.

The retirement was a result of matured judgment. The new lines had been prepared and artillery had been placed in position before the infantry began to pull back under cover of darkness. If the Germans expected any such move they did not look for it at the time it happened. They began to push cautiously forward when it became apparent that something unusual had happened. They found the forward positions vacant and advanced in greater numbers. Then the British artillery opened at an opportune moment and deluged the whole territory with an inferno of fire, which worked havoc among the infantry.

The Germans must now pull forward and man the difficult heights, and they will have to drag their artillery up over bad ground to the positions which they occupied before the British offensive began last Summer. It will be an undesirable task.

LONDON, April 17.—The British public learned with disappointment of the withdrawal of the troops holding the forward positions to the eastward of Ypres. The Ypres salient has long stood in popular imagination as a monument to British valor and dogged tenacity in the face of repeated and almost overwhelming onslaughts of the enemy.

The Daily Graphic thinks it would be wise to withdraw the British troops from Ypres and Passchendaele "to avoid the risk of their being cut off and compelled to surrender."

Correspondents on the front say the Germans have used up 120 of their 200 divisions in the west and have been able to bring another two divisions from Russia.

INTENSE GUNFIRE ON THE LYS.

Gas and High Explosive Shells Aid German Attacks Near Bailleul.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 17, (Associated Press.)—A tremendous artillery duel is raging along the northern front. Throughout the night thousands of guns of all calibres made the war zone hideous with their mighty detonations. There was no cessation of this protracted fencing between the heavy batteries, and this morning the contest was still continuing, the vibration shaking windows forty and fifty miles away.

The continuous enemy attacks all yesterday afternoon southwest of Bailleul were, without exception, repulsed with heavy losses. The German artillery filled the area west of the stricken town with gas and high explosive shells as an adjunct to the infantry attack. At dusk the enemy drove forward again and made a vicious thrust at the British lines. The advancing troops pushed through the hail of death, but soon wavered and finally broke. Their casualties were cruel.

Further south the vicinity of Festubert was heavily shelled by the enemy, and Givenchy and La Bassée were also under fire.

On the larger battlefront of the Somme the enemy artillery was more active south of the river. Villers-Bretonneux and the area just to the north were strongly bombarded.

A German gunner yesterday sent a shell into the church tower at Albert, sending the famous statue of the Virgin which hung there crashing into the square.

In the extreme north numerous enemy attacks during the afternoon and evening followed the capture by the Germans of Wytschaete and Spanbrockmolen. Later in the afternoon the battle swung further northward, and the Germans attempted an advance at 7:30 P. M. in the Zillebeke sector. The attempt was a complete failure, and great numbers of the attacking infantry were shot down at short range by machine gun and rifle fire.

The German centre in this assault appeared to suffer heavily as the waves came forward, and the flanks, in attempting a withdrawal, came under a grilling fire, which left the ground strewn with dead and wounded.

About Wytschaete the grim struggle continued, the British not only holding their own, but putting all their power in an effort to push the enemy back from the town, and last evening the British reported entering the place.

Shortly after noon the Germans delivered an attack against the Dammstrasse line, between Hollebeke and St. Eloi, but were driven off, and a subsequent enemy concentration in this region was dispersed by the artillery.

LONDON, April 17.—According to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Paris, the Germans have advanced from Wytschaete as far as St. Eloi, and also have a grip on the southern slopes of Mont Kemmel.

Portuguese Eager for Revenge.

LISBON, April 16.—Events on the western front and the words of praise sent by the British Government to Portugal on the bravery of the Portuguese troops in the first days of the fighting south of Armentières have greatly stirred patriotism in Portugal. All officers of the Lisbon garrison have offered to go to France immediately to replace and revenge their comrades. The officers who took part in the December revolution have tendered their services, as has the Minister of the Interior.

YPRES SITUATION DISTURBS WASHINGTON

Experts at the Capital, However, See Some Signs of Preparation for Counterstroke.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—For the moment the German drive at the British line has localized on the sector running from Bailleul around to the eastward of Ypres, and military men here are watching with eager interest the British counterattacks on this narrow front, where further enemy successes probably would mean the evacuation of a large stretch of territory.

While the British official statement that the lines east of Ypres had been withdrawn and readjusted on a new front did not give the position of the new line, it is known that the general trend of the British lines on this northern flank of the great battle now is represented by almost a right angle.

Troops which faced due east only a week ago are now fighting on a front that extends in a general east and west direction and they are facing southward. From the lines to the east of Ypres the British have been swung back on a twelve-mile front with the Ypres positions as the hinge of the movement. That hinge now forms a broad salient into the German lines which they are trying to flatten out. Should the German effort fail it is believed here the British will be left in a strong strategic position. By a counterattack from Ypres they might reconquer all the ground lost in this northern extension of the battlefront. The desperate nature of the attacks aimed at the capture of Ypres indicates the belief of the German commanders that their position will be untenable unless they can widen it in that direction.

There was little effort to disguise the fact that the Ypres situation is viewed with apprehension. The fact that a readjustment of the British lines to the east was made necessary was regarded as proof that the position had been shaken under the weight of the German attack. The extreme caution with which the British are now framing official reports transmitted for publication also was noted as possibly significant.

None of the statements, allied or German, carries any explanation of the events they report, which show the significance attached to them. When the British Fifth Army was badly cut up in the initial German onslaughts, as since disclosed to Parliament, nothing appeared in the British statements which indicated what was transpiring or the grave danger that threatened then.

DANGER TO KEMMEL RIDGE.

Maurice Apprehends It if Germans Can Maintain Their Pressure.

LONDON, April 17.—In an interview today with The Associated Press, General F. B. Maurice [basing his statements upon early reports from the front] said that the British had recovered the greater part—probably all—of Wytschaete, had counterattacked successfully at Meteren and south of that place, driving the Germans half way to Bailleul, and had advanced and improved their line in the direction of Neuve Eglise.

"I returned last night from France," he said at the beginning of his talk. "The situation yesterday was very anxious. The Germans had taken Bailleul, Meteren and Wytschaete and had brought four fresh divisions into action against us. If the enemy could have maintained that pressure there looked to be vital danger to the ridge of heights which includes Mont Kemmel, and which is the backbone of our defense on the northern portion of the battlefront.

"The news last night and today is better. While I am not able to say definitely that Wytschaete is entirely in our hands, we hold the greater part, and probably the whole of it.

"As mentioned in Field Marshal Haig's communiqué, we made a withdrawal to a new line in the Ypres salient. The withdrawal was decided upon on Sunday. It was carried out partly on Sunday night, and completed on Monday. It is a regrettable military necessity which forces us to give up ground which we won at such heavy cost. On Tuesday the Germans were still shelling trenches which we had left the day before."

General Maurice then referred to the successful British counterattack in the neighborhood of Wytschaete and to the British withdrawal in the Ypres salient, and continued:

"Preparations for shortening our line in the Ypres salient were made some time ago, and the decision to carry it out was reached before the fall of Bailleul owing to the danger offered our positions in the salient from a flanking movement. The withdrawal was not dictated or governed by the adverse course of events around Bailleul, but by more general considerations."

Thinks Foe Still Aims at Amiens.

OTTAWA, April 17. — Telegraphing from French Headquarters, a Reuter correspondent says of the operations in the Somme region:

"The Germans are concentrating north of the Somme, indicating that they have not yet abandoned hope of reaching Amiens. The French have maintained the lead and their artillery has been keeping up a steady bombardment of the enemy front line, while we are simultaneously organizing our own positions.

"The part played by the French artillery in stemming the German onrush remains to be told. The enemy failed to keep pace with us in bringing up his batteries, especially his heavies, and even now he has not made good the disparity."

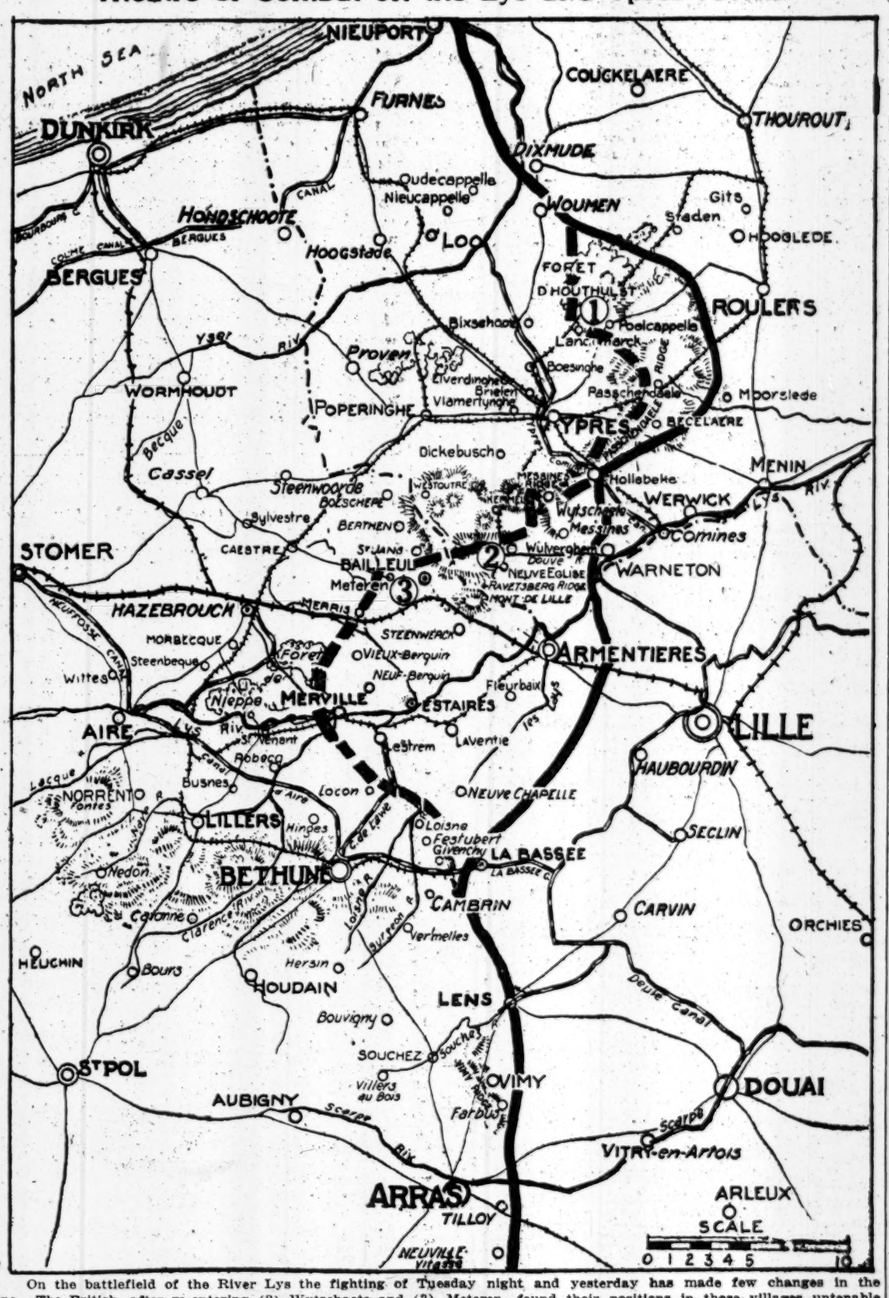
SHELL KILLED 11 IN PARIS.

Supergun Projectile Exploded in Courtyard Outside Workshop.

PARIS, April 17.—Nine women and two men among yesterday's casualties, due to the long-range bombardment of Paris, were killed by a shell falling in a courtyard outside a workshop. When the shell exploded a fragment passed through a glass wall between the court and the shop where the women were working. The scare which ensued was quickly calmed. The factory was equipped with first-aid appliances, and within half an hour all the injured had been taken to the hospital.

Work was resumed this morning at the factory with all the women employes present except those who were wounded. Another shell fell in the middle of a barge on the river, cutting it in two. The crew dived overboard and escaped unhurt.

Theatre of Combat on the Lys and Ypres Fronts.



On the battlefield of the River Lys the fighting of Tuesday night and yesterday has made few changes in the line. The British, after re-entering (2) Wytschaete and (3) Meteren, found their positions in those villages untenable yesterday and withdrew.

In the Ypres salient the German official communications announce the occupation of (1) Poelcappelle and Langemarck and of the village of Passchendaele, on the ridge of the same name northeast of Ypres. The British War Office had previously stated that "forward positions" east of Ypres had been withdrawn without interference by the enemy.

The broken line indicates the approximate position of the battle front yesterday and the solid black line the position at the beginning of the present German offensive.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The question of relative numbers in the great German offensive is a puzzling one. The statement of General Maurice, the official mouthpiece of the British War Office, only adds to the confusion. The most confusing part of his statement is that the French forces in Europe outnumber the British.

The strength of the French is pretty generally unknown. The French High Commissioner to this country, M. Tardieu, is authority for the statement that the French have approximately 3,000,000 men in the war zone. But does he mean fighting men, or has he included those in the area of operations who are not able to take their places in the trenches and are doing guard duty or guarding lines of communication? This we do not know. At the same time we have never understood that France could still place in the field 3,000,000 fighting soldiers. If she can, so much the better, but the figure which has been accepted by all military writers on this side of the water has not placed the fighting force of the French at more than two-thirds of that number.

On the other hand, England is known to have something in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 men enlisted. Of these at least 1,000,000 are at home in process of training, many more scattered about the world in the many places to which the empire extends. How many does this leave for service in France? Again we are in the dark, although unofficially the figure has been set at 3,000,000. Yet Lloyd George, in his recent report to Parliament of the situation in Europe, placed the allied and German forces practically at a parity, with the odds in numbers slightly in favor of the Allies.

The number of German divisions in France we know with a very fair degree of accuracy. This number is 200. As the German division consists of about 13,000 men, the total number of German troops is given at about 2,600,000 men. Whether this is all or not we do not know, but must accept the figures of the Allies' Intelligence Service as of reasonable accuracy. This number, of course, means fighting men, since no other but fighting men would be organized into divisions. Those figures are further substantiated by the number of divisions which the Germans are known to have thrown into action. This number is given by General Maurice as 79 against the British alone, (or about 1,000,000 men,) 24 against the French alone, (or about 300,000 men,) and 23 against the combined British and French, (or about 275,000 men.)

As it is highly probable that in a battle of such magnitude, and a battle in which the Germans depended for success on speed and a quick rupture of the allied battle line, the bulk of the German Army would be employed, it is not unreasonable that five-eighths of the German strength should have been thrown into the fighting up to the present time. If, then, the Allies outnumber the Germans but slightly, and the Germans have in the field only 2,600,000 men, the Allies in no event could have more than 3,000,000 all told.

This is far less than we have been given to expect from any source from which we gather statistics. The entire situation as regards numbers is therefore very much confused, and we must await further official figures, if these are ever attainable, before reaching any decision.

The fighting of yesterday again centred about the Messines Ridge and the Passchendaele Ridge to the north. The British War Office announces a retirement of their lines east of Ypres. Just what this means we have no means of judging. It is significant, however, that the report from Berlin states that Poelcappelle and Langemarck have been reoccupied. These towns are both west of the Passchendaele Ridge. The indication then is that the British are giving up the heights which they captured last year. If they have withdrawn from the heights on the north, without pressure from the Germans, be it noted, they have no intention of holding those to the east. And if they give up these heights they cannot continue to hold Ypres.

In the former battles for Ypres the British were subjected to such a plunging fire from the heights around their positions that the men in the most eastern trenches thought at times that their own artillery was firing short, and hence striking into their own trenches. If this was the situation in 1914, when the German artillery had not approached its present magnitude in number of guns or amount of shell, now, with all of their advantages, they should be able to make the Ypres positions as they existed before last year's offensive absolutely untenable.

There is a still further significance in General Haig's withdrawal. If he has made such an extensive withdrawal it is because he is fearful that the southern leg of the salient, guarded as it is by the heights from Wytschaete westward, has not sufficient strength to hold out against the German attacks, in which case, of course, it would be suicidal to hold on, as the entire Ypres salient and all it contained would be captured or destroyed the moment the southern side gave way.

At the same time, even though this withdrawal, if it has really been as extensive as now seems to be the case, is depressing and discouraging, there is some relief in the statement that the French have finally arrived on the scene. This would indicate that the withdrawal has been ordered by General Foch in furtherance of his own plans, whatever they may be. But in the absence of more details the situation is uncertain.

FRENCH RAIN SHELLS ON FOE'S BATTERIES

Make Effective Reply to Bombardment by Germans North of Montdidier.

PARIS, April 17.—Violent fire from German guns north of Montdidier was effectively answered by French batteries in today's continuation of the artillery battle of yesterday and the day before. There were no infantry actions in this region.

The night report from the War Office reads:

There were no infantry actions during the course of the day. The enemy violently bombarded our first lines and several villages in the region north of Montdidier. Our batteries effectively countershelled the enemy artillery and carried out concentrations of fire on the German positions.

On April 15 and 16 four German airplanes were brought down. It is confirmed that two additional enemy machines were destroyed April 12.

The afternoon communication says:

On the front between the Somme and the Oise there was great activity of the artillery on both sides, and patrol encounters occurred.

The French carried out several raids, especially southwest of Butte du Mesnil, in the region of Tahure and north of Flirey. We took a number of prisoners. On the right bank of the Meuse a German attack east of Samogneux was repulsed. Otherwise the night passed quietly.

THEATRES UNDERGROUND.

Novel Development of Air Raid Conditions in Paris.

PARIS, April 17.—Air raid conditions have suggested the founding of underground theatres in Paris. Two such amusement places will soon be opened. One of them, called the Abri, (Shelter,) is under a six-story building on the boulevards, which has been officially classed as a safe retreat from bombardment.

The other underground playhouse will open on the premises of the former cabaret called Caveau de la Revolution, near the Palais Royal. The Palais Royal Théâtre will transfer its performances to this new location.

NO PARTIES IN WARTIME.

Munich Judge Rejected Excuses for Americans' Entertainment.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 17, (via London.)—In Munich three Americans, Hermann and Lucie Schaeffer, painters, of New York, and Romaine Wagenseil, who to Americans is known by her maiden name of Taylor, were accused of having arranged, with the aid of a student, Karl Kroth, and Professor von Thiersch, quite an entertainment at the latter's studio.

The party, happening to coincide with the second day of the German offensive in the West, caused great annoyance to the good people of Munich. The hosts called their festival "The New Pathos," and it was, indeed, a pathetic demonstration of the latest fads in art and letters that normal people are wont to call crazy. Several hundred guests attended, among whom were officers of high rank, members of the nobility and even a few Princes. There was great display of fancy costumes by both men and women, plenty of champagne and fierce dancing. Professor Thiersch, asked by a Judge why the festival wasn't deferred when the offensive began, replied that the glorious news from the front alone encouraged him not to put the festival off, since thus it assumed the character of a celebration of victory.

Despite his excuse, Professor Thiersch, Kroth and their three American friends were sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment, as the Military Commandant prohibits all noisy jollifications, especially dancing, during the war.

Philip Gibbs's Narrative of the Great Battle

der storm from which they were hurrying for shelter.

One old woman told me in queer Flemish patois that she wanted to go home, and pointed to her farmstead which was being knocked to pieces by a shell. A lanky boy leaning up against a house and watching the battle explained her case to me in good English.

"The old woman is daft. She said she wants to get her cow in an old house down there. A man was killed there five minutes ago, so a Tommy told me."

He turned to the old wrinkled dame and said in Flemish, which is so like English that I could make out his words:

"You come again this afternoon, mother."

It seemed to me that the afternoon would be no better than the morning round about that red-roofed cottage which had lost half of its walls.

An officer of Scottish Rifles whom I met up there this morning, said that at Meteren, from which he had just come back after hard fighting, he lived in a deserted farm house, where the people had left their chickens and cows, saying the soldiers could do what they liked with them, so the Scottish Rifles had baked the chickens for supper and milked the cows for breakfast, and escaped the Germans' shellfire in that rural spot, and shot down Germans at easy rifle range.

I heard today of how some of the Worcesters were put out to prevent the enemy moving north and working between Bailleul and Strazeele after the German attack and how a General of Division gathered together every kind of men he could find to fill the breach. They were a miscellaneous lot of fellows, including cyclists, dismounted tank crews, and orderlies, and this little crowd made a glorious stand and kept the enemy back by rifle and Lewis gun fire.

There were Worcesters and King's Royal Rifles—the Church lads' brigade as they are called—among those who made the stubborn and terrific defense of Neuve Eglise. They fought incessantly for four days against attack after attack until surrounded on both flanks. The Colonel of the Worcesters stayed in the village till the last. Dead Germans now lie piled around its walls as proof of this long defense.

Another body of troops in this neighborhood who fought to the death were some Highland Light Infantry, whom I first met in the days of the old Somme battles, when they showed great gallantry in many fights. Now some of them have fought their last fight and died rather than surrender to the enemy.

All around them between Neuve Eglise and Meteren other troops fought during this last week with an unyielding spirit against dreadful odds. They only gave ground when exposed on the flanks, and presented such thin lines of khaki that the enemy had only to fall against them with his weight of fresh divisions and was bound to break through.

So with dwindling numbers the Queens fought for three days, turned on one flank and then on the other, but still maintaining their rearguard actions and making the enemy pay a high price in life and blood for every bit of ground.

Cyclists acted as cavalry, going out on patrols to find the enemy's whereabouts and firing at his outposts.

Round by Meteren the Scottish Rifles went out on stalking expeditions between heavy attacks which they beat off, and lay in ambush for German machine gunners who came creeping up under the hedges and tried them by rifle fire. When Brigade Headquarters was attacked and taken by the Germans, some Royal Engineers with infantry made counterattacks, gained back this place, destroyed many of the enemy and brought back 400 of them.

I saw some of the prisoners this morning marching across the battlefield and looking about them insolently, with an air of pride as though they belonged to the winning side. Yet others are now saying quite frankly that the German high command have failed in their big plans.

Bethune was on their time table for April 10, and it is not theirs now. Bailleul was to have been taken in the first attack. Arras was counted as theirs on March 28. This morning they were beaten out of Meteren, and, for a time at least, according to the latest report, have been flung back from Wytschaete Ridge, so all is not going according to the German plan, and their losses keep wasting their efforts.

There were Middlesex men among the defenders of Meteren, and this morning they made a fine counter-attack, which helped to shatter the German garrison there. During all this fighting the machine gunners had many human targets and fired so steadily into the waves of Germans that outside Meteren they wore out forty barrels.

All this countryside is littered with German dead. One German regiment further south had five battalion commanders killed in three days, and everywhere their loss in officers is high.

The general situation today is in our favor for the time being by the recapture of Wytschaete and Materen and the repulse of many German attacks; but it is with natural regret one hears of the withdrawal from the heights east of Ypres in order to straighten the line and economize men. This is military wisdom, and beyond any kind of criticism, as it seems to me, but grief lies in the loss of ground captured by so much heroic fighting around the old Ypres salient, and at such sacrifice of brave lives.

There was one other regret today, though only sentimental. The enemy knocked down the Albert church tower, the tower of the golden Virgin, who had bent head downwards over that ruined city with her babe outstretched. It was a great landmark bound up with all our memories.

A Bank Behind the Battle Line

IN order to place every possible facility at the disposal of the American forces in France, we have established an automobile banking service between our Paris office and points behind the battle line where our men are located.

This automobile bank affords a convenient means for cashing checks, making deposits, buying drafts, and transacting other business. It is but one of the many features of our service to Americans with the overseas forces.

Our Paris office is a U. S. Government depositary and acts as a paying and receiving agent for officers of the Army and Navy. It is an American bank with American methods. Its entire facilities are freely at the disposal of our men "over there." Our booklet, "Cashing Your Checks Abroad," describes some of the features of our service to Americans in France.

A big part of every dollar you put into Liberty Bonds is paid to the boys at the front. They can be paid and equipped only if you buy Liberty Bonds. Do your utmost, as they are doing theirs.

BAKER PRAISES SPIRIT OF ALLIES

Secretary Enthusiastic Over Courage and Confidence He Found Everywhere Abroad.

LIFTS HOPES AT CAPITAL

Reports to the President and Assures All That Our Men Are Making Good at the Front.

WORRYING THE GERMANS

The Big Thing for America to Do Is to Support the War to the Utmost, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Surrounded at the White House this afternoon by a group composed of President Wilson and men active in the conduct of the war, Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, who returned from France yesterday, expressed surprise that anybody should be depressed over the situation on the western front. This depression, which he found among those with whom he talked after his return, was just the opposite, he told the President and his fellow war-workers, to the feeling that prevailed among those with whom he had come in contact in Britain and France.

In enthusiastic terms the Secretary of War expressed the admiration he felt for the indomitable spirit prevailing among the people of our co-belligerents. Earlier in the day he had talked rather guardedly with newspaper men, but to the President and the others present at the White House he "lifted the lid" and gave them his impressions straight from the heart. The determination to win is everywhere apparent among officials, soldiers, and private citizens of the allied countries. They are full of optimism as to the final outcome, and ready to make any sacrifice to bring victory.

Mr. Baker's description of the courage and bearing of those closest to the firing line gave a new and hopeful outlook to his hearers and sent them away from the White House encouraged and almost elated. The Secretary of War was near the scene of the present gigantic conflict for nearly three weeks after its beginning on March 21, and had ample opportunity to ascertain the effect of the German offensive on those enlisted in the allied cause. He talked with many persons—officials, soldiers, and civilians—and came away from Europe feeling there could be no defeat for the Allies while confidence ran so high.

Our Boys Worrying Germans.

He moved about among American soldiers without letting them know who he was, and obtained from them free expressions, unrestricted by any knowledge that he was the head of the American military establishment, that all they wanted was a chance to get at the Germans. French officers of high rank who had seen American troops in action were full of praise for them. They told him how the American soldiers, fresh and full of initiative, wanted nothing better than to get at the enemy, and were making life miserable for the Germans stationed opposite the American lines. What was happening in those sections of No Man's Land where American soldiers are quartered was giving the Germans a new conception of American enterprise and fighting ability, according to foreign officers.

Mr. Baker's account of what he had learned abroad was given at a gathering in President Wilson's office this afternoon called for another purpose. The conference was attended by Secretary Daniels, Bernard M. Baruch, Chairman of the War Industries Board, and the group of men who have been meeting with the President on Wednesday afternoons lately. This body has no official designation, but embraces the heads of the various activities engaged in industrial war work. Much of the session was devoted to industrial questions, but Secretary Baker had an opportunity to present his views.

Before going to the White House Mr. Baker answered many questions about the Americans in France.

"So far as our own forces are concerned," said the Secretary of War, "any man who goes to France will have an increasng sense of admiration for the magnitude, the thoroughness, and the speed with which the American Army has done its work; and by that, of course, I refer chiefly to its organization of means of communications, lines of supply, its warehouses and distributing facilities, the schools organized for the training of the special arms and the special officers. You get the impression of the American Army in France as a beehive of the most energetic people, and everybody is doing his job with enthusiasm and success. They know no hours and no limitations on labor; the question is to get the most done possible, and the amount done is an amazing story.

"The condition of our soldiers in France is a thing that I am very happy to have an opportunity to tell in the widest possible way. Our boys are well physically—big, strong, robust and healthy—and they are well in every other way. Their spirits are high, their behavior is most admirable, their relations with the French people and the French soldiers, and the British soldiers to the extent I saw of them, were cordial and sympathetic. The healthfulness and wholesomeness about the American Army over there is perfectly splendid.

"The enthusiastic expression of all those who have been on the battle line is that they 'want more.' The American soldier has made good in France, and French and British military authorities and critics uniformly praise the courage, endurance, and soldierly qualities of the Americans.

There to See It Through.

"The only sad Americans in France are those who for any reason fear they may have to come home before the job is done—officers and men alike. They, of course, want to come home when the job is done, but just suggest to any one that he might be sent home because he possesses some information that might be useful and it almost breaks his heart.

"The boys receive the information that they should prepare for duty at the front with the greatest enthusiasm; one regiment of engineers ordered out cheered so loudly that you could hear them over the telephone.

"The information I went to France to get I got, and the picture of the actual application of all this effort, and I am now equipped with the means of judging and appreciating the kind of cooperation that the War Department in America can give to that army that wouldn't have been possible without the visit to the actual field of battle. It will undoubtedly lead to a very much better co-operation between the department and the navy in France.

"The big thing for America to do is to support the war—support it financially, support it in sentiment, belief, confidence, and courage. The right arm of America is in France, and it is bared ready for action and striking hard. The rest of the body is over here, and we must support and invigorate that arm. That means subscriptions to the Liberty Loan, and it means the adoption of the sort of confidence in our army in France which its own activities justify and deserve."

GOUGH LACKED MEN TO HOLD LONG FRONT

And an Untimely Mist Came Up, So That the Germans Surprised the Fifth Army.

THREE BREAKS IN THE LINE

Carey Had to Instruct Some of His Mixed Force as the Battle Went On.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—As men come back from the front it is possible to piece together in more detail the story of the wonderful feat of Brig. Gen. Carey and his scratch brigade in the battle of the Somme.

He took up the work already begun by a Brigadier General of the Royal Engineers. The emergency arose through the development during the retreat of the British of a gap between two brigades. The Germans were pressing hard, and there was really nothing to prevent the enemy rushing through, if only he had known about it.

It has already been told how every kind of soldier the commander could collect was thrown into action, among them being a strong contingent of American engineers; but what has not come out before is the curious embarrassment caused by the actual superfluity of arms.

Close to where the gap occurred was a training school for machine gunners. Of course the men in training had long since been hurried into action, but a large supply of machine guns remained. It is not every soldier, however, who understands how to use these weapons, and the officer found himself with a large supply of them which at all costs he must prevent from being captured, and very few men able to handle them. Those who could were put in charge of squads, and whenever they had a moment's respite from turning them on the Germans they set to work to give hurried instructions.

British Labor Units Joined Infantry.

Many British labor units fought side by side with ordinary infantry, and so in one way or another the front was manned and held by chance collections of men in khaki against trained German battalions. The officer referred to was in actual command for the first two days, but he was then exhausted from lack of sleep and hard, continuous work and had to be relieved.

Just then General Carey arrived from leave. His regular job was artillery, but he was known for a fine soldier and was rushed to the front. For the rest of the six days that this brigade fought he was in command. Probably he owed much of his success to the exhaustion of the attacking troops, who had been living for days on "iron rations"; but his resourceful and vigorous counterattacks made the Germans believe that they were face to face with a properly organized force, and so he held them off till reinforcements arrived.

The entire story of the Fifth Army in this great fight shows that the British infantry suffered from only one defect—lack of numbers. Sir Hubert Gough's army was sent down in January to take over from the French a sector forty to fifty miles long. Clearly such a line as this could be held only if it were strongly located and cunningly constructed, and there is no doubt that it was. Divisional Generals who have come back have no fault whatever to find with the engineers.

Three lines were designed: First, an outpost line, then a "line of resistance," and then a "battleline."

The outpost line was designed with special care. It consisted of a number of separate posts so located as to provide for a cross-fire on any enemy that penetrated them. It was intended to be held until the last gasp, and it was presumed that the Germans might pass through it, but that they would be terribly punished by the garrisons of the isolated posts.

Mist Made Precautions Vain.

In one way the attack was not a surprise. General Gough had known for days that it was imminent, and had moved his men up to their positions and made every preparation possible. But one thing he could not foresee or guard against—the mist and fog. Of course no one could foretell the precise day and hour at which the attack would be launched, and the efficiency with which the enemy made use of his communications and his advantage of inner lines kept the entire British Army in the dark until the advancing waves of gray were in sight.

But before the Fifth Army they never came in sight. Under cover of the mist, which prevented sight for more than thirty yards, the Germans crept forward, and the outpost line was overrun before the alarm could be given. It was simply swamped, and the cross-fire on which so much depended was never delivered.

Consequently the fight began at the line of resistance instead, and before many hours had passed by sheer weight of numbers the Germans had forced the British back on the battleline. Then the fewness of numbers began to tell, and, as always at points of junction between divisions, the Germans got through between the Seventh and Nineteenth, the Nineteenth and Eighteenth, and the Third and Eighteenth, and the whole line was broken up.

No particular blame is attached to General Gough, although he has paid the price which a defeated General must pay, and has been removed.

There is no question that the British soldiers fought as they have always fought. One of the divisions that was crumpled up was a famous Irish unit.

Had No Time to Destroy Bridges.

Meanwhile it was impossible for the French reinforcements to come up as quickly as was necessary, and the retreat began. Bridges were not blown up for the simple reason that the parties of engineers were all killed. After that it was a mere question of hard fighting, concerning which the British have no apologies to make.

Many curious incidents are coming out now. One Acting Brigadier General was captured by the Germans and passed six hours in their lines. He was well treated by the officers, but found his escort very rough. He admired immensely the precision with which the Germans were marshaled for attack. At length he thought that he would make a dash for freedom. He was in charge of two Germans, but, being an International Rugby football player of splendid physique, he was able to knock them over. His hands were bound, but he made a run for it, and thought his best chance was to get near a blazing ammunition dump. Shells were exploding, and his escort was sniping at him; but they were afraid to come after him, so at last he managed to get out of sight.

Then he made his way forward till he got near the line of British outposts. He was almost exhausted, and nearly despaired till he heard one soldier sing out: "Get up, Jack, ye deevil!" These were the most welcome words he had ever heard. He had tumbled into a line of the Gordons, and so was safe.

REFUSES TEUTON PARLEYS.

American Labor Mission Holds Firmly to Its Position.

LONDON, April 17.—The American Labor Mission held its first formal sitting with representatives of the British Labor Party at the House of Commons today and discussed the war aims program adopted by the Inter-Allied Labor Congress. The only divergence of opinion which developed was over the clause demanding a meeting with the labor delegates from the Central Powers similar to that proposed at the Stockholf Conference.

The American delegates stood out against any meeting with representatives of the enemy. Further discussion was postponed until April 29.

This evening the British Labor representatives gave a dinner to the American delegates in the "Strangers' dining room" of the House of Commons.

KING PRAISES RELIEF WORK.

George Expresses Pride in Britons' Gifts to Red Cross.

LONDON, April 17.—The British Red Cross Fund has reached £10,000,000. The King has written to The London Times, which raised the fund, expressing his congratulations. In the letter he says:

"I am especially proud of the noble generosity displayed by Britons overseas. Nor can I forget the munificence with which the American Red Cross has supported the work of the British Red Cross, cementing still further the ties which unite the two countries."

Sir Frederick E. Smith, the Attorney General, has loaned his spacious London house to the American Red Cross for a hospital.

"Look at the Map," Say the German Generals; "Look at Your Casualty Lists," the British Reply

OTTAWA, April 17.—"The past twenty-four hours have been anything but a good time for the enemy," says a Reuter correspondent at British headquarters in a dispatch sent here today. "Ludendorff is doubtless telling the Germans to look at the map. The answer is: Tell them to look at their casualty lists.

"Our shortening of the Paschendaele salient and the giving up of the ground won last Autumn has not been in vain, since it played a large part in wearing out the enemy, the last phase of which we are now entering on.

"The withdrawal was accomplished with masterly skill, unhampered by the Germans. Our power of resistance has greatly stiffened, while we have forced the enemy to lengthen his communications across ground which he would infinitely sooner be without.

"The bitter intensity of the fighting lulled during the forenoon, the hurricane artillery duel subsiding to spasmodic outbursts with long intervals of comparative calm.

"We have taken numerous prisoners in the last two days."

ALLIED AIRPLANES HARASS INFANTRY

They Are Taking Part in the Battle as a Combatant Arm on a Large Scale.

By G. H. PERRIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, April 17.—Up to this morning the enemy had made no new move on the Somme front, but the artillery is active on both sides and the violence of the struggle in the North, which the whole French army is watching with breathless and sympathetic interest, does not lead any competent observer to think that the German offensive in its central field is abandoned.

For the first time in these battles, in addition to its vital services of scouting, photography, communication work and artillery observation, the airplane has appeared as a combatant arm on a really large scale, and in both defensive and offensive operations the Allies have enjoyed and maintain an incontestable superiority. The French aviators speak highly of the Richthofen "circus" and of some other individual enemy pilots, and since the end of last month a certain recovery of German effort in the air has been perceptible. On the whole, however, the Allies have had and have much the best of it, with the result that while their infantry and gunners have enjoyed material aid and protection, the enemy's advance has been ceaselessly harassed and his losses have been greatly increased.

From the beginning of the offensive up to the end of March nearly a hundred tons of explosives had been thrown by French airmen on German munition dumps, railway stations, junction camps, and other centres. Hundreds of thousands of rounds had been fired by machine gunners on troops marching or in line, while innumerable individual or group combats took place.

On March 27 a grand fleet of no fewer than sixty fighting and twenty bombarding planes swept across the battlefront, raining bullets and bombs upon the gray-coat masses. Smaller groups constantly attacked the enemy convoys and relief columns, coming down within fifty yards and scattering them like chaff in the wind.

It may be said of this, as of any other part of a struggle so aggravated, that it could not last very long, yet I am assured that, thanks to the Allies' decided initial advantage, they have not lost half as many machines as the boche.

Prisoners say that the effectives of the German companies in the line now number about 120 men to a company and that the losses during the offensive have varied from a third to half of the effectives. Thus one company between March 21 and April 5, despite reinforcement at the end of March, was fifty men short. The second battalion of the 24th Regiment had lost half its strength and three other battalions of different regiments from 30 to 40 per cent. Artillery and machine gun fire are chiefly credited with these results.

RAIDERS CROSS THE PIAVE.

Italian Assault Parties Inflict Losses on Austrians.

ROME, April 17.—The official communication from headquarters today says:

Patrols on the Asiago plateau and Italian patrols in the Monte Tomba area captured prisoners and material. At Gonfo loop, east of Fossalta, we prevented the enemy from launching boats. One of our assault parties crossed the Piave and inflicted casualties on the enemy.

In the Lagarina Valley we carried out effective artillery work, hitting a military train standing in the Rovereto Station and also set fire to some depots at Mori.

Major Julian Day Only Wounded.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 17.—Anxiety as to the wounds of Major Julian Day, a Yale man who is serving with the British Camel Corps in Egypt, whose death had been reported without definite information, was relieved this afternoon when a cablegram to George Parmley Day, Treasurer of the University, stated that the Major was alive. He was wounded in a fight with the Turks, but his condition is not critical.

The Gentlefolk Look Of A Metric Shirt

IT is said that his linen connotes the gentleman, because, "born to blush unseen," it should be so fine in quality and so fleckless in laundering, that you don't have to blush, even in your thoughts.

BURIAN CALLED BACK MAGYAR CABINET OUT

nin's successor in the post of Foreign Minister of Austria-Hungary has been received here. It was announced at too late an hour to be included in today's West German papers, but it is certain that the appointment will satisfy those wide political circles in the Fatherland which wish to see German influence and power upheld in the Dual Monarchy.

It is noteworthy that papers of such different hues as the Vossische Zeitung with its thin veneer of liberalism and Germania, the inspired organ of the Centre party, were at one yesterday in saying that Count Tisza's appointment as Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister would give great satisfaction to Germany, but if they would have satisfaction in welcoming to that important office Europe's super-reactionary and embodiment of Magyar oppression, they will at least find no little pleasure in the rearrival at Ballplatz of one of Tisza's most faithful henchmen and reactionaries, who puts most German Junkers in the shade.

Stephan, Baron Burian von Radecz, comes of an old Hungarian family and began his career in the Consular service, his first post being at Alexandria. Afterward he held numerous posts in the near East, subsequently becoming Joint Minister of Finance for the Dual Monarchy. In 1915 he succeeded Count Berchtold as Minister for Foreign Affairs, yielding the place in the following year to Czernin and reassuming the duties of the Ministry of Finance, from which he goes back to his old post at the Ministry for Foreign Affairs.

Czernin's resignation has had the inevitable result of throwing Hungarian politics into the melting pot of a crisis. The unstable Wekerle Cabinet has resigned after a variegated life of just about eight months. Formed toward the end of last August, its Minister of Finance resigned in September and its Food Minister in January, and shortly afterward it was reconstructed.

There are two causes for its going, the franchise reform question and Czernin's resignation. As to the former, there were three factions warring in Parliament and of late they have often brought things to the brink of a crisis. Count Andrassy and his group, supporting the Government, but in the minority, have stood for an immediate dissolution of Parliament and the carrying out of franchise reform despite war conditions. Count Tisza, head of the Parliamentary majority, opposed this and was also against a slight compromise extending the franchise among industrial and agricultural workers and to holders of the war cross. The Premier himself stood between the two in support of the Government's full franchise program.

The other day a compromise appeared to have been reached by which a majority in the House was to agree to a budget of new taxes and all other measures necessary for the war, after which franchise reform might be dealt with. The news of Czernin's resignation, however, appears to have destroyed the compromise, the majority taking the view that reforms could not be dealt with as an isolated matter, but in conjunction with the general policy of the Dual Monarchy, so the Cabinet resigned.

It is probable that if Tisza does not return to the head of the Government that post will fall to one of his direct nominees, who will proceed on the old and definite lines of reaction. Thus is reaction strengthening its hold both in Austria and Hungary.

COPENHAGEN, April 17. — King Charles has refused to dissolve the Hungarian Parliament and is expected to intrust the reconstruction of the Cabinet to Premier Wekerle, excluding the Ministers who have been opposing a compromise on the suffrage reform measure.

NEW PEACE STEP FORECAST.

Burian Soon to Discuss New International Moves.

AMSTERDAM, April 17.—According to a dispatch from Budapest, Baron Burian was chosen as Austrian Foreign Minister because, apart from the fact that he possesses the confidence of Emperor Charles, he is intimately acquainted with all the Foreign Office's workings for years past, his thorough knowledge of which is considered unusually important "in connection with the international agreements about to be discussed."

LONDON, April 17.—The Cologne Gazette, according to a dispatch from Copenhagen to the Exchange Telegraph Company, prints a report that a strong peace movement is developing in Austro-Hungarian circles in consequence of the resignation of Count Czernin. Many influential Austrian politicians, the dispatch adds, hold that the removal of Czernin affords an opportunity to seek a basis for peace negotiations which had been impossible while he was Minister of Foreign Affairs.

According to a Vienna dispatch received in Copenhagen, the Austrian foreign post was offered to Prince von Hohenlohe-Schillingsfürst, Austrian Ambassador at Berlin, but he refused it.

Prince von Hohenlohe, Chief of Court to Emperor Charles, has been discharged, according to the same dispatch, Count Alexander Esterhazy, brother-in-law of Count Revertata, who was the medium of attempted negotiations with France, has been appointed as his successor.

GERMANS SEEK CLOSER TIES.

Turkish and Bulgar, as Well as Austrian, Differences Develop.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 17.—The German press is unanimous in the expression of the hope that Count Czernin's successor will inaugurate a new Austrian policy and a closer alliance between Germany and her ally.

A Vienna telegram to the Cologne Gazette, after saying that Emperor Charles's peace letter to Prince Sixtus caused the Emperor and his Premier to disagree, remarks that Czernin's resignation will leave a very difficult internal situation, as the Czechs consider it their triumph, whereas the German and other parties adhered to Czernin's policy.

A Berlin telegram to the same paper insists that through Emperor Charles's telegram to Emperor William Czernin retires leaving the situation fully cleared up, and that Austria's energetic military help on the west front is additional proof of the loyalty of the Dual Monarchy.

Most Pan German papers are making full use of the opportunity to renew attacks on the policy of the period when Emperor Charles's letter was sent. The Cologne Volkszeitung remarks that "even Kaiser Wilhelm has been known to write private letters," but that the contents were known to the Chancellors. The paper believes that the Austrian peace feeler must have been made with Berlin's knowledge. It reproaches the Austrian Emperor for playing with fire, and asserts that Francis Joseph would never have committed such an indiscretion. It cannot be denied, the paper continues, that in official circles at that time a peace step would have been welcomed from Vienna, but not without Berlin's approval.

"Let us hope," it says, "that the present experience will suffice and that it will keep Emperor Charles from further independent experiments in the region of foreign policy."

The annexationist Weser Zeitung says it is impossible to dive into all the secret corners of Vienna-Budapest politics which led to the resignation of Czernin, as they would fill a book. It considers the step important and hopes that his successor will begin a new era in Viennese politics. The paper says that Czernin fought for Austro-Hungarian interests at Bucharest with energy and diplomacy more than for the mutual interests of the Central Powers, and that it is now Emperor Charles's duty to see that Czernin's successor will make the interests of the Central Powers his one political aim.

This is all the more important, says the Zeitung, as Czernin resigned his office at the moment when negotiations had been rendered more difficult by Turkish and Bulgarian differences and when the first conference on Poland's future had begun. The paper says that Austrian feats of arms on the western front must be accompanied by close political collaboration.

The Vossische Zeitung believes that if Czernin's resignation was voluntary it is a sequel of the Cabinet policy in which the letters of monarchs and members of the royal family played an important rôle. There is indeed no question of a breach in the alliance, the paper holds, but Czernin's going may involve considerable changes.

Georg Bernhard writes that Czernin had taken the reins of German-Austrian policy into his own hands, but that indecision and lack of clearness in the German policy was largely responsible for this. He says that last Summer the German policy was not only weak and undecided toward the enemy, but also toward Germany's allies.

"If there had been an equally strong personality in Germany," he says, "the result would have been excellent. As there was not, Czernin was a danger to German policy, and this danger now has been overcome, but only temporarily."

BOLO LOST NERVE IN FACE OF DEATH

Traitor Expected a Reprieve Until Told to Prepare for the Firing Squad.

LOOKED FOR KAISER'S HELP

Condemned Man Was Held Up by a Guard at Vincennes — Left a Token to Brother.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 17.—Bolo Pacha was shot this morning at a spot reserved for the execution of traitors to France in the Forest of Vincennes, just outside Paris. Day after day since Sunday week, when he first announced after the hour of execution had been fixed that he wished to make a statement, Bolo had staved off the fatal moment by making further revelations. Each day at the end of his statement the examining Magistrate had asked:

"Is that all?"

Each day Bolo, sick in heart and brain, had forced himself to say:

"No, no, it is not all—tomorrow I will tell you something else."

Bolo hoped his life would be spared, although it was universally felt that in spite of the light which he at the last moment threw on the cases against ex-Premier Caillaux and Senator Humbert, his doom was fixed.

"I shall not be shot," he told his guards confidently even yesterday. "At the last moment something unexpected will happen."

The condemned man gave his guards the impression that he expected a certain Spanish bank to intervene with proof that he had 6,000,000 francs deposited there and that the German Emperor would arrange for this fact to be proved in order to save his life.

Bolo Told to Prepare.

All these fantastic hopes vanished at 5 this morning, when Bolo was awakened by the Governor of the prison entering his cell.

"Have courage, Bolo," said the Governor. "You must prepare yourself."

Bolo stammered: "What? What?" Then, when he realized the awful truth, he fell helplessly back upon his bed. By a supreme effort he pulled himself together and put on a new suit of clothes which his brother, Mgr. Bolo, the famous preacher, had brought him Sunday week to wear at the execution. Automatically he adjusted his white tie, smoothed out the folds of his coat, put on a soft felt hat and white gloves, and quietly declared himself ready.

Bolo was placed in an automobile which passed along the Boulevard Arago, contiguous to the prison where the guillotine is so often operated, and was driven rapidly out of Vincennes. At the entrance of the ancient castle Bolo was taken from the car and handed over by the prison governor to the military authorities. He was obviously all in and would have fallen had he not been held up by a guard. His face was the color of chalk. When he was called on to sign the register he was able to take off his glove, but the signature, sprawling all across the page, gave evidence of his frantic state of mind.

The condemned man was then led back to the car, which, surrounded by an escort of cavalry at a sharp trot, was driven rapidly off to the execution post in the forest, nearly a mile from the fort. Scores of sentries who lined the route at intervals fell in behind as the car passed and ran with it the rest of the distance. The noise of their feet on the hard road in the early morning light made an extraordinary impression on the mind as the car sped forward.

Before the Firing Squad.

Bolo reached the fatal post one minute before 6 o'clock. The firing party already was drawn up. It was composed of three Sergeants, three Corporals, and six private soldiers, all armed with rifles and under command of a Lieutenant with drawn sword. Bolo was taken out of the car and led to the post, where the sentence of the court-martial was slowly read to him. He listened like a man already dead, and seemed not to hear a word of the grim phraseology.

Soldiers attached his inert body to the post with straps, and he was asked if he wished to have his eyes bandaged. Bolo made another desperate effort to pull himself together, and succeeded in nodding his head in the affirmative. As a soldier was tying a blue handkerchief over his eyes, Bolo said in a voice from which all tone had gone:

"Don't tie it so tightly."

A moment later the Lieutenant in command of the firing party lowered his sword, and twelve rifles spoke as one. Bolo died instantly. Most of the bullets appeared to have struck the right side of the head, which sagged inertly over the shoulder as the body hung suspended by straps under the arms. As required by law, the Lieutenant stepped forward and fired a revolver bullet into the ear of the traitor.

The firing party passed in Indian file before the body, which was then unstrapped and placed upon the floor of a military wagon. Surrounded by the escort of trotting cavalry with jingling spurs and rattling swords, the vehicle lumbered off rapidly into the woods, bearing the body of Bolo.

Body Given to Family.

PARIS, April 17.—After being told that the hour of his execution had arrived, Bolo Pacha gave instructions to the prison chaplain to take from his body a silk lace handkerchief which he placed on his chest and give it to his brother, Mgr. Bolo.

Before setting forth from the prison Bolo asked to be permitted to partake of communion.

After the execution the form of an interment at Vincennes was gone through, and then the body was turned over to Bolo's family.

The chaplain after the execution found lying over Bolo's heart two embroidered handkerchiefs which had been pierced by bullets. One was given to Bolo's brother and the other to his widow.

CENTRIST LEADER IN CLASH.

Erzberger Breaks with Hertling—Party Rejects Peace Plan.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, April 17.—The Tägliche Rundschau makes a remarkable statement regarding Herr Erzberger and three chancellors, saying that he contributed to the fall of Bethmann and Michaelis, and has finally broken with Hertling.

The paper says that at a meeting of Centrists at Easter the party renounced the Reichstag peace resolution and threatened serious steps if Erzberger's policy continued.

SHOWS RAINBOW MEN ARE AGAIN IN ACTION

Four Men of the Old 69th Regiment Named in Pershing's Latest Casualty List.

The 165th Infantry of the Rainbow Division, which is the old 69th Regiment of Manhattan, is again in action in the American-held sector of the French front. This fact is indicated by the casualty list received from General Pershing yesterday, four of the fifty-eight names reported being those of members of the 165th. They are Privates Edward P. McSherry of the Sanitary Company, John J. Kelly, William T. King, and John F. Wakeley, the last three of Company K, which to date has suffered more casualties than any other unit in the famous old regiment. All of these men are reported as only slightly wounded.

McSherry is a first-class private who served on the Mexican border with the 69th. His New York home is at 239 East Forty-second Street. Private John J. Kelly of Company K is another old-time 69th man. His New York home is at 2,088 Madison Avenue. There is also a John J. Kelly in Company D of the 165th, but he is a Sergeant. King is registered in the Rainbow Directory as a first-class private. His home in New York is 528 West Nineteenth Street. Wakeley, whose home is at 480 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, is one of the Mexican border veterans of the regiment. He was in the 23d Infantry of Brooklyn when war was declared, and was among the men transferred to the 165th from that command.

Private John J. Tierney, who was one of the slightly wounded reported by General Pershing in the list published yesterday, was identified as a 165th Regiment soldier. Like McSherry he was in the sanitary company. His parents live at 282 Van Beuren Street, Brooklyn. They received a letter from him last week written from the trenches in which he said that he was "doing fine."

Lieutenant Wilmer H. Bradshaw, reported severely wounded in the list published yesterday, is with one of the regular army infantry regiments. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bradshaw of 57 Locust Street, Flushing, L. I., were notified by Adjt. Gen. McCain yesterday that Lieutenant Bradshaw had been "seriously wounded in action." Lieutenant Bradshaw is a graduate of the Flushing High School and was commissioned last August. He is a Plattsburg training camp man. In a letter received a few days ago by his mother Lieutenant Bradshaw wrote:

"I am going into the first line trenches in a few days to get a crack at the Huns. I will do my best to earn my salary."

Mr. Bradshaw, father of Lieut. Bradshaw, is in Florida. He is editor of The Open Door, which is the official organ of the American Anti-Vivisection Society.

Mrs. Bradshaw said last night that in another recent letter her son inclosed $50 with which he asked her to buy a present for herself. She bought a Liberty Bond.

Private Ralph S. Thompson, who was reported in the list published yesterday as having died of spinal meningitis, was a Brooklyn boy. His parents live at 195 Garfield Place. Thompson was not in the Rainbow Division.

NORWEGIAN DEPUTY JAILED.

Socialist Leader Incited Workers to Follow Example of Bolsheviki.

CHRISTIANIA, April 17.—M. Tranmel, leader of the Socialists of the Left, was sentenced to sixty days' imprisonment at Trondhjem today for making provocative speeches. He was also charged with inciting the workers to follow the example of the Bolsheviki in Russia and form Workmen's and Soldiers' Councils.

The imprisonment of the Socialist leader may lead to labor troubles throughout Norway.

WILSON SETTLES DISPUTE.

Fuel and Railroad Administrations to Agree as to Roads' Coal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The dispute between the Railroad and Fuel Administrations over the price which the railroads shall pay for coal was brought to the attention of President Wilson today at the meeting of the Super War Council, and it was intimated that a complete settlement would be reached within a day or two.

The President's decision, it is said, was a victory for the contention of Fuel Administration officials that the practice of the railroads in giving 100 per cent. car supply to certain mines in return for cheap coal should be stopped. It has been charged that the practice has resulted in unequal distribution of available cars, reduced production, and dangerous labor unrest at mines where, because of car shortage, working time was cut and earnings curtailed. The Railroad Administration has held that it would cost the railroads $40,000,000 more annually if the prices fixed by the Government for coal at the mines were paid by them, and that it would be necessary to meet this expense by raising freight rates.

There have been several conferences between Fuel Administrator H. A. Garfield and John Skelton Williams, representing the Railroad Administration, and finally Bernard M. Baruch, Chairman of the War Industries Board, joined in an effort to settle the dispute without taking it to the President. The final conference was held this morning and little headway was made in an effort to induce Mr. Williams to agree to the Fuel Administration's terms.

The details of the plan to which President Wilson is reported to have given his support will now be worked out. It is understood that it will provide for a more equitable distribution of the cars and possibly may result in an increase to the railroads' operating expenses.

FACTORY SPIES INTERNED.

Charged with Tampering with Gauges Made for the Government.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17. — Two former employes of the United States Gauge Company, Sellersville, Penn., charged with tampering with gauges intended for the Government, have been interned. This action was taken by the Government, following a hearing here yesterday.

The men are Frederick Schubert and Fritz Bieret, who with George Schubert, Frederick's brother; and George Heindricks, were charged with having tampered with gauges being made for a Dayton, Ohio, concern, which had a contract with the Government.

C. F. Schmid, a naval inspector, testified that he made a test of the gauges after they were delivered, and found that thirteen of fifty-seven 500-pound gauges were defective. These, he said, were 21 per cent. defective under only a one hour test.

AMERICAN ENGINEERS BACK.

28 Return from Vladivostok, Not Being Welcomed There.

A CANADIAN PACIFIC PORT, April 17.—Twenty-eight officers of the United State Engineer Corps, who went to Vladivostok in November to help reorganize Russian railroads, arrived here today on a transpacific liner.

The Americans said that when they reached Vladivostok there was no one to receive them and the Bolshevist authorities were not hospitable. After remaining three days they left for Japan.

During their stay in Vladivostok several Russian officers were killed. As one of the Americans put it, "It appeared to be an open season for Russian officers. Any Russian who held a commission was a poor insurance risk and was killed on sight."

LORDS HASTENING MAN-POWER BILL

Passes Second Reading in Upper House — Lansdowne Deprecates Irish Draft.

FRAMING HOME RULE ACT

Section of Unionists Willing to Sacrifice Preferences and Support It.

LONDON, April 17.—The House of Lords today passed the second reading of the Government's Man-Power bill. The Marquis of Lansdowne, discussing the bill, heartily welcomed it.

"Our duty," he said, "is to help encourage the gallant army to the utmost of our ability. I feel so strongly on this point that I am quite ready to throw to the winds many old notions and antagonisms, and I believe that this can be done without harm to consistency or the pledges of the Government. It would be very different under less serious circumstances.

"I could, however, have wished that the Government had fixed the age limit lower, and I cannot help thinking that the extension of conscription to Ireland is very doubtful wisdom, while it is still more objectionable that this part of the question should be linked up with home rule."

A committee consisting of such former anti-home rulers as Walter Hume Long, J. Austen Chamberlain, and A. W. Samuels, Solicitor General for Ireland, with George Nicoll Barnes, labor member of the War Cabinet without portfolio, has been engaged in drafting the home rule bill, and reports that it has made rapid progress. The bill, it is understood, will take the form of a measure amending the Government of Ireland act which passed just before the outbreak of the war, but the operation of which was suspended for the period of the war. General opinion favors a Federal measure which could be made applicable to Scotland, Wales, and England. Several motions suggesting the introduction of a Federal system already have appeared in the House of Commons, while a large majority of those Unionists who have become converts to home rule also favor that system. Never, on the surface at any rate, has Ireland had such a good chance of getting a form of self-government.

A lengthy meeting of the Unionist War Committee, which was attended by 127 members, was held in the House of Commons last night to consider the question of home rule in Ireland and the war. An official announcement, issued after the meeting, merely said:

"The discussion was a very grave one."

According to The Daily Telegraph, Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, spoke in the interest of Ulster, while the other members urged that every effort should be made to secure a settlement of the home rule question, even at the sacrifice of long-cherished principles. No resolution, the paper says, was adopted, but the balance of feeling was that the Government must proceed cautiously with the home rule bill.

With all the Liberals, Laborites, Nationalists and a large part of the Unionists supporting the bill, it should have an easy passage in the House of Commons. What the House of Lords, those old enemies of home rule, will do, is uncertain, but with the two former anti-home rulers, Earl Curzon and Viscount Milner, as members of the Government supporting it, the opposition is likely to be less strenuous than on former occasions when the Commons sent such a measure to the Upper House.

The Irish Nationalist members of Parliament, having fought conscription to the last in the House of Commons, are leaving for Dublin to formulate plans for resisting it.

TURKS CAPTURE BATUM.

Black Sea Port Was Stubbornly Defended, Constantinople Reports.

LONDON, April 17.—The capture by the Turks of the City of Batum is announced in an official statement issued at Constantinople of Monday. The text of the announcement reads:

In the Caucasus, Batum has fallen into our hands. The enemy defended the outer forts step by step. On the evening of April 13 attacks against the southern forts of the fortress commenced and proceeded with the greatest stubbornness. Some of the forts surrendered without fighting, but the others offered great resistance.

Deputations from the civilian population of the town came out to meet our troops and welcomed them. The town and the harbor establishments were occupied without resistance being met. In the town everything is quiet.

The number of prisoners and the extent of the booty have not yet been ascertained. The enemy losses were heavy.

East of Lake Van our troops occupied the town of Seil.

Batum is a Black Sea port in the Trans-Caucasian territory taken from Russia under the terms of the peace treaty. This region has been evacuated by the Russians, but its occupation by the Turks is being resisted by the Armenians.

BRITISH TAKE BULGAR POSTS

Two Surprise Attacks by Enemy on Allied Line Fail.

PARIS, April 17.—Army Headquarters today issued the following report of operations on the Macedonian front:

Eastern Theatre, April 16.—On the left bank of the Struma, near Keupri and Prosenik, fifteen kilometers south of Demir-Hissar, British patrols engaged in numerous combats with Bulgarian advanced posts and brought back prisoners.

The enemy attempted two surprise attacks, which failed completely at the Cerna bend and west of Monastir.

Reciprocal artillery actions took place in the Cerna bend, in the Monastir sector, and in the region of the lakes.

LONDON, April 17.—The Greek and British troops which on Monday crossed the Struma River, on the eastern flank of the Macedonian front, occupied seven towns, the War Office announces. The statement follows:

Greek troops crossed the River Struma above Lake Tahinos and occupied the villages of Beglik-Mah, Kakaraska, Salmah, Kispeki, and Ada. The operation was most successfully carried out, with slight casualties.

Further to the north British troops occupied Kumli and Ormanli. A few Bulgarians were captured.

MAJOR BIRKNER TARRED BY FELLOW-PRISONERS

Convicts Lead Accused Army Officer About Santa Fe Prison in Coat of Feathers.

SANTA FE, N. M., April 17.—Four hundred convicts in the State Penitentiary this afternoon tarred and feathered Major John M. Birkner of Camp Cody, Deming, N. M., held in the penitentiary as a Federal prisoner. The convicts then led him around with a rope about his neck. He is charged with violation of the Espionage act.

Major Birkner, who was born in Nuremberg, Germany, but who had been in the American military forces for more than thirty years, was arrested last Friday at Camp Cody, where he was an officer in the 127th Field Artillery. His home is in Lincoln, Neb.

Birkner was allowed out in the prison yard for exercise with the 400 convicts. The Warden knew nothing of what was going on until he heard loud cheering and rushed out in the yard to find Birkner stripped and covered with tar and feathers. The prisoners with loud hoots were leading him about the yard by a rope around his neck.

Assistant Superintendent Dugan rescued him. The prisoners, evidently in accordance with a pre-arranged plot, had taken the feathers from their pillows, but where the tar came from is a mystery.

Birkner is alleged to have made disloyal utterances, such as "You can't beat the Dutch," and "The Germans will sink American transports as fast as they are sent over."

Birkner contended the charges were spite work by subordinate officers whom he had disciplined.

Prey Upon Ignorant Draft Men.

CAMP GRANT, ROCKFORD, Ill., April 17.—A clique of ten men in Chicago is said to have reaped about $10,000, in rewards of $50 each, for the return of men classed as deserters. They specialize in foreign born men who cannot read or speak English, and who are astonished, when brought here, to learn that they are classed as deserters.

Pacifist Preacher Is Ousted.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., April 17.—The Rev. H. A. Ellis, District Superintendent of the Methodist Church, has removed the Rev. G. W. Galbrith from his charge at Cottage, N. Y., because the minister preached pacifism and the doctrine that war was never justified.

BELIEF IN VICTORY UNITES GERMANS

Food Conditions in the Empire More Tolerable, but Situation Is Still Bad.

WAVE OF CRIME IN BERLIN

Shipbuilding Being Pushed and Other Preparations Made for Trade After the War.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—Germany is more united than for a long time, and its press is more confident of ultimate victory, in the opinion of an exceptionally competent observer, whose conclusions the THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent has been permitted to see.

One of the difficulties since America's entry into the war has been to learn the true internal conditions of the Central Powers. The views expressed by neutrals coming out of Germany have been curiously contradictory, and their statements have been often obviously colored. The observer now quoted, however, has made a specialty of collating every kind of information, and by interviewing neutral visitors, careful reading of the German press and examining official statistics and documents has probably arrived as near the truth as possible.

He is certain that there is nothing to justify the belief that the food shortage has brought the Germans within measurable distance of admitting defeat. The meat ration may be reduced, but the supply of potatoes has been maintained, and a Swiss businessman of pronounced pro-Entente sympathies has asserted that during a recent stay in Berlin he was never hungry, though he had to pay as much as 20 marks for a meal. He found last Winter that the houses were well warmed. His view is supported by certain repatriated army medical officers, who believe that most Germans enjoyed more tolerable conditions than the year before.

Government Shuts Eyes to Smuggling.

That, of course, does not mean that the distress among the poorer classes in the towns was not often acute, Alsace being particularly badly off for food. Complaints are common of food smuggling, which has become thoroughly organized. The Government is quite unable to suppress it, and is afraid of putting the screws too hard on armament and munition firms and of refusing to permit workmen to get extra illegal allowances of food on which, in truth, they maintain their working strength.

The Berlin newspapers speak openly of the appalling growth of burglaries and other crimes. Men and women are attacked in the streets and robbed, not only of money, but of clothes, and burglars have entered even the homes of the Minister of War and the general officer commanding the Brandenburg district. Military patrols help the police at night, but the robberies increase, and transit by post or railroad is becoming more and more insecure. Thus the Prussian State railways paid in 1917 as compensation for goods stolen 57,000,000 marks, as against 4,000,000 marks in 1914.

Russian prisoners of war have gone far to solving the German labor problem, and the agrarian press has been urging that if the Russians are permitted to go home before Fall this year's harvest will be ruined. It has even been suggested by some newspapers that the whole male population of the territories ceded by Russia be transported to German farms to supply cheap man power.

In spite of the failure of the recent big strikes, disaffection still lingers among the industrial classes and there are tales of isolated outbreaks among German regiments and the formation of Soviets on the Russian model. Nevertheless, the observer is sure that these symptoms are of small importance, and that mutiny on a large scale is quite as unlikely as a revolution to end the war. Thus a recent election at Niederbarnin, a thickly populated suburb of Berlin, in which the working class predominates, gave the Majority Socialist candidate a crushing victory over his Independent Socialist rival.

Undoubtedly this revival of the spirit and growth of jingoism among the Germans is largely due to the successes in Russia and, particularly, the hopes aroused of receiving large supplies of wheat from Ukraine. But these, the observer believes, are doomed to disappointment. He admits the great difficulty of getting any reliable statistics, but points out that the general anarchy in Ukraine is making it impossible for it to have produced large quantities of grain. Thus, big estates have been broken up and laid waste, stocks of seed grain have been pillaged, and there is a general lack of skilled labor and agricultural implements. In all probability, now that the direction of the estate owners has gone, the yield an acre under the uninstructed and wasteful cultivation of the moujiks will be very much less, so that there is little wheat for Germany to get hold of now, and there will be little more after the next harvest.

No Stocks of Grain.

As for the suggestion that during the years in which the usual export of grain from Russia has been impossible great stocks must have been stored up, the observer remarks that at the same time the mobilization of the army required the consumption of an extra three or four million tons a year. Moreover, since last July, grain has been fed very liberally to cattle, and the result of the vodka prohibition has been the establishment of a large number of illicit stills.

Finally the Bolsheviki have been responsible for the destruction of a good deal of such stocks as there were. Consequently, Russia will be able this year, even after the harvest, to feed barely her own population, and so should find it possible to do practically nothing for Germany and Austria. This, however, will not prevent the Central Powers from grabbing what they can and leaving the Russians to starve.

It may be said, generally, that the collapse of Russia has deprived the Allies' blockade of much of its force as far as food, coal, iron, oil, flax and leather are concerned, but it is still a very powerful weapon with regard to cotton, wool, jute, silk, rubber, and many other necessities.

The German Government is already preparing for trade after the war, and has taken measures to deprive the threatened economic boycott of some of its terror in the eyes of the German manufacturers. As the belief in ultimate victory grows strong, the determination is formed that the first demand victorious Germany must make is for equal trading privileges in all enemy countries. Moreover, the German Imperial Ministry of Economics has established the "Export Trades Company, Limited," the purpose of which will be to revive the export business in enemy countries.

Shipbuilding is being pushed vigorously. Aided by Government grants old yards have been extended and new ones established. Special efforts are also afoot for increasing the value of Leipsic Fair by which it is hoped to attract back to Germany neutral, and even enemy trade. A special department has been formed to look after the housing of visitors, and centres from which the fair may be advertised will be established in all countries as soon as peace is restored.

Conditions in Austria seem considerably worse than in Germany, and there has been progressive deterioration of food supplies. Labor is also gravely disaffected, and there is serious friction between several parts of the ramshackle empire.

Hungary is not at all enamored of the Mitteleuropa idea, which would tie her economically to the German chariot, and Bohemia is in real danger of starvation and thoroughly roused to a sense of its own national interests.

LAND 40,000 IN FINLAND.

Germans Have Big Squadron Cooperating with Army at Helsingfors.

LONDON, April 17.—The Germans have landed 40,000 troops at Helsingfors, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen.

A German squadron, anchored in the harbor of Helsingfors, consists of twelve ships, including the battleship Posen and Westfalen, each of 18,600 tons.

PAN GERMANS ENLARGE AFTER-WAR DEMANDS

Union's Resolution Calls for Baltic Lands and All Fruits of Western Victory.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, April 17.—I have on several occasions lately reported the effect which the western offensive is having in powerful German political circles. Under its influence the Pan Germans have redoubled their efforts and the annexationist leaven has so spread that the small Independent Socialist Party is practicaly the only one now which really stands by the policy of no annexations and no indemnities. What the Pan Germans are now demanding is clearly shown by the resolution passed unanimously and by speeches made at the Spring gathering in Berlin of the powerful Pan German Union.

The resolution declared that in settling the fate of the Eastern frontier peoples, only German interests must be taken into consideration furthermore the executive committee said that it greeted with proud joy the liberation of Baltic Germandom and regarded it as an understood necessity that the liberated Baltic lands should in their entirety remain attached to the German Empire and preserve their German character. How much Germandom there is in Baltic provinces is pointed out by the Vorwarts which says that at the highest, the eGrman population amounts to only 6 or 7 per cent of the whole.

The resolution goes on to deal with western aims and declares that it would be treason to the Fatherland not to utilize the military victory to the utmost. That means that Belgium must militarily, politically and economically remain in German hands, that the western powers must return Germany's colonies and pay an indemnity.

The speeches were on the same model. Count Reventlow said that the teaching of the Brest-Litovsk peace was that a theory of understanding could not lead to peace. He expressed his pleasure that the eastern peace had given Germany the certainty of a broad connection way to India. That was an important matter for Germany and a Serious one for England.

Another speaker demanded an indemnity should be paid in raw material, but he added, "Let us be clear that it will be very difficult to achieve."

MEAT RIOTS IN VIENNA.

Mob Storms the Stalls When They Find Supply Is Scanty.

ZURICH, April 17.—Vienna newspapers report serious rioting in the meat market there on Sunday.

Ten thousand people demanded meat, but only 1,000 kilograms was available. They then demanded horse flesh and when none was forthcoming they stormed the meat stalls.

The police were summoned and cleared the hall. Many arrests were made.

OIL SHIP CRASH TO COST 37 LIVES

Survivors of the O. B. Jennings Describe Their Rescue After Collision with the War Knight

DESTROYERS SAVED THEM

Vessels Burst Into Flame and 36 men Perished on Deck of the War Knight—Hulk Sunk by Mine.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, April 17.—Thirty-seven lives were lost when the American steamship O. B. Jennings and the British steamer War Knight, both laden with naphtha and inflammable oils, came into collision off the British coast on March 24, according to members of the crew of the O. B. Jennings, who arrived here today. All who perished, with one exception, were on the British vessel. They were burned to death by blazing gas and oil.

Those who survived the flames on the War Knight were rescued in the nick of time by destroyers, for soon afterward, while the blazing hull was being towed toward shallow water, it struck a mine and was blown up. The destroyers went to the rescue through a field of blazing oil and took off the crew of the Jennings. Several of the crew of the American ship were, however, badly burned and had to be removed to hospitals after being landed.

An officer of the O. B. Jennings who told the story of the disaster, said the collision occurred soon after 2 A. M., when the vessels were within fifteen miles of their destination. He added that it was caused by the necessity of running without lights owing to submarine danger.

"We had had an exceptionally rough trip," the officer said. "As a result, the churning of the bulk oil we carried had created a tremendous amount of gas. When the War Knight hit us there was an instant explosion, caused no doubt by a spark from the impact of the steel setting the gas on fire.

"Immediately there was a roar of flame spouting out of the hole in the O. B. Jennings's side, which all but enveloped the Britisher. I learned afterwards that thirty-six of her crew of about fifty were on deck at the time, and they must have been almost instantly incinerated.

"We drifted apart and one of the destroyers by which we were convoyed managed to get a line to her and was towing her toward the beach, when in some manner the burning ship drifted onto a mine field and she blew up. The case oil with which she was loaded took fire and completed her destruction.

"We had our own safety to look after. The burning naphtha had poured out onto the sea, and it would have been folly to launch lifeboats. It was then that the destroyers showed their resourcefulness, for they dashed through the burning oil, bumped along side of us and we jumped to their decks in safety. We lost only one man, a seaman named Shea, who was either burned, or fell overboard and drowned.

"The O. B. Jennings, being a menace to other ships, the destroyers proceeded to sink her, which they did with a number of shots fired into her hold. She settled until her decks were level with the water, extinguishing the flames, and afterward she was taken in tow and beached. She probably is not a total loss.

"The accident came at the close of a rough and exciting voyage, which had set the nerves of our crew on edge through the previous unaccounted-for disappearance of several ships of our convoy. They may have been diverted, or they may have been torpedoed. We never knew further than the fact that they were gone when we looked for them."

The British steamer War Knight, the vessel destroyed through the collision, was of 7,591 tons gross register, built at Alameda, Cal. The O. B. Jennings was owned by the Standard Oil Company and was a steamer of 10,290 tons gross register. The bare news that the O. B. Jennings had been in a collision and was beached and that one of the crew was killed, was received by the Standard Oil Company in New York soon after the accident.

17,000,000 CATHOLICS HERE.

Official Directory for 1918 Gives Statistics of Church.

There are 17,416,303 Catholics in the forty-eight States of the union according to advance sheets of "The Official Catholic Directory" for 1918 published and copyrighted by P. J. Kenedy & Sons of Barclay Street. With fifty-nine archdioceses and dioceses showing increases, only four reporting decreases and thirty-eight making no changes in the population figures the net ncrease in the number of Catholics for the year 1917 amounts to 393,424.

Joseph H. Meier, who has compiled the directory for the last twelve years says the figure is too low as no records are kept of the "floating" Catholic population and as nearly all of the thirty-eight dioceses making no change in their figures have, he says, increased in population the last year. Taking these facts into consideration, Mr. Meier says that the actual Catholic population of the United States would be shown to be over 19,000,000.

PARK GOLF RATES RAISED.

Van Cortlandt Links to be Built Up with Increased Fee.

When the blank applications for permits to play golf on the city's links at Van Cortlandt Park were received this year by those New Yorkers who have been accustomed to getting their recreation in the city by playing golf in the park, the announcement that the fee required had been raised from $1 to $5 for the license created a stir and a number of complaints have been sent to the authorities.

Park Commissioner in the Bronx Joseph P. Hennessy, in announcing his decision that the license fees for golf had to be increased this year, pointed out that there has been unusual demand on Van Cortlandt Park as a playground. He said that the added fee was going to be used to build up the links and to bunker them scientifically, so that those who played would be able to get even a greater amount of enjoyment out of the sport

REPUBLICANS BLOCK HOUSING BILL VOTE

Unexpected Opposition to $60,000,000 Administration Measure Crops Up in Senate.

FALL ATTACKS THE CABINET

Has No Confidence in Members and Objects to "President Hiding Behind Their Skirts."

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Unexpected opposition from the Republican side prevented passage in the Senate today of the $60,000,000 bill for housing war workers. Determined efforts to amend the measure will be made tomorrow before the final vote.

Republican Leader Gallinger declared provisions of the legislation for commandeering dwellings were "a step toward a species of autocracy," while Senator Fall of New Mexico, Republican, said the measure was in response "to the voice of the master."

Senator Swanson of Virginia, Chairman of the Public Buildings Committee, and other Democrats defended the legislation as vitally necessary to expedite manufacture of war materials.

Conflict of jurisdiction between the Shipping Board and the Department of Labor, which would administer the $60,000,000 provided in the bill, Senator Harding of Ohio declared, has delayed the Shipping Board's housing program under the $50,000,000 it was authorized to spend last March, particularly at Newport News, Va., and Sparrow's Point, Md. An amendment by Senator Harding providing that the Government should not rent dwellings for less than 6 per cent. of the invested capital was adopted.

Suggesting that the President, instead of the Department of Labor, should have power to carry out the housing program, Senator Fall said:

"I have no confidence in the President's Cabinet members, nor in their ability. In my judgment they have proven themselves absolutely inefficient. I am not going to vote to clothe them with any further power. I will vote to clothe the President with absolutely autocratic power. The President stands responsible to the people for the conduct of the war. He shall not hide behind the skirts of Hoover, or Garfield, or William B. Wilson, (Secretary of Labor,) or Baker. The President is the Secretary of War, the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Navy."

Senator Fall denounced the Housing bill as the "most obnoxious that has ever come before Congress," saying that under its provisions the Government, after the war, could continue the housing scheme, thus entering the field of private enterprise. He understood that this was the Government's intention.

Senator Nelson of Minnesota asked if the plan was to give the Labor Department a "roving commission" to construct houses wherever it desired. Senator Swanson said it was proposed to provide housing only at certain points where needed.

WORKHOUSE AFIRE.

Prisoners Fight $2,000 Blaze on Hart's Island.

About 150 of the 810 prisoners in the branch workhouse on Hart's Island were pressed into service as an emergency fire fighting brigade yesterday when fire was discovered in the basement of the administration building. When Warden Breen attempted to communicate by telephone with the City Island fire house he found that the wires had been burned out. There is no fire alarm signal connection with Hart's Island and neither is a fire drill system in operation.

Before aid arrived from City Island the prisoners had the fire under control. The damage amounted to about $2,000. The fire was discovered in a quantity of lumber in the basement of the administration building. It origin is not known.

COMMANDER'S WIFE SAYS CYCLOPS IS SAFE

Mrs. Worley Asserts That Mystery of Missing Collier Will Be Cleared Up Soon.

NORFOLK, Va., April 17.—Mrs. Selma W. Worley, wife of Lieut. Commander George Wichtmann Worley, commander of the missing naval collier Cyclops, went to a local newspaper office tonight and declared that the mystery surrounding the disappearance of the ship and its 293 passengers and crew would be cleared up within the next twenty-four hours.

In one statement Mrs. Worley is quoted as saying that the Cyclops was safe in a South American port and that an official announcement regarding the sel would be made soon.

Mrs. Worley is known to have visited families here who had relatives on the ship and told them not to worry any longer, as the mystery soon would be cleared up.

Mrs. Worley visited the newspaper office to request the suppression of an interview she had given about her husband's change of name and his birth in Germany.

"I will be able to give a bigger story tomorrow," she said.

When pressed for additional information Mrs. Worley added:

"You know, there are other ships at sea."

"Have you any reason to assume that the Cyclops is safe other than your hopes and belief?" she was asked.

"Yes," was her reply.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Diligent search by naval and merchant ships has failed to disclose the slightest trace of the missing naval collier Cyclops, with 293 persons on board. Publication of a dispatch from San Francisco quoting Mrs. A. M. Angermann, a sister of Lieut. Commander G. W. Worley, commanding officer of the Cyclops, as saying their family name was Wichtmann and that her brother was born in Germany and came to America as a child, led to an examination today of the commander's record at the Navy Department. It shows that Worley entered the navy twenty-eight years ago and gave San Francisco as his birthplace.

Mrs. Worley, who lives in Norfolk, Va., explained there today that her husband's name was changed legally at Port Orchard, Wash., when he was a young man and before he entered the naval service. She confirmed the statement that he was born in Germany, but declared he always was an enemy to that country. His foster father, she said, was named Worley, and he went into court to legally adopt the name of George Wichtman Worley.

Navy officials attach no importance to Worley's change of name or the news that he was born in Germany. Selecting at random a page of the official register of the navy today, one official pointed out that sixteen of sixty names listed obviously were of German origin.

GERMAN PRISONERS HERE.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, April 17.—A large American transport arriving from Europe today is said to have had on board between 25 and 40 German prisoners of war, among them several sailors who are believed to have been members of the crew of the German submarine U-53, which was captured several weeks ago by the United States destroyer Fanning. No information concerning the other men was given out. The officers, both naval and army, said they had instructions not to talk.

The captive sailors, who are said to have numbered eight, and who were brought over on the same ship on board of which Secretary of War Baker returned to the United States, have been turned over to the army and are now on the way to the prison camp near Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

HITCHCOCK IN SAARBRUCKEN

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The State Department was advised today that Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., of New York, an American aviator, who has been missing, is a prisoner at Saarbrucken, in Germany.

The report came from the American Legation at Berne, which had received it from the Spanish Embassy in Berlin.

TELLS OF WOMEN ON FARMS

Emanuel Sisterhood Reports Summer Efforts Satisfactory.

There was a meeting of settlement workers yesterday afternoon at the headquarters of the Council of Women's Organizations, 4 East Thirty-ninth Street, to hear a report of what the Emanuel Sisterhood of New York did last year in putting families on the farm. Mrs. R. F. Carton, Head Worker of the sisterhood, told the women that it was feasible and satisfactory to farmers for whom her unit worked and to the members of the families. Many of the women were foreigners, accustomed to work on the land and some were charwomen for whom Summer, with a scarcity of work, is a hard time. No one was taken from any kind of a job to go and a few husbands went along when they were also jobless.

"A band of boys who were not much more than tramps and unmanageable last year" she said, "had come this year to see if they can go back to the farm. They are working now in the shipyard, but they will go to the farms for their vacations. They are boys who had never been out of the city before and they prefer the farm to Coney Island for vacation.

RITA JOLIVET TELLS HOW FROHMAN DIED

Repeats in Court Last Words About Death Being Life's Most Beautiful Adventure.

WITNESS IN CUNARD CASE

Owners of Lusitania Seek to Limit Liability to the Salvage and Passage Money Paid.

The story of how Charles Frohman faced death on the Lusitania was told in a few graphic words, yesterday by Rita Jolivet, the moving picture actress, who in private life is the Countess Marguerita de Cippico. She testified before Judge Mayer, of the Federal District Court, in the hearing on the petition of the Cunard Steamship Company, which owned the Lusitania, for a limitation of liabilities for the deaths and damage arising out of the disaster.

Miss Jolivet was on the ship with her brother-in-law, A. J. Scott, of Chicago, when it was struck by the torpedo from a German submarine. She climbed upon a chair and got a life preserver that was in her stateroom. Then Mr. Scott came to her and helped her to the deck. Mr. Frohman hurried up with a life preserver, which he handed to Mr. Scott, and then ran away and got another one, which he gave to Miss Jolivet. The witness testified that Mr. Scott asked:

"Where is your life preserver?" and Mr. Frohman with a smile replied:

"As we are going to die we might as well die here."

Then, according to the witness, he waited with them while the vessel listed until her decks were awash. It was in reply to another question that Mr. Frohman said:

"Why fear death? It is the most beautiful adventure in life."

Miss Jolivet described her plunge into the ocean and her subsequent rescue.

The total of the claims filed against the company represented in sixty-seven different suits is nearly $6,000,000. One complaint, that followed closely the lines of the German declaration that the vessel carried ammunition and that the explosion was from within, was amended, by permission of Judge Mayer, by striking out this clause. The court permitted the introduction of the testimony taken by Lord Mersey in England on the claims, where forty witnesses were examined.

If the court allows the claim for limitation the company will be liable for not more than the value of the salvage and passage money, which is about $91,000. The hearing is to determine who, if anybody, except the German Government, was responsible for the destruction of the ship. If the ship's Captain and the company are exonerated an injunction will issue stopping the suits. If the Captain is found to have been blameworthy the limitation sought will be granted, but if it is found that the company was solely at fault the present proceedings will be dismissed and the suits, without limitation, will be pressed.

Among counsel appearing in the proceedings are Lord, Day & Lord for the Cunard Company; Hunt, Hill & Betts, George L. Ellsworth, Allen B. A. Bradley, Lucius H. Beers, and J. Parker Kirlin, for a number of the plaintiffs. The hearing will be continued today.

MANY WAR MEASURES SIGNED BY WHITMAN

Text Books Containing Seditious Matter to be Banished—New Guard Officially Recognized.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—Governor Whitman spent today signing war measures passed by the Legislature.

He signed two bills introduced by Senator Slater of Westchester. One prohibits the use in public schools of any textbook containing matter seditious in character, disloyal to the United States or favorable to the cause of any foreign country with which the United States is now at war. Books of such a nature now in use will be passed upon by a commission established by the act to examine all text books of doubtful nature. If found contrary to the spirit of the law they will be taken out of the schools on Sept. 1. The commission is to comprise the State Education Commissioner and two persons to be designated by the State Board of Regents. The other bill requires the State Board of Regents to prescribe courses of patriotic instruction in all the schools of the State.

The Governor also signed Senator Stivers's bill, which officially recognises the New York Guard as the successor to the old National Guard which was inducted into Federal service. The same rules and regulations which governed the National Guard apply to the New York Guard with the exception that a Brigadier General is placed in direct command instead of a Major General. The last commandant of the National Guard was Major Gen. O'Ryan. He is succeeded under the terms of the Stivers bill by Brig. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, Adjutant General of the State.

The bill permitting corporations organized under the laws of the State, to contribute to the various war relief funds from their capital stock, became law today. The bill prescribes that donations up to 1 per cent. of the capital stock may be made without notifying the stockholders. Over that amount stockholders must be notified.

Another war measure which became law today was Senator Cromwell's bill providing for free passage through toll bridges, gates, and ferries for all members of the military or naval forces of the United States, only, however, for the duration of the war. Government property in their possession is not to be charged for.

Teachers retired upon pension for disability hereafter will be subject to reexamination at any time within two years after retirement, and if the disability is found no longer to exist the pension may be stopped under the provisions of a bill which was signed today.

In keeping with the daylight saving law, the Governor signed the Shewers bill, which will require automobilists to light their lights a half hour before sunset, instead of one hour at present.

Hereafter defendants in murder cases who have not sufficient money to employ expert witnesses, may secure their assistance by State aid, in view of the Governor's approval of the Wellington bill. Five hundred dollars is the outside sum to be so spent.

Governor Whitman announced tonight he would hold a hearing on Assemblyman Youker's bill relative to registering titles to real property under the Torrens system, on April 24, at 2:30 o'clock P. M., in the executive chamber. On the same day at noon he will hold a hearing on Senator Knight's bill which would bring within tax rights of the State all intangible property for transfer tax purposes. The bill abolishes the distinction between tangible and intangible property.

E. R. Southee, Air Instructor, Hurt.

HOUSTON, Texas, April 17.—Earl R. Southee of Binghamton, N. Y., civilian instructor at Ellington Field, was seriously injured and an aviation cadet slightly hurt at the aviation camp here today, when their airplane fell about 100 feet. Southee is in the field hospital, but his injuries may not prove fatal, physicians said. The camp at Ellington is for Americans only.

FIRE ON GOVERNORS ISLAND.

Flames in Infantry Barracks Soon Reported Under Control.

Shortly before 12 o'clock last night fire was discovered in the barracks occupied by a company of the 22d Regiment of Infantry on Governors Island. The sentry on guard gave the alarm by firing two shots from his rifle and fire call summoned the officers and men of the post to fight the flames. In accordance with the army's custom since the war, an alarm was turned in at New York City Fire Headquarters as soon as the fire was discovered and the fireboat New York was dispatched to the island under command of Deputy Fire Chief Worth.

The firemen on arriving at once sent in another alarm for apparatus, and the Governors Island ferry carried over two engines and a truck to help. Nothing could be learned from Governors Island last night concerning the origin of the fire nor the extent of damage. Firemen reported a little while after midnight, however, that the blaze "was under control."

FAREWELLS AT THE OPERA.

Crowds Hear "Carmen" at Matinee and "L'Amore dei Tre Re" at Night.

The season's farewells at the Metropolitan brought two opera performances yesterday to great crowds, a special matinee of "Carmen" with Farrar being followed by "L'Amore dei Tre Re" last night with Caruso. Both these stars were to have one appearance more, while others who took their leave were Muzio and Amato in Montemezzi's opera and Martinelli and Whitehill in that of Bizet.

Marie Sundelius made a real success at the matinee as Micaela, a role she had sung recently on the company's trips to Brooklyn and Philadelphia. Monteux conducted in the afternoon and Papi in the evening.

Italian Division Gives a Concert.

The Italian division of the International Music Festival Chorus held a concert in Carnegie Hall last evening, including airs from operas "I Lombardi" and "Don Carlos," unfamiliar today. There were sacred pieces by the Mount Carmel Chorus, under the Rev. F. Magliocco.

The Meaning of Gillette Service

Gillette Service Experts and all Gillette dealers want to be of service to every Gillette user.

They will show you that little knack of the Gillette shave — how to prepare the face for shaving; the correct angle stroke; the adjustment for a light or a close shave.

Bring in your Gillette, have it looked over. It may be damaged, bent, out of alignment — they may make some valuable suggestions or put your razor in shape free of charge.

Try this when you shave tomorrow morning.

Lather the beard thoroughly, and rub well in — that's essential with any shave — put in a new blade and screw the handle down tight. Then if you want a specially close shave, unscrew the handle a part turn.

Hold the razor naturally and easily, and tilt the handle so you can just feel the blade engage the beard.

(Here's where some men make a mistake. They tilt the handle up or down too much and make a scraper of a Gillette instead of a razor.)

Then shave with short, slanting strokes. It doesn't require any brute force to shave with a Gillette — the razor does the work. No Stropping — No Honing.

Keep the edge of the blade as nearly flat against the skin as you can. Any man will catch the knack of using his Gillette in one or two shaves so he won't feel the slightest pull. In fact, when the Gillette is properly used the beard slips off without your knowing it.

The all-important thing is to lather well, and hold the razor easily, with the handle tilted so the blade just engages the beard.

Explorer Reports His Plans for Long Ice Trip from Herschel Island Upset.

STRANGE FEVER BEGAN IT

Several Deaths in Neighborhood and Explorer Sent an Indian to Fort Yukon for Doctor.

By VILHJALMUR STEFANSSON.

[A press dispatch from Fairbanks, Alaska, dated Tuesday, stated that word had just come that Stefansson was low with typhoid fever at Herschel Island and a doctor had started on a 300-mile journey from Port Yukon to give succor.]

Special to The New York Times.

HERSCHEL ISLAND, March 27, (via Fort Yukon, April 13 and Toronto, April 17.)—I had planned an ice trip to last eighteen months and intended to travel 200 miles offshore and then camp on solid ice and drift on it till the Spring of 1919, living on game, as usual. All plans and equipment were complete for a start in the middle of February. I was then taken with severe fever in January.

I was nursed at the police barracks by Constables Lamont and Brockley and Messrs. Johnson and Wittenbuerg, and had constant medical attention by Mr. Fred Fry, missionary.

The nature of the fever was doubtful. I was too weak to sign my own name by the end of January. I have since had pneumonia and two attacks of pleurisy and now other serious complications. The sickness has altered all the ice plans.

The ice exploring party commanded by Storkerson left Barter Island on Feb. 23, and intended to take the moving ice at Cross Island probably the first week in March. The Storkerson advance party will be two sleds and four men, besides himself. The number of support parties is at present unknown to me, but probably about six sleds, with ten or more men, to return in two or three relays.

Storkerson will not likely spend the Winter on the ice. The course he will take will depend on the currents found. Should the off-shore currents be to the west, he will probably go to Wrangell Island by Attack, about 100 miles outside the Kariuk track. As they will be well-equipped and competent men, they can safely spend a while on Wrangell Island, as we know both game and fuel are abundant there. Should the current not be westerly, they will probably return to Alaska this Spring and come home on the Polar Bear. The Polar Bear will, in ordinary season, leave Winter quarters at Barter Island early in August and go to Nome late in August.

There have been several deaths during the last Autumn and Winter in the Mackenzie Delta and at Herschell Island, both among the whites and the natives, from an unknown fever which came to the country last Summer, probably by the Mackenzie River, but possibly by a shipment from San Francisco. There are two cases now at Herschell.

We are sending to Fort Yukon in the hope of getting a doctor to take charge of the situation. As my own case is perhaps the most serious, I am taking the initiative. The Indian who carries out this telegram is to bring a doctor to Herschell Island, if he will come. The police patrol from Rampart House is expected inside of two weeks. When they return further news will be sent, especially if any of Storkerson's support party have returned.

TRAINS BUMP IN SUBWAY.

Derailed Car Halts West Farms Line Traffic Three Hours.

A collision between a passenger car and a work train in the subway under the Harlem River at 6 A. M. yesterday, stopped traffic on the Bronx Park division for more than three hours, and passengers from the Bronx were forced to take other routes downtown.

The material damage was slight and no one was hurt. The consequent rush to the Third Avenue elevated station at 149th Street developed a scramble which required the attention of the police.

Between 135th Street and Mott Avenue, where the collision occurred, there is a 3 per cent. grade which the work train could not climb because of a blown fuse. The passenger train came along behind on the southbound track and shoved the work train up the incline. Just as the work train reached the top, where it was expected to go on with its own power, it slipped back, hit the front car of the passenger train, and was derailed.

EXPELLED DOCTOR TO FIGHT

Asserts Loyalty and Denounces Action of Kings Medical Society.

Dr. James P. Warbasse of 384 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, whose name was dropped on Tuesday night from the membership roll of the Medical Society of Kings County because of a published letter on compulsory military training, written by him and considered by those who moved against him as a slur on the medical profession, said yesterday that he was preparing to fight to the utmost against the action of the society. In the letter which caused the trouble and which appeared in the Long Island Medical Journal in February, Dr. Warbasse said:

"Furthermore, no one knows better than the physician that the rich will be able to obtain certificates of physical disability excusing their sons from service, while the poor will not. We know how current and prevalent these documents will become and what a fruitful source of income they will be."

This was called to the attention of the society by Dr. Henry A. Fairbairn, and on his motion the name of Dr. Warbasse was dropped from the roster. It was also decided to send to the Department of Justice a copy of the minutes of the meeting with a copy of the offending letter. Dr. Warbasse yesterday asserted that the society's action was uncalled for and his friends within the society would move at the next meeting to have the action rescinded.

"It was not right and they must take it back," he added. "I cannot allow it to be said, even by implication, that I am disloyal. That is absolutely untrue. I am in the fullest accord with the war views of President Wilson and I am supporting and shall continue to support to the limit his enunciation of our war aims."

DR. FINLEY ELIMINATED.

Educator Is Not a Candidate for City Superintendency.

The name of Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education, has been eliminated by his own action from the list of candidates for the City Superintendency of Public Schools, made vacant by the resignation of Dr. William H. Maxwell. President Somers of the Board of Education wrote recently to Dr. Finley asking him if he would accept the office if it should be tendered to him. In his reply Dr. Finley said:

Your question is one which any man in the schools of the United States should be proud to be asked. And no one can be more gratified than I to be asked it because of its intimation of continuing confidence on the part of the city to which I gave ten years of my life.

I have seriously considered the matters which the question raises, though I understand that the question carries no promise, explicit or implied; and I have reached the clear conclusion that I could not accept even if the position were to be unanimously offered me.

At the conclusion of yesterday's meeting of the Board of Education Mr. Somers said that it would have given him great satisfaction to have seen Dr. Finley succeed Dr. Maxwell. There is much discussion about the new City Superintendent, but the Board of Education has not yet decided whom it will appoint. It is possible that the salary of the office will be increased from $10,000 to $15,000 a year. Mr. Somers said yesterday that this post was so important that $15,000 might not be considered too much to pay the incumbent.

FUSION WITNESSES HEARD.

Grand Jury Takes Testimony in Election Fund Case.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury which indicted William Hamlin Childs, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Fusion Committee of 1917, and ex-Governor William Sulzer and ex-State Senator Josiah T. Newcomb in connection with the Fusion fund in the campaign for the re-election of Mayor Mitchel in November, called Misha Appelbaum as a witness yesterday. The nature of his testimony at the secret session of the jury was not disclosed.

George W. Perkins and F. Carter Childs were also witnesses before the jury yesterday. Mr. Perkins was a large contributor to the Fusion campaign, but he took no other active part in it.

The indicted men will be required to appear at 10:30 o'clock this morning to enter pleas before Justice Goff in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. John B. Stanchfield and John W. Bolte, attorneys for Childs and Newcomb, will probably ask for time to file motions to the indictment, including a request for permission to inspect the Grand Jury minutes. It was not known at the Criminal Court Building who would appear as counsel for Sulzer.

More indictments in the Fusion inquiry are expected to be returned by the Grand Jury. The inquiry will continue today and then adjourn until Monday, to permit Assistant District Attorney A. J. Talley to review and consider the evidence thus far presented. Justice Goff announced yesterday that he would be ready to impose sentences tomorrow on the election inspectors charged with certifying false returns of the ballots cast in certain election districts at the Republican primary on Sept. 19. About fifty of the accused men have pleaded guilty. These men are expected to escape with a lighter penalty than those who have been convicted by jury trials.

Democratic and Republican Organizations Plan to Hold 1,000 Meetings in New York.

DAY'S SALES $21,774,400

Nathan Straus' Organizes Society to Protect Liberty Bond Subscribers from "Scalpers."

The Bond Division of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported yesterday $21,774,400 in additional subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan, which raised to $297,449,300 the district's total for the first nine days of the four weeks' campaign. Thus far the daily average of subscriptions has been about $33,000,000, compared with $36,000,000, the daily average based on the Treasury Department's quota of $900,000,000, and $60,000,000, the average figured on aggregate subscriptions of $1,500,000,000, the aim of the committee. Excepting for the first day of the campaign, when applications were in excess of $106,000,000, the daily average for eight of the nine days has been around $24,000,000. In the Second Liberty Loan campaign the total for the first nine days was $228,482,250.

Examination of subscriptions thus far announced shows that the large corporations are not applying for as large amounts as they did in the First and Second Liberty Loan drives. This fact has attracted considerable attention among bankers, and it is understood that the Liberty Loan Committee, at its meeting today, will give careful attention to this situation, and perhaps issue a public statement on the subject. It is the opinion of bankers that the payment of taxes is no excuse, and that the corporations, like individuals, should subscribe liberally to the loan, and, if necessary, borrow funds from the banks for carrying the bonds.

2,100 Subscribe in Small District.

On the other hand, one of the most gratifying features of the present campaign has been the excellent results obtained from the point of view of the number of subscriptions. As an illustration of the general progress of the loan in this regard there was cited yesterday the instance of one small precinct in Spring Street, which has collected to date more than 2,100 subscriptions, mostly from persons of Italian birth. This compares with 150 subscriptions for the whole of the loan campaign in October. It is confidently expected that when the final figures are compiled they will show one or two million more subscribers in the New York District than were obtained in the previous drive, when the total was about 2,182,000.

The following table gives the quotas, yesterday's recorded subscriptions, and totals to date for each of the subdivisions of the New York Reserve district:

		Subscriptions.

Nathan Straus Speaks at Bell.

Nathan Straus, speaking yesterday at the Liberty Bell, at City Hall, announced that he had organized a society to protect Liberty Loan subscribers from "scalpers," who buy their holdings at unfair prices. He said the plan of the society was to help out bond purchasers who, because of an emergency, found it necessary to realize cash on their bonds. It is proposed that the bonds so bought by the society should be paid for in full, with interest. Mr. Straus stated that he would put $50,000 in the fund and that others would do likewise. It is understood that the society's activities will be restricted to the accommodation of persons of small means who have invested their savings in $50 and $100 bonds.

The New York Cotton Exchange will hold a rally this afternoon with Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Company, as the chief speaker.

Saturday has been fixed as "New York Guard Day," and, according to the arrangements made by Adjt. Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, nearly all of the 18,000 guardsmen will participate in a parade which will be Statewide. Liberty Loan rallies will be held in every principal city of the State.

The choir of St. Patrick's Cathedral will sing patriotic airs in front of the edifice on Sunday. Cardinal Farley has given his indorsement to the plan to have the church choirs give patriotic concerts after the services on that day, and he has written to the rectors of all parishes in the Archdiocese urging their support and patricipation in this plan to aid the Liberty Loan.

The Democratic and Republican organizations of the city will unite forces for one night next week to arrange for 1,000 Liberty Loan meetings. Every district clubhouse will be used and in addition there will be street corner meetings in various parts of the city. Plans for the meetings were made at a conference of county Chairmen which was attended by Charles F. Murphy, Samuel S. Koenig, John H. McCooey, and Jacob A. Livingston.

Gerard and Elkus Speak.

Wall Street accorded an enthusiastic reception yesterday to James W. Gerard and Abram I. Elkus, formerly American Ambassadors to Germany and Turkey, respectively, when they appeared on the steps of the Sub-Treasury. Both said that while the allied nations were going through a crisis because of Germany's gains on the western front, they felt confident that the lines established by Foch and Haig would hold, and that America would be in time to deliver a crushing blow to the foe.

There was much cheering when Mr. Gerard related a conversation he had with the Kaiser on Oct. 25, 1915, in which the German ruler thrust his face forward and said to the American Ambassador: "I want you to remember that I will take no nonsense from America after this war."

"That was the time you ought to have handed him one," yelled a man in the crowd.

"You're right. I wish I had," the ex-Ambassador replied.

Mr. Elkus said that the Government and the President should have the loyal support of the American people, both with money and service, because the war in which the United States was engaged was not one for territory or aggression or indemnity, "but a war so that the great principles of liberty and justice may be established throughout the world, not only for our allies and ourselves, but for the small nations of the world, so that their peoples may live in peace and comfort."

Hungarians Active for Loan.

The Hungarian colony in this city has jumped into the Liberty Loan campaign with an initial subscription of $50,000. This sum was raised yesterday at the organization meeting of the American Hungarian Liberty Loan Committee. Twenty-five Hungarian organizations were represented at the meeting.

At a meeting of the employes of the office of County Clerk Schneider yesterday afternoon Mr. Schneider appealed to his men to subscribe to the Third Liberty Loan, and every person in the office took one or more bonds. The County Clerk headed the list with a $1,000 subscription, while Deputy County Clerk Selden and Counsel Max S. Levine took $500 each, and Deputies Warder and Best, who had already taken bonds elsewhere, subscribed $100 each.

A large fragment of a cathedral bell, which was shattered when German guns were trained on the edifice in their first invasion of France, was installed yesterday at "Liberty Land" in the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory at Twenty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue. The cathedral, which was situated near the Marne, was under fire for several days before the Germans were thrown back and the building was badly shattered. The part of the bell which was shipped to this country by the French Government for "Liberty Land" contains a figure of Christ on the Cross. An altar and other relics from ruined French churches were installed with the bell. Another addition to the material on display is a marble bust of Napoleon which occupied a niche in a chateau near the Marne until the bust was broken into three pieces by a German shell.

Women in Charge of Show.

"Liberty Land" was in charge yesterday of the Women's Auxiliary of the 165th Regiment. Admission will be by ticket today, when a program of speeches and drills will be carried out by the Silk Division of the Liberty Loan Committee.

TROOPS SELL BONDS BY MAIL.

Soldiers at Camp Dix Hope to Dispose of $20,000,000.

CAMP DIX, Wrightstown, N. J., April 17.—Selling Liberty bonds by mail order in an effort to raise $20,000,000 is the latest method adopted by the soldiers here in the drive for the sale of these bonds. The soldiers at the cantonment are not called on this time to purchase any of the bonds, but they felt they could still do their bit in the sale. Officers got together and perfected plans whereby each man is asked to sell, not buy, ten $50 bonds, and now the men are speeding up this work.

One of the Y. M. C. A. huts has already sold more than $3,000 worth of bonds in this drive. The men are sending post cards, letters and postal cards to the folks "back home," pleading with them to purchase at least one of their quota of bonds. Relatives are also appealed to to aid the drive, and it is expected that the sum realized by the men at the cantonment will come up to expectations.

LOAN TOTAL PAST THE BILLION MARK

the women are doing in the present Liberty Loan campaign. Interest in the women's committees is said to be very general and they are doing excellent work, both to help communities to obtain their quota and to roll up oversubscriptions.

Women were especially helpful, it is declared, in helping Oregon and Iowa to subscribe their quotas. Mrs. J. O. Miller of Pittsburgh, Chairman for Pennsylvania, reported today that in the first six days of the drive women sold $12,000,000 worth of bonds in half the counties of Pennsylvania. Women in forty-five Indiana counties were responsible for the sale of $4,492,850 worth of bonds, according to a report received today from Mrs. Fred H. McCullough of Fort Wayne, the Indiana women's Chairman.

Mrs. W. G. McAdoo Active.

Mrs. W. G. McAdoo, Chairman of the National Woman's Liberty Loan Committee, conferred today with committee Chairman in the Chicago district, and then proceeded to Arizona, where she will meet Secretary McAdoo. She will accompany him on the rest of his tour, holding daily meetings with Women's Liberty Loan committees. The following additional dates were announced today for Secretary McAdoo's tour: Albuquerque, N. M., April 24; Wichita, Kan., April 26; Oklahoma City, Okla., April 27.

The Boston and San Francisco districts were running neck and neck tonight in the honor flag competition, Boston having awarded 236 flags and San Francisco 235. More persons have bought bonds in the San Francisco district already than were sold there in either the first or second loans, it was said.

Grand View, Texas, reported today that only six taxpayers within the limits had failed to buy Liberty bonds, and the telegram added significantly, "We will get them yet."

Director General McAdoo authorized the announcement that railroad companies would be permitted to invest in Third Liberty Loan bonds any funds not needed for other purposes and available for investment in securities.

The total number of subscribers, it is said here, will run in excess of that of any previous loan. The Chicago Federal Reserve Bank undertook to find out the number of actual subscribers in each of its States in the first eight days of the drive, with the following result: Iowa, 275,000 subscribers; Indiana, 105,000; Illinois, (outside of Chicago,) 95,000; Michigan, 72,000; Wisconsin, 26,000; City of Chicago, 60,000.

The foreign language division of the Chicago Committee reports more than $5,000,000 of sales, with work only beginning. Chicago schools have taken nearly $2,000,000.

Advertisements Omitted

Owing to the demand for advertising space in The New York Times it is frequently necessary to omit advertisements. On Tuesday and Wednesday of this week 46 columns (13,616 agate lines) were omitted.

Discrimination in the assignment of space is forced upon The Times by these conditions.

Preference is given, therefore, to advertisements having news value and to those for which copy, including matrices, cuts or drawings, for the daily edition, are delivered before 6 P. M. on the day previous to publication; and to those for the Sunday edition for which finally approved copy is delivered before Friday night.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 1918.

DO YOUR PART.

Subscriptions of the New York district to the Third Liberty Loan are snail-like. What is the trouble? Are the big subscribers waiting to come in at the end? Are the little subscribers depending upon the big ones?

This loan cannot be a triumph for the Allies and a hard blow at Germany, it cannot be the significant patriotic national voice it should be, unless Tom, Dick, and Harry, everybody, all our great democracy, buys bonds. Not on the resources, mighty and ready as they are, of rich men and institutions, not on powerful banks and corporations, but on the "plain, common, ordinary" citizen and citizeness, on the small subscriber, rests the prosperity of this loan. Innumerable, irresistible, must be the multitude of subscribers, our national army of savers backing up our soldiers and sailors, backing up our British comrades, fighting so continuously, so heroically, with their backs against the wall.

Buy today! Buy all you can! Do your stint in the fight for freedom!

MR. SCHWAB FOR SHIPBUILDING.

Our experience with shipbuilding has been so unlike what we wished that heartiest good wishes attend the new administration under Mr. SCHWAB. It is no disparagement of his predecessors to say that no one of them combined so many qualifications for success as he possesses. No other had the same prestige as he as a captain of industry in general, as a shipbuilder in particular, and as a man of character accustomed to succeed in proportion to the difficulties which confront him. It is to be expected that no more small points will be raised without disaster to those who raise them. Before he accepted his duty he asked and received the personal pledge of co-operation by all his associates.

We must have ships, regardless of whose feelings are hurt or whose plans are disturbed, and there are signs that the time of preparation and infantile illnesses in the new industry is at its end. The trouble has been chiefly that Uncle Sam is a heavyweight, and comes through his preparation slowly. He has thrown off overconfidence due to comparisons with those not in his class, and excess of fat due to living too high for too long, and sees that there lies ahead a finish fight with a fighter of his own class. He sees what has been the result of a fight without gloves with a professional who fights foul in rough and tumble, and he is in a temper for action.

What is required of the United States, in the person of the Director General of Shipbuilding, is that he shall produce under high pressure more vessels in less time than there is any record of all the world producing in any year. The plant he has to work with is 130 yards, building wooden, cement, and steel ships in multiples of hundreds, and of all sizes. The progress already made is better than the quarrels of the leaders suggest. There are twenty-eight keels of steel ships laid in one yard. Twenty-one wooden vessels have been launched, twenty more will be launched this month, a half hundred should be in the water before July, and a million tons before New Year's. Fifty million feet of lumber for them are now en route. Cement ships are a novelty, but they can be launched in companies, and $50,000,000 has been asked for on their account. Judge GARY is a man of his word, and he promises a steel ship each ten days, beginning within a month. The biggest shipbuilding plant in the world has received another contract instead of being indicted for the liberality of its expenditures and the magnitude of its plans.

Thus far the West has beaten the East in this national competition, but the race will be won on the last lap, and the West may be out of breath before the East breaks into its stride. Seattle holds the record with the delivery of twelve steel ships from a single yard, and sixty-four days is par or bogey for the effete East to beat. The hope of the East lies in the fact that rivets never were driven so fast as by one of its gangs. It is a noble competition, under the eyes of the world. "America has failed us so far as shipbuilding is concerned," said Mr. BARNES in the House of Commons. It was early to use those words, when we had scarcely got our coat off at a job which requires the building of houses for workmen before they can be assembled for work at which we are new, and the laying of ways before the laying of keels. Happily Mr. BARNES spoke only for himself, and without the authority of those who contradicted him because they knew the difficulty of what we were undertaking. "America has not failed us," said Lloyd's List, and only requires time. Met in that spirit, there will be no soldiering on the job by either capital or labor. Both are on their good behavior. We have everything necessary except time. Of that there should be no waste, and no counting of anything else.

ALIEN AND DOMESTIC SABOTAGE.

The Sabotage bill has gone to the President without the clause forbidding munitions strikes in wartime. The right which the stronger British trade unions surrendered voluntarily and from patriotism was asserted by American unionists in a manner which they may regret when it is recalled against them. Nobody has asked anything of labor which was not to be paid for on the highest terms ever known. Nothing was proposed except that labor should not strike against national interests in a life-and-death struggle. And labor's spokesman denounced that as "deviltry and folly." Worse yet, Senators adopted his argument that you cannot make men work by law. It was not proposed to make any man work by law. The only proposal was that there should not be a conspiracy not to work on Government work, with all the accompaniments which are too familiar. On the day that Senator HOLLIS was capable of arguing in that manner a German was examined for jury duty in Chicago. He was asked:

> As a member of a labor union, do you believe in the right to strike?
> Yes; but I don't believe in murder and slaughter. I believe in a strict enforcement of the law and protection of property rights under all circumstances.

The view of Congress is less admirable than the view of the German unionist. His position is more representative of sound opinion than that of the lawmakers.

On the point of sabotage it is necessary to remember that the crime is not imported, like the word. In the words of Attorney General GREGORY: "We have quite as much trouble, if "not more, with native and natural-"ized Americans as we have with "enemy aliens." On the day that the Sabotage bill was passed the Attorney General received a letter from Representative CURRIE of Michigan, reading:

> It is a startling fact that in Detroit alone Federal agents and operatives of a patriotic organization have obtained proof in more than 1,000 cases, with rarely a prosecution. Almost every hamlet in the country has appealed to the Federal authorities for the suppression of disloyalty. Rare are the instances in which relief has been obtained.

In one case cited one mechanic willfully disabled a machine and caused a loss of production of thirteen airplane engines. Wartime is not a time for tenderness toward strikes on Government work and sabotage in the interest of the enemy. The country has no reason for patience with the leaders of either labor or politics who play politics with public interests. When even a German unionist repudiates excess of zeal, it is time for his views to be supported generally, and that includes the correction of those who ought to be ashamed to need it.

PROMOTION OF MEDIOCRITY.

The late Senator STONE of Missouri came to be Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations simply by seniority. It is no injustice to his memory to record the fact that neither his studies, his acquirements, nor the character of his mind made him the most suitable, or even a suitable, person for that post. Time was his chief merit. Now death and time are to appoint his successor. The next man on the list happens to be Senator HITCHCOCK of Nebraska.

Of Mr. HITCHCOCK's singular zeal to alter international law for the benefit of Germany before the entrance of the United States into the war it would be impolite, it might even be unfair, to speak. Let bygones be bygones. Not against him personally, but against the system of promotion, with no thought of special talent or merit, but for mere length of service on the committee, must just objection be made. It is true that nothing known, or visible, in his public services in either branch of Congress marks him as fit to be Chairman of this committee, whose work must be momentous in the present and in the future, since the old comparative isolation of the United States from the world is ended, since in Europe, in Asia, in Mexico, Central and South America, in the Caribbean as in the Pacific, are vital American connections and interests, the multifarious interrelations and interpenetrations of country with country in a world made small by steam and electricity and the airplane.

The peace that is to end this war, new treaties, guaranteeing new relations, all the great international rôles, economic and political, of the United States hereafter, will bring a graver responsibility to the Senate in its constitutional functions as to foreign affairs; will require an adequate and accomplished Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

How long could a great corporation be run successfully on the promotion-by-seniority plan? The present Senate Committee on Foreign Relations consists, with the Democratic vacancy left by Mr. STONE's death, of nine Democrats and seven Republicans. The nine Democrats are HITCHCOCK of Nebraska, JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS of Mississippi, SWANSON of Virginia, POMERENE of Ohio, MARCUS AURELIUS SMITH of Arizona, SAULSBURY of Delaware, PITTMAN of Nevada, SHIELDS of Tennessee, THOMAS of Colorado. With the largest allowance for the capabilities, virtues, and golden gifts of these gentlemen, Mr. WILLIAMS is probably the only one who is known to the country at large; and even Mr. WILLIAMS is occasionally a little ill-advised and sudden, sound as is his patriotism and various as is his talent. The Republican members are LODGE, WILLIAM ALDEN SMITH of Michigan, McCUMBER of North Dakota, BORAH of Idaho, BRANDEGEE of Connecticut, FALL of New Mexico, KNOX of Pennsylvania. Subtracting Mr. SMITH of Michigan, subtracting, if you choose to be rigid, Mr. McCUMBER, you still have five Republican members who outweigh most of the Democratic names. Mr. KNOX has been Secretary of State. Mr. LODGE, by universal admission, is fit to be. So is Senator BORAH. Why should the rule of seniority force the succession of Mr. HITCHCOCK to a Chairmanship for which he has small other recognizable qualifications? The Senate might better choose its committee Chairmen by shaking dice than by this rule. There would be a better chance, probably, of getting the fittest men.

Now, when war pitilessly casts down figureheads and upsets conventionalities, is the Senate to stick to the rule of mediocrities?

THE SOLDIERS OF POLAND.

Once more we read the familiar announcement that "several Polish "legions have been dissolved by the "German military authorities be-"cause of wholesale treason in their "ranks." Since last Summer, when General PILSUDSKI, creator of the Polish legions, was forced to surrender with several of the regiments which he had organized under Austro-German supervision because he and the legions developed a tendency to fight any enemy of Poland, whether from the east or the west, the Central Powers have been having their troubles with Polish troops. PILSUDSKI and many of his legionaries are still interned; others, technically German or Austrian subjects, were reorganized into Polish legions of the German and Austrian armies. It is apparently these of whose "treason" we have been reading for some weeks past, treason which more than once has brought about pitched battles in which the Poles succumbed to superior numbers.

Meanwhile the Polish army of General DOWBOR-MUSNICKI, organized under the supervision of the Polish National Committee and with the approval of the Allies, has signed a treaty with the Germans by which it is recognized as a "neutral army." This neutrality, however, may seem to the disinterested observer to be somewhat vitiated by the fact that the Poles are holding the centre of Germany's eastern line for the Central Powers, and in case of attack (possible, of course, only from Russia) they will co-operate with the Germans if necessary and fight under German command.

It may be that DOWBOR-MUSNICKI, like the Regency Council set up by the Germans in Warsaw, thinks that the national cause can better be served by temporizing with an enemy who is actually in occupation. This is a matter of temperament. The party dominant in the National Committee found it convenient, before the war, to try to live in harmony with Czarism, and has been violently attacked by other Polish groups on account of it. It is reassuring in view of the behavior of its army to find its representatives in the Conference of Oppressed Austrian Nationalities at Rome asserting that Germany is the principal enemy of Poland, and that the disintegration of Austria-Hungary is the only way in which they can obtain their independence from Germany.

But from a sentimental point of view it can hardly be denied that it is the recurrent rebelliousness of the legions, who hate the Germans enough to fight them, that furnishes the brightest hope for Poland's future. The discord of political parties which ruined the old Polish kingdom has been painfully apparent, since the war began, in Moscow, Paris, and London as well as in Warsaw. Meanwhile the suspicions entertained by neighboring nationalities of the Polish landed aristocracy and Polish imperialists have prevented co-operation among the nationalities of Eastern Europe and worked to the great advantage of the Germans.

The attempt to tear off a corner of Poland to satisfy the Ukraine had a good effect in uniting Polish sentiment, and its impressive protest against this "new partition" the Council of Regency appeared to deserve for the first time the title which it assumed in that manifesto, "the symbol of the nation's independence." But a more effective symbol is PILSUDSKI with his legionaries. A forerunner who fights, and it may be fails, has always been an invaluable asset to the spiritual side of a national movement. What JOHN BROWN was to the men who followed LINCOLN, what the Americans in the Foreign Legion and the Lafayette Escadrille were to awakening American sentiment in the early years of this war, what Colonel CHRISTODOULOS, resisting the German-Bulgarian advance to the Aegean, was to Greek liberalism struggling under the muzzle put upon it by CONSTANTINE and Baron SCHENCK, this PILSUDSKI and the legionaries are coming to be to Poland.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Irishmen Advocate Conscription. Statements of the position of the United States as regards Irish home rule and conscription, made by DAVID LLOYD GEORGE in the House of Commons Tuesday, indicated a certain misunderstanding of American sentiment on his part, and more than hinted the possibility that he does not fully realize the changes in opinion brought about here in recent years, and especially since the war began.

He does not realize, apparently, that the great majority of Irish-Americans, like the great majority of Americans in general, while believing as strongly as ever that Ireland should have home rule, are as firmly convinced that the matter of first importance at this time is to win the war with Germany. They are convinced, too, that victory over Germany means as much to Ireland as it does to England, to France, or to the United States, and that for her not to do her full share in bringing the war to the right termination, to withhold her full aid from the Allies, is as treasonable to Ireland's own interests as it is to those of liberty, democracy, and civilization.

There is, indeed, in the United States, a group of Irishmen, including a few Irish-Americans, whose ancient animosity toward England blinds them to Germany's crimes and makes them auxiliaries, simply because she, too, hates Great Britain. But these men do not speak for America or for Irish-Americans as a class. The real voice of America's citizens of Irish birth or descent is to be heard in the resolutions adopted at a meeting of Irish-Americans held in Chattanooga on Sunday and printed on this page today. They deserve the consideration of the Irish leaders in Parliament, of the British Premier, and particularly of the men in Ireland whose antagonism to conscription, in so far as it weakens the allied line in France, endangers the lives, and may cause the death, of thousands of Irishmen who are enrolled with the American troops now at the front or hastening toward it.

As one of the speakers at the Chattanooga meeting said, "We are not living in a dead past, but in a most tragic present."

His Pacifism Not Backed by Authority. There are not a few parts of the country where a clergyman could not as safely as here forbid the members of his congregation to display the American flag in their own church, and where one would not be heard with patience when he declared that his will, not theirs, decided the question. Fortunately for the Rev. LEIGH R. URBAN—and for New York—the only active and effectual remonstrance he need apprehend is that of his own vestry, and they, while not exactly men of peace at present, are still further from being men of violence.

The Rev. Mr. URBAN of Astoria, it seems, is a pacifist. As such, he is quite consistent in saying that no good ever came of any war, and he cannot be called inconsistent for having ordered the removal from his church of a flag that had been placed there without his knowledge. He speaks, however, as a pacifist and for pacifists, not as a clergyman or for his church. His brother clergy of all degrees in the hierarchy to which he belongs are practically all of contrary mind as regards the national standard, and his church is avowedly and proudly militant, as it and most other churches have always been.

Flags, and battle flags at that, have hung in churches for ages as honored symbols of righteous causes courageously defended, and as memorials of the men who did the defending, even at the cost of their lives. The Rev. Mr. URBAN is privileged to take for opinion's sake such risk of personal opprobrium as he chooses—to be as much of a martyr as he pleases. He exceeds his rights as well as the proprieties, however, when he exposes his parishioners to the suspicion of sharing his peculiar and obnoxious views. He is to be pitied if his reading of history has revealed to him no consequences of war that justified participation in it, but pity ceases and vehement reprehension begins when he uses the powers of his position to enforce on others submission to his will in a matter concerning which their right to judge for themselves is at least as good as his.

Why Experts Are So Unpopular. There is not much mystery, or even any at all, in the dislike of "experts" that is felt and expressed by not a few people besides his Honor the Mayor. The expert is a man who goes to other men and tells them that the way in which they are doing their work is not the best way—that it is a bad, costly, or even stupid way—and that if they will only listen to him and follow his advice their work will be improved and their efficiency increased.

None of us takes pleasure in hearing talk of that sort, and the displeasure is greater in exact proportion with length of the hearer's training and experience in conducting his business, trade, or art. All that the expert says carries the implication of adverse criticism directed against the recipient of his suggestions, and usually it is criticism of that recipient's father and grandfather. Of course that is resented, and the resentment is bitterest when the expert goes ahead and gives undeniable proof that his new way of doing things is better than the old ways which have long been productive of honor and profit.

The expert, too, is always open to the convenient charge that he is not "practical"—that he is a man of theories and fads. Sometimes the charge is true—but only of the expert who claims the name without deserving it.

AN IRISH-AMERICAN APPEAL.

Ireland's Relation to the Allied Cause and Her Present Duty.

Three hundred men of Irish birth or descent met in Chattanooga Sunday evening and listened with many marks of approval to speeches by Judge Martin A. Flemming, John Twinam, Judge J. J. Lynch, T. P. McMahon, John O'Donohue, and others, all of whom expressed in the strongest terms the belief that conscription in Ireland at this time was both right and necessary. As final action at the meeting the following resolutions were adopted and their transmission by cable to John Dillon and other Irish members of Parliament was ordered:

> Whereas, we, American citizens of Irish extraction, are now involved in a war with the most formidable enemy the world of civilization has ever known; and,
> Whereas, we fully recognize that there is no race on earth in which God has more deeply implanted a love for the country of their forefathers than the Irish in America; and,
> Whereas, that love is only exceeded by the love for our own country, the United States of America, whose peace, happiness and prosperity are now menaced by the barbarous forces of the Kaiser; and,
> Whereas, an element of our fellow-Irishmen of Ireland, to whom we so cheerfully have lent our moral and financial aid in their efforts to secure a recognition of their just rights in the form of home rule for Ireland, now display an unwillingness to co-operate with us through enlistment in the ranks of our ally, Great Britain, and an unwillingness to submit to a reasonable draft law; therefore, be it
> Resolved, That we deeply regret and deplore this attitude on the part of some of our kinsmen across the water and sincerely hope that, through the wise counsels of Ireland's level-headed statesmen and the natural loyalty of the people, they may be led to see the error of their way and to lend us their much-needed aid.
> The people of this country have never faltered in their allegiance to the cause of home rule for Ireland, and we are more than ever convinced that the very principle for which we are now engaged in this war entitles Ireland to this right, and if the people of Ireland join in this great struggle for human rights no power on earth could prevent Irish home rule. But we can see no reason why any Irishman should fail to do his moral duty at this time or engage in any obstruction to the cause of the Allies, and we condemn as disloyal to the cause of human freedom any man or set of men who fails to give the cause of the Allies prompt and unqualified support at this time.

Bide-a-Wee Home to Show at a Matinee What Is Being Done.

A matinée to raise funds for the training for war work of the homeless dogs, which have been taken into the Bide-a-Wee Home, will be given in the Biltmore tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock by the Bide-a-Wee Home Association. Some of the dogs trained already for the Red Cross will be used in giving exhibitions of the work they will do with soldiers in the field, and the pets of British and Canadian officers will show what they know about war. One of these animals is Officer Rex, the pet of the late Vernon Castle.

The association has offered its home at Wantagh, L. I., as a training ground for dogs for the Red Cross and the army and it has offered to permit any society to choose some of its dogs for war work. Several dogs have been trained to gather funds for the Red Cross, and the officers of the association say that others will be trained for the same work with the money it is hoped to raise tomorrow.

The home, while trying to do this useful work, is having a hard time to make ends meet. It has some 300 dogs to feed, and scraps which used to be freely given to it are fewer. Contributions of money have also been fewer in the last months, and part of the work of the association has been abandoned. Tickets for the matinée are on sale at the headquarters at 410 East Thirty-eighth Street, and at the Biltmore.

ARMY AIRMAN DROWNS.

Lieutenant Mattern of Dayton Falls Into Bay at San Diego, Cal.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 17.—Second Lieutenant Guinn W. Mattern of Dayton was killed here today when the airplane in which he was practicing for his reserve military aviator license went into a tail spin and fell 1,500 feet into San Diego Bay.

Neither the machine nor the aviator's body had been recovered tonight.

THE CRISIS.

APRIL 12, 1918.

"Now with our backs turned to the wall, we stand,"
Said Haig; and all the world wheeled at his cry,
Straining to watch. Whatever else was planned,
Whatever else was thought of—born of gleams
Of happier dawns or hope-inspired dreams—
Was rooted up, and down the shellscarred sky
Blown like the canvas of a storm-wrecked ship,
Blown like the lava from the crater's
lip,
Blown like dead leaves upon an Autumn
gale.

They will not fail!
They are of that indomitable breed
That oft hath saved the world at need
And loosed the tyrant's yoke,
Against their sires broke
The steel of Philip, and their sea-dogs
strewed
The green depths of the wind-thrashed seas
With ships that flew his flag:
They turned at bay at Waterloo and thrust
Beneath torn Flanders' weeping sky
The pard-like Man of Destiny
Into the dust.
Again, today,
In this world-feud,
High-hearted like their sires, and mighty-thewed,
They turn at bay,
Themselves the last thin walls
That block the blood-stained Teuton's way
To Liberty's stripped halls.

They will not fail!
Within their hands keen swords, un-tarnished kept,
Within their hearts the courage of their race,
That sleeps not, nor hath slept.
Men worthy of their place!
Men of the breed that Henry led,
Men of the breed that Shakespeare sang,
Who under Nelson fought and bled,
Whose blades at Balaklava rang,
The island breed, inured to strife,
Proved in the searching flames of wars,
That holds its honor more than life,
As much the sun outshines the stars,
The breed that for its word hath won
The tribute of the world's belief,
Whose record, blazoned in the sun,
Holdeth a thousand years in fief—
They will not fail!

NEW TRAINING CAMPS TO OPEN ON MAY 15

Offer Another Chance for University, College, and Academy Men to Win Commissions.

ALSO FOR ENLISTED MEN

All Who Enter the Course Must Enlist for the War and Serve in Ranks Until Commissioned.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Secretary Baker today announced that the fourth series of Officers' Training Camps would open on May 15, at various divisional camps and cantonments, for the training of officers for the possible future needs of the army.

The schools will be conducted in specified divisions. Two per cent. of the enlisted personnel of the divisions and detached units of the regular army, National Guard, and national army, excepting the coast artillery and the various staff corps, will be designated to attend such schools, this procedure to operate through regular army channels.

These training schools also will offer another chance for men who have had military training at educational institutions under Government supervision to win commissions in the army.

Specifications issued today were in part as follows:

"All graduating members of senior divisions, reserve officers' training corps units, who have completed the course prescribed for the reserve officers' training corps, and such members of the advanced course, senior divisions, of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, who, by May 15, 1918, have completed one year of the advanced course, and also have completed 300 hours of military instruction since Jan. 1, 1917, under the supervision of an officer of the army, will be admitted to a training school.

"In addition to the above, a number of men who have had at least one year's military training under army officers at any time during the last ten years in educational institutions which have earned Government recognition will also be admitted.

"These two groups will be apportioned among the various training schools. It will be impracticable to furnish the graduates of the last ten years, who desire to apply, with application blanks through the usual channels, owing to the short period of time which will elapse before the school is put into operation.

"Any graduate of draft age who has had at least one year of military instruction at an educational institution under the supervision of an officer of the army while attending same and who desires to attend a training school, should submit without delay to the head of his educational institution or to the Professor of Military Science and Tactics of the institution a letter applying for admission to the Fourth Officers' Training School.

"All applications should be in the hands of the officials of the educational institutions not later than May 1. No applications will be received or considered by the War Department, and no applications will be given consideration if received after May 1, or if the records of the institution do not show that the applicant has had at least one year of military training, under the supervision of an officer of the army while attending the institution, or if an applicant on May 15, 1918, is younger than 20 years 9 months or older than 32 years.

"Each educational institution entitled to representation will be informed of the quota assigned to it, and instructions will be furnished as to the method of selecting its quota from those who may apply.

"Any men with qualifications set out herein, not now in the military service, who wish to take advantage of this opportunity to try for a commission as Second Lieutenant in the line of the army, should apply immediately to the educational institutions they attended, and should take particular care to follow accurately the method of application prescribed herein.

"The training schools will be conducted in specified divisions. Two per cent. of the enlisted personnel of the divisions and detached units of the regular army, National Guard, and national army, excepting the coast artillery and the various staff corps, will be designated to attend such schools.

"The men who successfully complete the course and are so recommended will be listed as eligible for commissions as Second Lieutenants, and will be commissioned as vacancies occur, in the infantry, cavalry, and field artillery."

The institutions entitled to quotas in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and the New England States are:

Connecticut.—Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs; Wesleyan University, Middletown; Yale University, New Haven; Trinity College, Hartford.

Delaware.—Delaware College, Newark.

Maine.—Bowdoin College, Brunswick; University of Maine, Orono.

Massachusetts.—Amherst College, Amherst; Harvard University, Cambridge; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge; Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst; Williams College, Williamstown.

New Hampshire.—New Hampshire College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, Durham.

New Jersey.—Rutgers College, New Brunswick; Princeton University, Princeton.

Pennsylvania.—Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg; University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; Pennsylvania Military College, Chester; University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh; Pennsylvania State College, State College; Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh.

Rhode Island.—Rhode Island State College, Kingston; Brown University, Providence.

New York.—Cornell University, Ithaca; Union College, Schenectady; St. John's School, Manlius; New York Military Academy, Cornwall-on-Hudson; Columbia University, New York City.

Vermont.—Norwich University, Northfield; University of Vermont and State Agricultural College, Burlington.

NEW DRAFT BILL REPORTED.

House Committee Rejects Amendment Raising Age to 40.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—A favorable report of the bill calling into service men who have become of draft age since the first registration date, June 15, 1917, was ordered today by unanimous vote of the House Military Affairs Committee. Chairman Dent said he expected it would become a law almost immediately. As reported it differs from the Senate measure considerably, so a conference of the two houses to harmonize their disagreement probably will be necessary.

Representative Shallenberger of Nebraska proposed an amendment to raise the draft age to forty years, insisting that the present ages would not give sufficient soldiers without calling on those who have particularly strong family ties. The committee rejected the amendment, but Mr. Shallenberger will call it up when the measure is reported to the House from the committee of the whole, in which it was considered today. An amendment removing the class exemption allowed students in divinity institutions was stricken from the bill.

The War Department estimates that 1,000,000 men will thus be added annually to the draft classes, most of them in Class 1.

Representative Hull of Iowa proposed an amendment by which the new young men would take the foot of the list in the draft classifications. This was rejected, as under the War Department plan the men will be mingled into the other classes, according to their individual qualifications, on equal terms with the men now enrolled. It is understood that registration for the new men will be on June 5.

ACCUSES MASSES MANAGER.

Volunteer Witness Says He Wanted Our War Plans to Fail.

The trial of Max Eastman, the editor; Lloyd Dell, the managing editor; C. Merrill Rogers, the business manager; Arthur Young, a cartoonist, and Josephine Bell, a contributor of The Masses, all of whom are charged with being concerned in a conspiracy to obstruct the military laws of the United States, was continued in the Federal Court before Judge Augustus N. Hand yesterday.

Richard C. Shoup, a traveling salesman of 120 West Thirty-second Street, was perhaps the most important witness examined. Mr. Shoup, who sells rapid addressing machines, testified that during business calls at the office of The Masses he had talked with the defendant Rogers.

"I was in the offices of The Masses," the witness testified, "during the latter part of last July, and in the course of my conversation with Mr. Rogers I mentioned his, Mr. Rogers's, trouble with the Government. He told me that he had succeeded in getting an injunction against Postmaster Patten restraining him from keeping the magazine out of the mails.

"He said, in substance, that The Masses was trying to uphold the rights of the people, while the Government was attempting to restrict a free press and free speech. Finally, Rogers said 'I could wish for nothing better than that the entire military and naval program of the United States should go to smash.'"

On cross-examination, Mr. Shoup said that he had volunteered to appear as a witness. "I considered it my duty," he said, "as a loyal American."

All of the other witnesses were persons who had been employed in the office of The Masses or who were connected with printing and binding concerns which did work for the magazine.

The trial will be continued at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

PASTOR FOR CALVARY.

The Rev. Dr. John R. Straton of Norfolk, Va., Called Here.

A special meeting last night of members of Calvary Baptist Church in West Fifty-seventh Street, which has not had a regular pastor for a year, voted to call the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton of Norfolk, Va. It is expected that he will accept, and occupy the pulpit on the first Sunday in May.

Dr. Straton was educated at the Mercer University, Macon, Ga.; the University of Chicago, and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky. He held the chair of oratory and literary interpretation at Mercer and Baylor Universities before active service in the ministry. His first charge was the Second Baptist Church at Chicago. He was the pastor of the Seventh Baptist Church at Baltimore, and since 1914 he has been at the First Church, Norfolk.

Members of Calvary Church said last night that the agreement reached to call a new pastor marked the settlement of all factional controversies.

HEALD KILLED BY SPIES.

Banker Believed to Have Been Victim of German Agents in Peru.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, April 17.—Evidence was to be laid before Senators Cummins and Kenyon, and Congressman James W. Good of this city, at Washington today by Samuel Heald, manager of the Panama Railroad Company, supporting charges that his brother, Paul Heald, American banker, was murdered at Lima, Peru, on Jan. 30 last. The evidence was to be transmitted to the State Department with the request that an investigation be made, as it is asserted proof will be found that Heald was murdered by German agents who feared that an investigation he was about to begin would disclose their activities in Peru.

Heald, formerly a resident of Cedar Rapids, went to Lima a year ago as the agent of the Mercantile Bank of the Americas. On the morning of Jan. 30 his body was found in an irrigation ditch. Samuel Heald, on investigating, found that the ditch had been dry the night before, but that water had been turned into it early in the morning. Heald's body arrived in New York last night and will be brought here for interment.

MEDAL FOR J. WALDO SMITH.

Engineering Societies Honor Builder of Catskill Aqueduct.

A gold medal for special achievement in engineering was given to J. Waldo Smith, chief engineer of the Board of Water Supply, last night in recognition of his work in constructing the Catskill Aqueduct, by a board of award representing the national societies in civil, mining, mechanical, and electrical engineering. The medal was established in 1902 in honor of John Fritz of Bethlehem, Penn., and is awarded not oftener than once a year in recognition of unusual work in engineering, architecture, or scientific discovery.

Ambrose Swasey of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, in awarding the medal, told Mr. Smith that he had accomplished one of the most remarkable engineering feats in history. In accepting, Mr. Smith praised his associates and subordinates and said that they had enabled the engineers to do good work by aiding in every problem.

WADSWORTH READY TO FIGHT WHITMAN

Republican Leaders, Opposed to Governor's Renomination, Assured of Senator's Support

MOVEMENT IS WIDESPREAD

Many Party Men Believe Whitman Would Prove a Weak Candidate in the Campaign.

The "drafting" of U. S. Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., to lead the fight for the Gubernatorial nomination in opposition to Governor Whitman in the Republican primaries this fall has been the topic of discussion at informal conferences held by Republican leaders in this city and Washington, D. C., during the last two weeks. Senator Wadsworth, it is learned, has given assurances to his supporters that if anti-Whitman sentiment within the Republican State organization should unite on him he would be willing to become a candidate.

It is unlikely, however, that any open move to enter Senator Wadsworth or any other candidate that may be selected in the race will be made until after the thirty day bills have been disposed of by Governor Whitman. These bills include the grist turned out by the Legislature during the last ten days prior to final adjournment. Among their number are included many measures the approval of which by the Governor is essential to the political well-being and good standing with the "folks at home" of Republican lawmakers with a hankering to occupy again the seats they have held down in the present lawmaking body.

The Republican leaders who are seeking to unite anti-Whitman sentiment in favor of Senator Wadsworth are actuated by many reasons, not the least of which is that he is an old-fashioned organization man and, in event of his election, not likely to apply his own individual notions in preference to party platform pledges. He is an up-State man, and, more than any other candidate who has been mentioned, he would be in a position to win back the farmers, now in revolt. Both he and his father, who at one time was one of the most influential cogs in the old Republican State machine, are farmers by profession.

Some have opposed the Wadsworth candidacy on the ground that he might alienate the vote of the women. Senator Wadsworth is an outspoken opponent of woman suffrage. Mrs. Wadsworth, a daughter of the late John Hay, is head of the Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage. But on the other hand, it is claimed on behalf of Senator Wadsworth that his candidacy might attract to the Republican strength, regardless of party lines, all the women opposed to the enfranchisement of their sex, while those who were advocates of woman suffrage would divide on party lines.

In the event of the Democrats making their fight this Fall with William R. Hearst or another radical as their candidate, on a radical platform, as appears to be the desire of a large element in the Democratic Party in this State, Senator Wadsworth, it is urged, would receive the bulk of the Democratic vote cast by conservatives, who on no conditions would accept Hearst and would be anxious to make certain his defeat.

About the only other candidate who has been mentioned conspicuously as an opponent to Governor Whitman who would be acceptable to the up-State Republicans is Attorney General Merton E. Lewis. One element of strength is the support he would have from the very start from his powerful home organization in Monroe County. He also has a considerable following among the farmers. In the event that he should not elect to run for the Gubernatorial nomination, Mr. Lewis, in all probability, could be renominated for his present position on the Whitman third-term ticket. William Barnes, George W. Aldridge of Monroe, John W. Dwight of Tompkins, former Republican whip in the House of Representatives; William L. Ward of Westchester, and former Senators Harvey D. Hinman of Broome and Edgar T. Brackett of Saratoga are among the active leaders in the Republican State organization who have been prominent in the search for a candidate to oppose Governor Whitman.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN KEEN.

Members of County Committee Meet to Prepare for Registration.

Every Assembly District in New York County, except one, was represented at a conference held by the Executive Committee of the Women's Division of the Republican County Committee yesterday afternoon at the headquarters of the County Committee in the Tilden Building, 105 West Fortieth Street. Miss Helen Varick Boswell, Chairman of the Women's Division, presided.

"From the talk I have had with the women associated with men as leaders of the different Assembly District organizations, I find that despite the short time we have been at the work, the districts are from 50 to 90 per cent. organized," said Miss Boswell. "Complete organization, in our terminology, contemplates not only the election of a leader, but the selection of a Captain for every election district."

Miss Boswell told her leaders that the task confronting them between now and May 25, when the newly enfranchised women will have their opportunity to enroll with the party of their choice for participation in the Fall primaries, would be to persuade as many as possible in their districts to enroll under the Republican emblem.

"I look for a large enrollment of Republican women," said Miss Boswell. "To accelerate the work I have told the leaders that at a meeting to be held within a few days I shall not only expect to receive reports that organization has been completed everywhere, but that I want every election district Captain to have selected at least five helpers to aid in the house-to-house canvass that we expect to make prior to enrollment."

The women, according to Miss Boswell, are taking to politics as a fish does to water. Certainly they seemed to be in their element at the meeting yesterday. They seemed to know their business, talked in terms of politics and discussed conditions in their districts with all the versatility of men leaders who had been long at the game.

Among those who attended were Mrs. John G. Iselin, leader of the Fifteenth Assembly District; Mrs. M. Kennedy Jackson and Mrs. Olive Scott Gabriel, leader of the Tenth; Mrs. M. L. Ogan of the Twenty-second; Miss Adele Erb of the Thirteenth; Mrs. Ambrose Higgins of the Seventh; Mrs. Fred. D. Losey of the Ninth, and Mrs. Sidney C. Crane of the Twenty-third.

URGES HOME GARDENING.

Claxton Asks Support for Education Board's Work.

Adolph Lewisohn yesterday gave out a letter from P. P. Claxton, Commissioner of Education, urging support of "the work of the Bureau of Education and especially in its work of promoting school-directed home gardening." He expressed satisfaction that President Wilson had enabled the bureau to extend its work of instructing children in gardening, and added:

"If we can enroll 5,000,000 boys and girls and the 40,000 teacher-directors and supervisors necessary to make their work most valuable we shall be able to produce from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 worth of food; and the educational value will be still greater."

BLIGHT OF INQUIRY HITS HEALTH WORK

Commissioner Hopes It Will Soon End So Department May Resume Normal Service.

DEMORALIZED FOR 2 WEEKS

Dr. Amster Warned Mayor That to Abolish Bureaus Would Jeopardize City's Health.

PROMISES NO CURTAILMENT

Tuberculosis Committee Makes Strong Protest Against Secrecy of Investigation.

While Dr. J. Lewis Amster, Health Commissioner, declared yesterday that none of the bureaus of the Health Department would be "curtailed" while he was in office, he admitted that the department had already been injured by Mayor Hylan's investigation.

"For the last two weeks the department has been unable to go on with its work because of the uncertainty of the members of the department as to just what the outcome of the present investigation would be," said the Health Commissioner. He added that he hoped the investigation would soon be completed, for it was keeping bureau heads and other employes in "suspense."

Commissioner Amster said the report that he offered his resignation to Mayor Hylan to become effective if the Mayor decided to abolish any of the bureaus, was untrue. "I did tell the Mayor," he added, "that I thought it would be a serious mistake to interfere with the functions of some of our bureaus. I said that to abolish the bureaus would jeopardize the health and welfare of the members of the community."

In saying that the work of the bureaus would not be "curtailed," Dr. Amster said he meant that he had no intention of sacrificing the health of the children or the people of the city, but he declined to tell exactly what action he would take in respect to the bureaus under fire.

Dr. Amster made no promise that none of the bureaus would be abolished, and it was pointed out that until some such assurance was given to the public, either by the Health Commissioner or the Mayor, social service agencies and influential citizens would continue to urge that the work of the Health Department, as far as its bureaus and their heads are concerned, be continued.

There was no session of the investigators yesterday, but the inquiry will be resumed at 2:30 this afternoon at the office of Chairman James E. McBride of the Civil Service Commission.

Aldermen Expected to Act.

There will probably be a session of the Committee on Rules of the Board of Aldermen today to discuss the resolution introduced by Socialist Alderman Algernon Lee, calling for an Aldermanic investigation of the Health Department, with hearings open to the public. While the resolution may not be adopted as originally worded, it is expected that the committee will approve a substitute resolution embodying the salient features of the original.

Dr. Lee K. Frankel, Chairman of the Committee of Twenty-one, who on Monday sent a letter to Mayor Hylan asking, in the name of a large group of social service organizations, that the Mayor meet them, which letter, the Mayor's secretary said, did not reach City Hall, sent a special messenger yesterday. It was given out at the City Hall that the Mayor has no intention of delaying his reply to the committee.

The Committee on Prevention of Tuberculosis, composed chiefly of physicians who have for years devoted themselves particularly to prevention and relief of tuberculosis, discussed the Health Department investigation yesterday, and later issued a statement saying that its members believed that great harm would result to the citizens of the city from any "disorganization of the Health Department or lowering of its past standards of efficiency." The committee also expressed itself as "deeply impressed by the secret methods of procedure which have been adopted."

Dr. Bernard Sachs of the Altman Foundation, speaking yesterday of the investigation, said the city had met no greater menace in twenty-five years than "the present move on the part of the Mayor."

"If the work of the city's Health Department bureaus is in any way interfered with, the city will be defenseless in case of epidemic," said Dr. Sachs. "The city would stand to lose all that it has gained during the last twenty-five years. The fight against tuberculosis, poliomyelitis, and other diseases would be as badly off as before the Health Department was organized along the present lines by capable experts."

A challenge to the Mayor to give the public a copy of any decisions of former Corporation Counsels in regard to the legality of the seven bureaus of the Department of Health was made in the issue of the bulletin of the Woman's Municipal League dated yesterday.

Saving of Only $50,000.

After calling attention to the fact that ten years ago the death rate of children in their first year in this city was 144 per 1,000 and that since the operations of the present bureaus in the Health Department the rate has been cut to 88 per 1,000, the bulletin said:

"Mayor Hylan claims that by abolishing the positions and placing the work under Assistant Sanitary Superintendents he would save $50,000; that also the creation of these bureaus was illegal.

"Mayor Hylan would render the public a service if he would immediately release for the public a copy of the decision rendered by the Corporation Counsel on this point. It is an unfortunate thing, if the operation of these bureaus was illegal, that Mayor Hylan failed to raise the question until the close of the legislative session and too late to secure a charter amendment. The bureaus have been running successfully for years. Lives have been saved and the physical welfare of the city vastly improved. Surely this is of far greater importance than a mere technicality of law."

Socialist Alderman Lee issued a statement yesterday warning against permitting any bureau involved in the proposed "reorganization" of the Health Department to be made a scapegoat for others. He said that while the Bureau of Child Hygiene and the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, owing to their prominence in the general discussion, might be saved, sight should not be lost of the fact that five other bureaus were in danger.

"While it is highly desirable that they shall continue to exist," he said, "we must not be content that they shall do so at the expense of other bureaus of probably as great importance although less capable of being made the subject of popular appeal.

"The Bureau of Food and Drugs, which, to the best of my knowledge, has been rendering splendid service for the people of the city, is especially important at this time, when the food question is uppermost in the public mind. There is a reported tendency on the part of the Mayor's investigators, if their original reported plan of wholesale abolishing cannot be carried out, to 'get somebody.' This must be guarded against."

Health Commissioner Amster, after saying yesterday that the work of the Health Department bureaus would not be "curtailed," declared that he was awaiting the outcome of the inquiry before taking any action in regard to them. It was Commissioner Amster's impression that the investigation ought to be over in a comparatively short time, though he could not tell how long it would take. On this point he differs with Chairman MacBride, who said last week that the investigation might last another month or six weeks.

Dr. Amster said he believed in "borough autonomy." He described this as giving to the Assistant Sanitary Superintendent in each borough power to carry out the functions of the various bureaus in his borough.

"The work of each bureau would have to be mapped out by the director of that bureau, who would turn it over to the Assistant Sanitary Superintendent for carrying out," said the Health Commissioner. "The Assistant Sanitary Superintendents would be under control of the bureau chiefs, from whom they would take their instructions. I do not intend to decentralize any of the bureaus."

Before he entered office, the Commissioner explained, the Assistant Sanitary Superintendents had nothing to do with the work of the Health Department bureaus in their boroughs. Dr. Amster was confident that the Assistant Sanitary Superintendents, who in some cases, he said, were already intrusted with the additional work, would not need any additional assistance in carrying it on.

"The idea is to hold one man responsible for the work of all the bureaus in each of the boroughs," he said.

In an order affecting the Bronx and Queens, made effective on Feb. 20, the work of all the Health Department bureaus in those boroughs except the Bureau of Laboratories, the Bureau of Hospitals, and the Bureau of Records, was placed under the jurisdiction of the Assistant Sanitary Superintendents. The official, according to the order, is expected to "know, direct, and by proper supervision check the daily work of his subordinates, and is directly responsible to the Commissioner, through the office of the Deputy Commissioner, for the prompt and proper performance of the work."

In the order it is provided that "the directors of bureaus will outline the policy and determine the program of the bureau, and be willing and ready to offer helpful suggestions as to the manner of accomplishing the same," and that the "consent of the director of the bureau involved must be obtained by the Assistant Sanitary Superintendent before making any changes in existing orders or alterations in established procedure."

The statement issued by the Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis follows:

"The Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis views with alarm the reported intention of the present City Administration to abolish many of the important bureaus of the Department of Health, which have for many years demonstrated their efficiency in grappling with the prevention of disease in this city.

Secrecy Objected To.

"The committee is aware of no public purpose to be served by the contemplated action, and in common with other citizens its members believe that great harm will result to the citizens of New York from any disorganization of the Health Department or lowering of its past standards of efficiency. They are, moreover, adversely impressed by the secret methods of procedure which have been adopted.

"If there are conditions or practices in the Health Department which are either illegal or wrong they should, of course, be brought to light, but all investigations should be conducted without secrecy."

20 CITIES UP STATE IN 'DRY' COLUMN

Ithaca, Binghamton, and Gloversville Among Places Where Saloons Were Voted Out.

SYRACUSE REMAINS 'WET'

Votes of the Women Prove the Decisive Factor in at Least Four Places.

ALBANY, April 17.—Returns from the thirty-eight cities voting on the local option question yesterday and today indicate that twenty of these places have been carried by the dry forces.

Among the larger places which went into the dry column are Auburn, Elmira, Binghamton, Gloversville and Middletown.

The ballots of the women voters proved decisive against the saloon in at least four cities—Ithaca, Auburn, Watertown and Binghamton.

In all instances four question were voted on: One, the question of maintaining salons; two, whether liquor shall be drunk in private homes; three, whether it shall be dispensed from drug stores, and four, whether or not it shall be sold in hotels.

The wets carried Syracuse, the largest of the thirty-nine which voted on the liquor question, by a majority of about 10,000. The vote was a surprise to the dry leaders, as they had relied on the women, who comprised a majority of the electorate, to turn the election in their favor. The campaign was the most bitterly fought in the history of the city.

All four questions were either favored or voted down in all instances except at Salamanca, where it was decided to maintain the sale of liquor in drug stores on prescriptions from physicians.

Auburn went dry on all four questions by a majority of about 500.

Batavia went bone-dry by a majority of 577.

Binghamton went bone dry by a majority of about 3,000.

Canandaigua went bone-dry by a majority of nearly 1,000.

Corning appeared to have voted against license by about 800 majority.

Cortland was carried by the drys by about 2,500 on all four propositions.

Indications were that Elmira had voted dry on all four propositions. With three districts missing, the drys are leading by over 1,400.

Returns from eight districts out of eleven in Fulton City gave the drys a majority of 620.

The wets have a slight majority in Geneva, where the count is proceeding slowly.

Four out of thirteen districts in Gloversville gave the drys a majority of 1,235, a ratio of about three to one.

The drys carried Hornell by a majority of about 600 on all four questions.

Jamestown voted dry on all four questions by large majorities.

The City of Johnstown voted dry on all four propositions by majorities ranging from 1,241 to 1,465.

The drys won on every proposition at Middletown. The majorities were: Against saloons, 820; against wholesale, 778; against drug stores, 613, and against hotels, 452.

Norwich voted dry by approximately 1,000 majority, making all of Chenango County dry.

Oneida voted out the saloon by a majority of 135.

Watertown voted bone dry, voting down all four propositions by an overwhelming vote.

The City of Salamanca voted dry, except that drug stores will be permitted to sell on physicians' prescriptions. Saloon licenses lost by a vote of 1,533 to 1,636, store licenses lost by 109, hotel licenses by 145, and the drug store question carried by 66.

Amsterdam voted for license by majorities on all propositions exceeding 2,000.

The wets carried Beacon by a majority of 600. The total vote cast was 3,359 and about 1,500 ballots were cast by women.

Glens Falls went wet.

The wets were victorious in Kingston by a majority of 2,000.

Little Falls voted for license with a majority of 1,008.

Practically complete returns from Ogdensburg indicate that the city voted wet on all four questions.

Practically complete returns showed that Olean voted in favor of license by a majority of 374.

Eight out of fourteen districts of Oswego gave the wets a majority of 1,700.

Schenectady voted wet on all four propositions by majorities ranging from 2,200 to over 4,000. Fifteen districts were carried by the drys and twenty-six by the wets. About one-seventh of the voters registered failed to cast their ballots. The drys had counted on the women to vote with them three to one, but the vote in districts where women were registered heavily showed that, as a rule, they were equally divided.

Rome also voted in favor of maintaining the saloons.

Tonawanda joined the wet column.

Oneonta voted against the saloon by a majority of 2,200.

Plattsburg went dry by a majority of more than 700 in 4,100 votes.

Special to The New York Times.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., April 17.—The wets swept six of the eight wards in the local option election, losing only the two so-called silk stocking wards, the third and fifth. All four propositions were carried by a majority of about 700. The total vote was about 8,500, and over half was cast by women, who waged hot fights on both sides in every ward.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, N. Y., April 17.—One of the most bitterly contested elections ever held here resulted in the city deciding by a majority of 2,000 to continue the license system. The women were out in great numbers, and those favoring the wet side of the question were quite active at the polling places.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., April 17.—Port Jervis went wet today by a majority of 630 in the two days' election on local option. The total vote cast was 4,125, of which the women cast about 2,000. The women's vote had little effect on the result, as they were about equally divided on the issue.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 17.—Ithaca went bone dry by a decisive majority in today's local option election. The city voted to put out the saloons by a plurality of 1,479 and also defeated by large majorities the licenses for wholesale stores, hotels and drug stores. The dry forces carried four out of the five city wards, rolling up record votes in the Fourth and Fifth Wards, where the Cornell University community resides.

The big victory of the dry forces is due to the vote of the women, over 2,500 of whom voted, and two-thirds of this vote went in favor of the drys.

'WETS' BEAT THE WOMEN.

New Rochelle and Mount Vernon Defied Their Efforts at Reform.

In spite of the efforts of the newly enfranchised women voters, both New Rochelle and Mount Vernon went "wet" last night at the local option election. The women took an active part in the election and at the end of the first day of voting they declared the election was a victory for the "drys."

The women turned out in great force. Though the balloting occupied two days, the majority of the registered voters cast their ballots on the first day. The total vote in New Rochelle was 9,500 and the "wet" majority was 2,000. It is believed that the women divided evenly on the local option question.

LUTHER KOUNTZE, BANKER, DIES AT 76

Head of New York Branch of Kountze Bros. Was a Founder of Metropolitan Opera House.

Luther Kountze, head and founder of the New York branch of the banking firm of Kountze Brothers, 141 Broadway, died yesterday at his home, 5 East Fifty-seventh Street. Mr. Kountze was born near Canton, Ohio, in 1842, and first entered the banking business at Omaha, Neb., in 1857.

The history of Mr. Kountze is inseparably connected with that of his three brothers, Augustus, Herman, and Charles B. Krountze, with whom he had been associated since 1862. In 1885 Augustus Kountze opened a private banking business in Omaha, and two years later was joined by Herman and Luther Kountze, and the firm of Kountze Brothers, private bankers, was established, which was afterward consolidated with the First National Bank of Omaha.

In 1862 a branch of Kountze Brothers was opened in Denver, Col., by Luther Kountze. Four years later the Colorado National Bank of Denver was founded by Luther Kountze, and he became the first President. Soon afterward he became President of the first street railway company in that city.

Luther Kountze came to New York in 1868 and opened a private bank on Wall Street, and on Sept. 1, 1870, the New Yor khouse of Kountze Brothers was established and soon became one of the leading banking firms in this city. All four brothers were members of this firm.

In 1871 the brothers established relations with a prominent London bank, and others in Scotland and Ireland and on the Continent. The business became international and was prominent among dealers in foreign exchange and cable transfers. The firm is a member of the New York Stock Exchange and was the fiscal agency for the State of Nebraska.

Luther Kountze was noted as a lover of music and was one of the founders of the Metropolitan Opera House. He was a member of the Union and Metropolitan Clubs.

Mr. Kountze is survived by two children, Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas and Major W. de Lancey Kountze of the 163d Infantry, U. S. A.

UPHOLDS LOYAL ALIENS.

Wilson Deprecates Violence Based on Unjust Suspicion.

CHICAGO, April 17.—A message from President Wilson deprecating unjust suspicion or violence against Americans of German blood was presented to the Chicago Association of Commerce today by Dr. William E. Bohn, Secretary of the New York Branch of the Friends of German Democracy. In part the message read:

"You may be sure that I sympathize and shall co-operate with every effort to see to it that the loyal residents of the United States of German birth or descent are given genuine proof of the sincerity of our institutions. It distresses me beyond measure that suspicion should attach to those who do not deserve it and that acts of injustice and even violence should be based upon the suspicion."

CHILEAN AMBASSADOR DIES AFTER A STROKE

Dr. Aldunate Stricken with Apoplexy in Washington Street—Ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Senor Don Santiago Aldunate, Chilean Ambassador to the United States, was prostrated by a stroke of apoplexy this morning while out for a walk, and died tonight at 6 o'clock at the Emergency Hospital.

As was his custom, Dr. Aldunate went to his office to attend to his morning mail and, having finished this, started to walk to his home in R Street. He fell unconscious to the pavement a short distance from his office. The Ambassador was carried in a passing automobile to the hospital.

Dr. Aldunate was in his sixtieth year. He had suffered two previous strokes. His wife and children were summoned, and remained with him until death. He did not recover consciousness before he died.

Dr. Aldunate came to Washington a year ago and had established himself in the favor of the diplomatic corps in the short period of his service here. He was born at Santiago and educated there. For many years he had been a Professor of Law in the University of Chile. He was appointed Ambassador to this country after a long public service as a Deputy in Congress, Ambassador to Italy and Minister of Foreign Affairs.

CIRCUS VISITS BELLEVUE.

Sudden Influx of Child Patients When Elephants Arrive.

When the circus left its home at Madison Square Garden yesterday afternoon to give its annual show at Bellevue Hospital Dr. George O. Hanlon, the Superintendent of the hospital, thought he had only 1,400 patients, but somebody stepped on the safety valve of the calliope just as the procession of monkeys and elephants started through the gates, and an epidemic of disease suddenly affected every child within sound of the jazz music.

Stomachs that had never ached an ache except on too much fruit, feet too small for rheumatics, and hearts too young for any disease suddenly made a trip to Bellevue imperative. Some went to the dispensary and pleaded measles, mumps, and toothache, and one small but bright youngster confessed to gout. But wise old Dr. Rial of the circus staff consulted with Dr. Ringling and diagnosed all ailments as "kidditis inquisitivitis," and said he had the only cure in the tubes of the jazz calliope. Treatment was applied, and at last reports patients were resting happily, with no danger of relapse. Many sufferers in the hospital won temporary relief in the excitement of watching the circus performers in the courtyard.

This sudden improvement in the equally sudden ailments acquired by the east side children was wrought by one of the most elaborate entertainments the circus has given since it made an annual practice of visiting the hospital. Zip, the original What Is It? was there, with the Chinese acrobats and a lot of clowns. So far as it could be done, the patients in the big hospital witnessed all the features of the big show as it is given in the Garden.

CHRISTIANS ACTS HAMLET.

Director Is Admirable in Role at Performance in His Honor.

The approaching end of the season of the German company at the Irving Place Theatre made last night's performance of "Hamlet," given in honor of Director Rudolf Christians, an event somewhat out of the ordinary. The play was attended by an usually large audience, which accorded Director Christians a vigorous reception, and further demonstrated its loyalty by remaining to the end of the piece, which, in view of the fact that the complete text was played, did not come until well after midnight.

It is a matter of fourteen years since "Hamlet" was last acted here in German, and the part was then played by a visiting star. In spite of the fact that Mr. Christians has not played it in this country, the rôle is one of his best. His performance last night, barring an early uncertainty, was admirable. So, too, was his supporting company—Annie Rub-Foerster as Ophelia, Heinrich Marlow as the king, Ernst Holznagel as the ghost, Hanns Unterkirchner as Laertes, Marie Kierschner as the queen, Christian Rub as Rosencranz, and later as the First Gravedigger. The production brought out the full strength of the Irving Place company. It will be repeated tomorrow night and twice on Saturday.

EDWARDS.—At a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of Dollar Savings Bank of the City of New York held on April 17, 1918, the following minute was unanimously directed to be entered upon the record of the proceedings of the board:

In the death of George E. Edwards, a Trustee of this bank since Feb. 2, 1899, and President of the bank since Jan. 5, 1911, the institution has suffered an almost irreparable loss. Wise in counsel, untiring in energy, efficient in the highest degree, faithful to every trust reposed in him, this bank today is a monument to his faithful service.

Of strict integrity, high sense of honor, gentle, sympathetic, and helpful, few men have been so loved and respected by their associates.

In the memory of a husband and parent so devoted and loving, with a life so full of magnificent accomplishments, his family has a priceless heritage.

With a deep sense of personal loss, we have met to pay tribute to the memory of our late associate and friend and to record upon our minutes our sincere appreciation of his excellence and worth.

BROOKLYN ROBINS PARTAKE OF WHITEWASH FROM HAND OF JESS BARNES

BARNES SHUTS OUT DODGERS IN DEBUT

McGraw's Newest Twirler Pitches Giants to Victory, 2 to 0, in His First Game.

FAULTLESS WORK IN FIELD

Jess's Mates Supply Airtight Support, Disposing of Robins in 1 Hour 15 Minutes.

Henry Zimmerman of the Bronx started running the bases backwards at the Polo Grounds yesterday, just where he left off in the world's series last Fall when he lost a heat to Eddie Collins. During a smart, snappy game, in which the Giants polished the Brooklyn Dodgers by a score of 2 to 0, Heinie happened to think that he hadn't tried out his sprinting talents for some time. He was on first base at the time, and it could easily be seen that his plan was to sprint from first to second in about three or four seconds.

Zim was on first in the second inning by virtue of a genuine base hit. With the turn of Jack Coombs's aged arm, Heinie started for second. Miller caught the ball and whipped it down to Schmandt at second so fast that the Dodgers stood waiting with the ball like the Chairman of a reception committee. When Zim saw that the ball had arrived long before him, he changed his mind about stealing second and started back to first with Schmandt in pursuit. There was something faulty about Zim's strategy, for when he got back to first there was Daubert with the ball and he tagged him out. Schmandt crossed Zim, because Heinie figured that the new second baseman would chase him without throwing the ball. Zim is never at a loss for new ideas about running bases.

In prying this game from Brooklyn, McGraw trotted out his newest pitching commodity, Jess Barnes. He negotiated the shutout with the aid of gilt-edged fielding support from his club mates. The Giants fielded faultlessly, and supported Barnes's flinging with twenty-one perfect assists. Even George Burns, in the outfield, took part in two of the plays which cut down the Dodger runners on the bases. The Dodgers got more hits off Barnes than the Giants did off Jack Coombs, but his airtight support held his performance intact. Some days it takes as long as two hours to beat Brooklyn, but yesterday it took only an hour and a quarter.

Barnes Cool Under Fire.

Barnes came from Circleville, Kansas, where he has a big local reputation as a checker player. Christy Mathewson, also a Giant pitcher at one time, is a checker player, but he is different from Barnes inasmuch as Matty wins his checker games, while Barnes usually loses his. When McGraw traded Herzog for Barnes, he evidently made a wise move, for Herzog could neither pitch nor play checkers. Barnes was cool and effective under fire and only one time was he in danger. That was in the seventh when Hi Myers, the first batsman to face him doubled to left. The ball sailed over Burns's head and Myers raced for third base.

Burns did a pretty spry bit of fielding in retrieving the ball and relayed it to Fletcher who got it to Zim in time to cut the runner down at third. This smart play by Burns stalled off a Dodger run for Johnston followed with a long single to center. Coombs, during the greater part of the performance, exercised his old spell over the Giants, but once in the fourth, when his skill lapsed for a moment, hurly-burly fielding by Ollie O'Mara brought about his downfall.

Charley Moran, the latest edition of President Tener's umpirical library, appeared for the first time as the judge of play behind the plate. Just why Moran is an umpire is a mystery. His regular calling is a groceryman and he has a store down in Horse's Cave, Kentucky. With groceries at their present figure it is difficult to understand how any man could leave the counter to be an umpire at a few paltry thousands a year, when he could take in that much in one afternoon selling fresh eggs. Moran called one close on the Giants in the fifth, but as the Dodgers seemed happily beaten at the time, and the umpire was a stranger and it wouldn't be nice to pick on a new man, there was no riotous movement in Moran's direction.

Holke Out by a Hair.

Holke had singled, and Rariden followed it with a hard welt to centre field for two bases. Holke tried to sprint all the way around the circuit, but the ball was relayed in, Myers to Hickman to Coombs to Miller, and Holke and the ball arrived at the plate almost simultaneously. The new ump ruled that the runner was out, and, strange as it may seem, the Giants' big squad of arguing experts did not get into action.

The big noise in the fielding line was furnished by Benny Kauff when he yanked down Coombs's long drive in the sixth, and by Jimmy Johnson, who robbed Larry Doyle of a three-bagger in the fourth. Another big noise was furnished by the bass drummer of the Naval Reserve Band, who is far and away the loudest bass drummer in the U. S. Navy.

The Giants collected the two runs which gave them the game in the fourth inning. Ross Young was patient, and drew a pass from Coombs. Benny Kauff smacked a single to right, and Young galloped around to third. Hickman fielded the ball in right and jammed it over to third to block the swift moving Young. O'Mara got the ball after Young arrived, and he made a throw to second to get Kauff, who was sneaking in that general direction. O'Mara's throw was a sad affair, and it trickled past Schmandt, who had so much trouble in capturing the truant ball that Young was over the plate by the time the ball reached Miller, and Kauff was on third.

During the few precious moments when Schmandt was throwing George Burns out at first, Kauff crossed the platter with the other New York run. In the spectacular collection of neat fielding plays were two doubles engineered by Lawrence Doyle, who did it just as smoothly as he did when he was a youngster several seasons ago.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—Boston was so superior to Philadelphia in all departments today that the local team never had a chance, the score being 14 to 2. Both Philadelphia pitchers were hit hard, and their support was poor.

MARQUARD'S APPEAL DENIED

Federal Board Refuses Deferred Classification in Draft.

The application for deferred classification in the national army draft of Rube Marquard, Brooklyn's southpaw twirler, was yesterday denied by the Federal Appeal Board. Marquard registered with Board 146, located at Broadway and 145th Street, and was placed in Class 2A. The decision of the Federal Appeal Board, the court of last resort for exemption seekers, was made on the pitcher's application for exemption and a change of his classification from Class 2A to Class 4A.

Marquard, in filling out his questionnaire, stated that he was married and had a wife and child dependent on him. The ball player is married to Blossom Seeley, an actress, and in his appeal for deferred classification Marquard stated that his wife and the child were solely dependent on his earnings for support. Former Governor Charles E. Hughes is Chairman of the Federal Appeal Board.

BAKER'S BAT BLASTS HOPES OF SENATORS

Yankees' Third Baseman Tires of Ball Game in Twelfth and Settles Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Frank Baker refused to let Walter Johnson hand him a base on balls in the twelfth inning of today's game between the Yankees and Senators while a ball game swung in the balance. With runners on first and third bases Baker took a swing at what Johnson meant to be the third ball of an intentional pass and drove it into deep centre field. It proved to be a sacrifice fly which enabled Derrill Pratt to race in from third base with the run which gave the Yanks the verdict by 8 to 7.

Throwing Johnson for a loss twice in the space of three days is a notable distinction for the Huggins troupe. It became necessary to spike the big gun in the gathering darkness this evening or take a second trimming in two days and the hard hitting Yanks were equal to the task, despite a continuation of the bad pitching which had marked their previous efforts here. Johnson arrived on the battle ground at four minutes before 7 o'clock, replacing Earl Yingling. It was 7:35 o'clock when taps were sounded on the carnival of run-getting.

The New Yorkers opened up like easy winners. They collected four runs before the home team got a chance to do any scoring, and a pitcher who knows that five runs are necessary before he can be defeated, usually goes along with some confidence. Herb Thormahlen, Huggins's young southpaw may have had the confidence, but he positively was short on control. He didn't last to the end of the first inning. He pitched to five batsmen and the dope sheet shows that he walked three and hit another. Huggins is aging fast because of his pitchers.

Then came big Slim Love, who got back into uniform today after being in the Red Cross tent with grippe during the engagement here yesterday. For a while it looked as if Slim was going to carry the Yanks along as Huggins hoped, but he weakened enough in the eighth to pass the first batsman to face him with the score 7 to 6 in New York's favor, and Huggins used the derrick. It was Mogridge who did the moonlight work during which the Senators were stopped and the Yanks rode to victory.

Huggins's men took kindly to Jim Shaw in the opening frame. Gilhooley greeted him with a single to centre. Miller sacrificed, and Pratt sent Gil home with a triple to left centre. Pipp walked, and when Lavan fumbled Baker's grounder Pratt scored, Pipp reaching second. Bodie's single to centre sent Pipp in and Baker to third, and another run came across on a pretty squeeze play, Peck turning the trick.

Thormahlen couldn't stand prosperity. He walked Shotton and Foster, and after Milan had forced Foster at second the Yankee southpaw walked Shanks and hit Judge. This was about all for Thormahlen. Love came on and Morgan's sacrifice fly to Miller scored Milan. In the next inning the Senators got a run on Ainsmith's single, a hit batsman, Shotton's sacrifice, and Milan's grounder to Pipp, Love failing to cover first base.

The Yank's added a run in the third on Pipp's walk, Bodie's second single, and Peck's sacrifice fly, but the Senators matched this run in the fourth, when Yingling singled to centre, advanced on Shotton's hit to left, and scored on Milan's double along the foul line.

Yingling held the Yanks fairly safe until the fifth, when Pratt walked, Pipp tripled, and Baker singled, two runs resulting. This rally gave the Huggins crowd a three-run lead, but two of these were wiped out in the sixth and the score was tied in the eighth.

Foster singled with one out in the eighth, went to third when Pratt let Milan's grounder slip away from him, and then Milan stole second. Shanks pushed the pair across with a double to left. In the eighth Love walked Shotton and then gave way to Mogridge. Peck fumbled Foster's roller, then threw wild to first, and runners were camped on second and third. Mogridge got Milan's hard drive and caught Shotton at the plate, but Foster scored a minute later on an infield out and the score was tied. Then came Johnson and a deadlock, which Baker broke in the twelfth.

ATHLETICS LOSE IN NINTH.

Schang's Timely Single Drives in Boston's Winning Run.

BOSTON, April 17.—Schang's single to right in the ninth with the bases full scored two runs and gave Boston its third straight victory over Philadelphia here today. The score was 5 to 4. It was Schang's first appearance in a Boston uniform. Philadelphia twice held the lead.

For seven innings Leonard was almost invincible. He struck out nine men and allowed only four hits. He weakened in the eighth and ninth.

COLUMBIA NINE IS BEATEN.

Loses in Eleventh Inning to Swarthmore by Score of 3 to 2.

Dutch Koenig, Columbia's lanky left hander, lost an eleven inning game to Swarthmore yesterday afternoon on South Field, after he had held the visitors to three hits in ten innings, and after his team mates had pulled Columbia abreast of the two runs scored by Swarthmore in the first frame. The final score was 3 to 2.

In the eleventh session, with the tally 2 to 2, Koenig sent White to first on four balls. Cornog's bunt was good when the pitcher attempted to catch White at second on a fielder's choice. White was out off third, but Carter brought in Cornog with the winning run with a long drive to left which just dribbled off Houlahan's glove after he had made a long sprint for the ball.

Two hits and a pair of stolen bases gave Swarthmore two runs in the first inning. Columbia came back in the second with a single score when Goodman doubled to right and came home on Howell's fumble of a smash to the same field by Uris, which went for a double. Uris was hurt sliding to second and Weinstein took his place in right field.

FORDHAM TUMBLES TUFTS.

Maroon Nine Opens Its Local Season with Victory by 4 to 1.

Fordham opened its home baseball season in becoming fashion yesterday by defeating the Tufts nine on Fordham Field by a score of 4 to 1. The Bronx collegians scored all their runs in the first inning. Shankey and Halligan went out on infield grounders, and Scanlon reached first on O'Mara's error. Colletti and Lefevre walked, filling the bases. Abbott, who was placed in centrefield in Tuesday's shakeup, obliged with a scorching home run down the right foul line.

ARMY DROPS BRIEF GAME.

Loses to Lafayette by 4 to 2 in Six-Inning Encounter.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 17.—Gene Vidal, whose strongest asset in sports is football, lost a baseballl game today when Hans Lobert's Army lads were beaten by Lafayette 4 to 2. Vidal's first base play was weird at crucial moments and Murrill's support fell apart after the Army had an apparently safe lead. The Army's tall twirler was a bit unsteady at times, but could have come through a winner in the abbreviated contest with the Eastonians with adequate support. Oliphant's hitting was a feature.

BROOKLYN EXHIBIT OPENS.

Annual Horse Show Marked by Red Cross Features.

The twenty-sixth annual Brooklyn Horse Show, held for the benefit of the American Red Cross at the Riding and Driving Club of Brooklyn, opened last night.

The club arena was gayly decorated with the flags of the Allies and Red Cross banners, and the younger women of the club sold tickets for prize drawings for the benefit of the Red Cross. The most desirable of these prizes is Liberty Bond, a bay mare, donated to the show by David B. Rintoue, tickets being sold at $1 each.

Tiger Rose, a beautiful chestnut mare, exhibited by Mrs. W. A. McGibbons and ridden by W. A. McGibbons, won the blue ribbon in the class for maiden saddle horses, which opened the show.

The well known exhibitor, Miss Isabelle Wanamaker of Merion, Penn., won the blue in the class for maiden harness horses with her chestnut gelding "Matchless." Later, in the Runabout Class for horses not exceeding 15.2 hands, Miss Wanamaker drove a smart trap drawn by the chestnut gelding "Netherhall's Pride." She quickly gained the approval of the spectators, but was disqualified on the ruling that her vehicle was not a runabout.

Another noted horsewoman, Miss Eleanora Sears of Boston won a blue with her chestnut gelding "Kingsfoot," which she exhibited in the class for maiden saddle horses 15.2 hands or over.

A feature of the show was the drilling of Troop B, Mounted Police Reserve, of the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club, which gave a splendid exhibition of cavalry horsemanship. The mounts were judged on conformation and qualities best suited for troop horses.

The summaries:

Maiden Saddle Horses, (docked or undocked; over 14.2 and under 15.2 hands.)—Won by Mrs. W. A. McGibbon's ch. m. Tiger Rose; Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester's b. m., Dray Field, second; Mrs. George A. Seligmann's ch. m., Crafty Stella, third; Mrs. Gordon Russell Thayer's b. m., Babette, fourth.

BILLIARD LAURELS WON BY SCHAEFER

Son of Famous Wizard Defeats Cochran and Yamada in Balkline Tournament.

The triangular balkline billiard tournament between Young Jake Schaefer, Koji Yamada, and Welker Cochran, which has been in progress at Maurice Daly's Seventh Avenue Academy for several days, came to a close last night with Schaefer the winner. The son of the famous Wizard lost only one game in the event, that to Cochran last night by a score of 300 to 33. Cochran, on the other hand, was beaten by both Schaefer and Yamada, and had to be content with second place and Yamada was third.

The play yesterday provided two surprises. In the afternoon Yamada, who has been in miserable stroke ever since he came from the West, suddenly struck his stride and Cochran was the victim. The Japanese won by a score of 300 to 88 and established an average of 42 6-7, which compares favorably with the best performances by Cochran and Schaefer. In the evening game Schaefer, who has twice defeated Cochran, was forced to give way before his rival. He could not command the ivories for any large runs, and when Cochran clicked off 137 and 87 to close out his string, Schaefer was left far behind.

The scores:

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 17.—Agnes Cook, L. W. Garth's two-year-old bay filly, gave racegoers anxious moments at the beginning of the second day's card here today, but despite a series of acrobatic stunts managed to pull through in a close triumph in the first race. MINNEAPOLIS GETS BIG BOUT

Willard-Fulton Affray to be Staged Between Twin Cities.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 17.—The Jess Willard-Fred Fulton world's heavyweight boxing championship, scheduled for July 4, will be staged in an arena to be erected in the midway district between St. Paul and Minneapolis, according to an announcement made here today by Robert Seiberlich, State Boxing Commissioner. In compliance with the State law, the fight will be limited to ten rounds. The State Commission, however, will waive its rule against a decision and will permit naming of the winner at the finish, Mr. Seiberlich says.

Hundreds of circus seats, to be shipped from Chicago, will necessitate an outlay of approximately $20,000, for which Colonel Miller has asked assistance of Twin City business men. A fund of $10,000 already has been pledged, it is said. The seating capacity of the arena to be constructed is expected to be for more than 35,000 persons.

The match was made by Colonel Miller and the articles were signed in Chicago a short time ago. Willard is to receive $75,000 and Fulton $20,000.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Colonel J. C. Miller, promoter of the Willard-Fulton championship boxing match, when seen here today said: "We have been in negotiation with the Minneapolis men as well as with people in other cities for several days, but no contract has yet been signed. I will probably go to Minneapolis in a few days. Further than this I have nothing to say just now."

MILK PRODUCTS GLUT STATE STOREHOUSES

Huge Accumulation May Go to Waste Unless Federal Government Affords Relief.

NEED SHIPS FOR EXPORTS

Officials Go to Washington for a Conference—Food Board Punishes 35 More Bakers.

Lack of ships for transportation has caused such an accumulation of condensed and evaporated milk and other milk products in this State that John Mitchell, Chairman of the State Food Commission, accompanied by Commissioners Wilson and Porter of the Farms and Markets Council, left for Washington last night to confer with Assistant Secretary of War Benedict Crowell on possible methods of relief. The enormous stock of milk products in New York State will be wasted unless the Federal authorities find some immediate avenue of release.

At a meeting of the Farms and Markets Council at Albany on April 5 attention was called to the great accumulation of condensed and evaporated milk, cheese, and butter in storehouses, and it was recommended that the Farms and Markets Council request the Federal Government to take over this surplus for shipment abroad. The recommendation was approved.

Subsequently on April 19 the same matter was presented by Mr. Mitchell to the State Food Commission and Mr. Mitchell was authorized to represent both the State Food Commission and the Federal Food Board at the hearing in Washington. Mr. Mitchell invited the Federation of the County Farm Bureaus, the Dairymen's League, and the Milk Conference Board to join the Council of Farms and Markets and the State Food Commission in a joint hearing in Washington. The delegation is to meet Assistant Secretary of War Crowell today and expects to reach some decision which will relieve the situation.

In order to encourage the "Eat the Potatoes" campaign in this State United States Food Administrator Hoover, through the Federal Food Board, yesterday issued a statement in which he said:

"America has fallen behind in its shipments of food to Europe. We must make up our obligations now by sending more cereals, especially wheat. Eating potatoes is one way to increase the supply of wheat.

"We have the potatoes—millions of bushels are available now; they won't be as good three months from now. To conserve both wheat and potatoes—eat potatoes now and get such an enthusiasm for potatoes that next year's production will beat this year's."

For potatoes in carloads the shippers in upper New York State are receiving about eighty-five cents a bushel. This price is, according to the Federal Food Board, are low enough to warrant the sale of Grade No. 1 potatoes by the retail stores at $1.45 a bushel, delivered to the consumer.

The Federal Food Board continued yesterday the hearings in the cases of bakers charged with failing to use the required amount of substitutes in the manufacture of bread and rolls. Summonses were issued for sixty more bakers on the same charge. Thirty-five bakers were found guilty of violating the rule and were ordered yesterday to shut down their establishments for three days, April 22, 23 and 24. These bakers are:

NEW LAW AIDS RED CROSS.

Corporations May Now Give 1 Per Cent. Annually.

An appeal will probably be made to corporations in the coming campaign of the American Red Cross for a second $100,000,000 to be given directly to the Red Cross. The way has been opened in this State for direct contributions by a newly enacted law, which enables corporations to appropriate a sum as high as 1 per cent. of the capital stock for war relief unless holders of more than 25 per cent. of the stock make objection.

Seward Prosser, Chairman of the Executive Committee appointed by President Wilson to raise the first $100,000,000, said yesterday that, while no plan had been worked out as yet for appealing to corporations, it was certain that the method followed in the last drive would not be repeated. Then corporations were asked to declare one per cent. dividends and turn the money over to stockholders with the request that the money should be given to the Red Cross. A very large part of the money appropriated for this purpose, however, never reached the Red Cross. Mr. Prosser said yesterday that it was impossible to tell how large the total received by the Red Cross from this plan was during the last drive, because many who received special dividends made payments to the Red Cross with personal checks. The results, he said, however, were disappointing.

ALBANY, April 17.—Governor Whitman today signed the Meyer bill providing that corporations may be permitted to contribute annually to war charities an amount not exceeding one per cent. on the capital stock outstanding. Further contributions cannot be made except upon ten days' notice to stockholders, and if objection should be made by holders of twenty-five per cent. of the stock the contribution would have to be authorized at a stockholders' meeting.

AID WAR STAMP CAMPAIGN.

500 Rotary Club Members to Organize 10,000 Employes.

The War Savings Committee announced yesterday that the 500 members of the Rotary Club of New York had been organized into ten war savings societies of fifty members each. Each member has pledged himself to buy a certain amount of War Savings Stamps weekly for the rest of the year and has agreed to organize his employes into similar clubs.

A survey of the organizations represented by the Rotary Club recently showed that the 500 members employed an average of twenty men each, indicating that 10,000 recruits will be enrolled for the War Savings campaign through the action of the organization. The heads of the ten societies formed among the club members are: Dr. C. E. Achorn, D. Harry Ahrend, G. C. Atkinson, James S. Hanckel, W. J. Witte, Raymond C. Schindler, James F. Nathan, Charles Milbauer, William Gettinger, and A. L. Doremus.

Magistrate Boyle Promoted.

Mayor Hylan yesterday appointed Edward F. Boyle a Justice of the Municipal Court to take the place of Hiram M. Kirk who died recently. Mr. Boyle was appointed a City Magistrate by Mayor Mitchel on Dec. 31 last. He was formerly President of the Board of Elections and is a member of Tammany Hall.

DOUBT THE TITLE TO CENTRAL'S LAND

Public Service Experts Question Company's Right to All Its West Side Property.

REQUEST LEGAL TEST

Report Says Alleged Holdings Between 81st and 129th Streets Should Be Investigated.

A report prepared by the Public Service Commission, which questions the "marketable value" of all of the land which the New York Central Railroad Company says it owns on the west side, north of Seventy-fourth Street, was sent yesterday to the Board of Estimate with a request that the accuracy of the report be proved by legal proceedings instituted by the Corporation Counsel. In its negotiations with the city concerning the West Side Improvement the railroad company declared that it owned outright the land referred to and insisted that the city should pay the full value of any of the property which it might take.

The information contained in the report was gathered by the engineers and real estate experts of the commission, acting under the direction of Commissioners Whitney and Hervey, and of William L. Ransom, the commission's chief counsel. If the conclusions in the report are accurate the company claims and is enjoying and "but recently demanded large compensation for the partial relinquishment of enormously valuable privileges, to which it has no vested right in fact."

Even if the railroad property does not return to private ownership after the war there is still need of ascertaining the precise facts in the case, the report points out, to the end that the Federal Government may not be called upon to pay the company for property which it does not own.

Included in the list of property to which the commission says the company has no title but which it claims to own outright, are all of the streets and avenues and land below the high water mark from Seventy-fourth Street to 181st Street, and northerly from that point, with the exception of the land on forty blocks interspersed between parcels, which it is alleged the city owns. The report says that it is also doubtful whether the company owns those parts of its rights of way where water grants have been made. Part of the report reads:

"In those parts of its right of way acquired by condemnation, the company's rights are probably limited to use for tracks and roadway. In numerous parcels, notably at Eighty-first, Eighty-second, Eighty-third, 108th, 113th, 115th, and 129th Streets, the company has no deed at all and no other color of title."

It is believed that the commission is in a position to reestablish at its option the public ownership and control of the greater part of the company's right of way, and that while the city could not disturb the use of the land for tracks as long as the ordinance of 1841 was unrepealed or unmodified, the claim of the company to sole ownership could be shown to be unfounded. Then the report says:

"A second and equally important consequence is that, owing to the disclosed nature and status of the railroad company's titles in its right of way, it may be regarded as subject throughout to complete legislative control by the action of the State, and that accordingly any necessary relocation of the company's tracks may be accomplished without entitling it to compensation, even for those parts of its present right of way which are upon land originally owned by individuals and described in their deeds to the railroad company."

TRADE BOARD ON R.R. RATES

Indorses Suggestion That Shippers Should Not Supply New Capital.

The New York Board of Trade and Transportation yesterday approved a report by the Railway Committee regarding the proposed advance in railroad rates and adopted two resolutions on the subject.

One resolution said that if an advance were necessary to meet increased costs, then a commensurate advance should be made after due investigation by the Federal authorities. The other resolution maintained that if new investment capital were necessary to supply rolling stock, cars, and locomotives, the Government, being now in control, should supply such new investment capital, and not impose railroad rates to produce such capital.

The Executive Committee recommended the South Brooklyn waterfront as a site for a Government war base, and restoration and use of the canals of New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania to avoid a coal shortage.

Abram L. Elkus, former Ambassador to Turkey, told of his experiences, and described the present composition of the Turkish Government.

ALLIED PRISONERS ESCAPE.

German Guards Reduced to Supply Men for Big Drive.

GENEVA, April 17, (Associated Press.)—Guardians in prison camps in the Rhine towns have been so reduced, because every German is wanted in the West, that escapes across the Rhine into Switzerland are becoming more frequent daily.

One American and three English soldiers who escaped from German camps this week have arrived at Berne, and yesterday nineteen Frenchmen, former prisoners, joyously marched through the streets of Geneva.

All the former captives say the Germans are hiding their losses in the offensive on the Western front, and that Germany is on the verge of starvation. Chocolate, they say, costs £2 a kilogram, while soap brings 30 francs a pound.

Seven Days to Get Passports.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The State Department today issued a warning to American citizens who contemplate trips abroad that applicants for passports must expect their applications to remain in Washington at least seven days before final action is taken, explaining that "many new and complex problems, arising because of the war, make it necessary that more time be given to the consideration of applications for passports."

COTTON RECOVERS; UP OVER $5 A BALE

Yesterday's Upturn Carries Prices $10 Above Low Level of Tuesday.

NET GAIN 74 TO 97 POINTS

Reaction Follows Unfavorable Report by the Weather Bureau on the Crop Outlook.

The fireworks continued yesterday in the local cotton market, but in the opposite direction from the recent break in prices. Yesterday, after an excited and uncertain session, a sharp reaction developed in the late trading, the upturn in prices amounting to more than $5 a bale from Tuesday's close, and $10 a bale from Tuesday's low level. A little of this was lost just before the close on profit taking, but the net advance for the day amounted to from 74 to 97 points, with the tone of the market barely steady.

A much more unfavorable report by the Weather Bureau on the crop outlook than private advices had indicated seemed to be the immediate exciting cause of the reaction, for which, however, market conditions, after the tremendous decline, were ripe. It is too early yet, in the opinion of most of the trade, to scale crop predictions down, but recent oversanguine estimates received a setback, which had its effect. Spot advices from the South also contributed to restore the confidence of the long side, as, although quotations there have been scaled off considerably since the New York market broke, they are still far higher, relatively, than this market.

In any case, the market opened at an advance of from 7 to 22 points, ignoring the cables, which showed Liverpool still going down. The weakness of the Liverpool market was attributed, however, to a holdover from the previous day, when liquidation there was halted by the trading limit. None the less, there was enough Liverpool selling on the local market to cause a reaction of some points in the first hour. When prices were down somewhat below Tuesday's close some holders of short lines seized the opportunity to cover.

At this point the weather report came in, and the buying became more active, but there was another reaction in the early afternoon as offerings increased above the line of Tuesday's close. The big advance of the day did not set in until the last hour, when prices were 25 or 30 points off. The bidding was very eager and excited from recent short sellers, and quotations jumped sometimes 10 points at a turn. The rise carried May back over the 30-cent line, but it did not hold above that figure, dropping back to 29.90c at the close.

The weather report said that considerable replanting would be necessary, especially in the northern part of the belt, where it appears the frosts of last week did more damage than had been supposed. However, it is believed there is still plenty of time for replanting. No exporters were reported yesterday. Southern spot markets were generally unchanged, save for some belated declines in response to the big break.

OFFICERS' HOUSE OPENED.

To Meet the Needs of Military Men with No Club Here.

For the benefit of officers of the army and navy of the United States and officers of the Allies' forces the Central Park Officers' House was opened yesterday by a public reception. Mrs. David C. Shanks, wife of Major Gen. Shanks, in command of the Port of Embarkation, and Mrs. Thomas Fortune Ryan were the hostesses.

The Central Park Officers' House, situated at 12 East Sixty-seventh Street, is designed to meet the needs of stranger officers who have no club here. It is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fortune Ryan, and is a five-story structure which has been remodeled. There is an officers' house in Hoboken, and plans are under way to build a $50,000 structure at Camp Merritt.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

Weather conditions over the wheat belt were again highly favorable for the best progress of the new crop. Receipts of wheat at Western points, however, continue very small, and the movement is a disappointment to those who had anticipated a freer market as the season advanced. Much of the lack of marketing is attributed to the efforts in Washington to advance the price of wheat for next season's crop to $2.50 per bushel, which is apparently causing farmers to hold their old wheat in the hope of securing the advantage of the higher level of values.

RYE.

The local rye market was inactive and nominal, while in the West Minneapolis was down 3 cents and Duluth was unchanged.

CORN.

The corn market showed further weakness, the July position declining to $1.45, a loss of 2¼c from the previous close and representing a decline of 13¼c from the high point of last Thursday, when the new contract went into effect. Receipts have been gaining during the past few days, and reports from the West state that farmers are more disposed to consign corn to the terminal markets. The domestic cash demand has fallen off quite materially, and apparently European buyers are not inclined to make heavy purchases owing to the quality of this year's crop.

OATS.

Operations in the new contract were started in the Western oats market yesterday. The July position opened at 74¼@74½c, sold down to 72c, and closed at 74¼c. The undertone of the market early was weak, owing to very favorable crop and weather news, but the close was firm, with net gains of ¾@1¼c on active covering, prompted by reports of large export sales. The local cash market was steady; natural quoted at $1.00@1.01, clipped white $1.01@1.04, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The large stocks of meats and lard, as well as a poor domestic demand and reports that arrivals in Europe are somewhat in excess of requirements, exerted a bearish influence on the provision list, and prices were lower, despite an advance in the hog market. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 21,000; estimated for Thursday, 33,000; Kansas City received 13,000, and Omaha 15,000 hogs.

COFFEE.

Reports of an easier tone in the cost and freight market were followed by declines in coffee futures yesterday under selling which probably reflected moderate hedging as well as scattering liquidation. First prices were 4 points lower, and the close showed a net decline of 10 to 21 points. Trading was comparatively quiet at the start, but became more active with September selling off to 8.43 and March to 8.63, compared with 8.63 and 8.92, the recent high level. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

It was reported that one or two refineries recently closed down were about to start up, having received additional raw supplies. Some interests have practically caught up on old business and within a day or two will be able to take on new orders. Some ships are now on the way here from Cuba laden with raw sugar and others are there loading and it is the impression in the trade that local refiners will soon be working to capacity. Yesterday the International Sugar Commission reported purchases of 18,600 bags Cubas, late April shipment, at 4.985c, cost and freight.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER—Receipts yesterday, 7,548 packages. Offerings of fancy fresh butter were a little heavier and with more pressure to sell prices declined quite sharply, the advance since last Saturday being lost. Tone at the close unsettled, with no very material accumulation of fancy fresh stock. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb., 44½@45c; extras, (92 score,) 44c; firsts, (83 to 91 score,) 42@43½c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 39½@41½c; thirds, 38@39c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 45½@46c; extras, 45c; firsts, 43@44c; seconds, 40@42c; creamery, held, as to quality, 36@42½c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 44c; good to prime, 41@43c; common to fair, 36@40c; renovated, extras, 39½@40c; firsts, 38@39c; lower grades, 34@37c; imitation creamery, firsts, 35½@36½c; ladies, current make, firsts, 34½@35c; seconds, 33½c; lower grades, 32@33c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 33½c; No. 2, 32½@33c; lower grades, 29@32c.

EGGS—42,149 cases. Arrivals larger than expected, stock is accumulating rapidly, trade is quieter, and the market is slightly in buyers' favor, with prices at a somewhat lower average. Sales of storage packings above 37@37½c are so exceptional that no higher quotation is made. Current packings still range 35@36c for firsts, but more of the stock is selling below the top quotation, generally at 35@35½c for very good Western eggs. Southern eggs favor the buyer. Dirties and checks easier. Nearby whites cleaning up better and tone firmer. CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Stocks registered net losses generally at the close yesterday of an active and broad market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. There were exceptions to this general rule, International Paper being the most notable, closing with a five-point net gain, due to a heavy buying demand, which was in evidence throughout the session. The market was irregular in its movements throughout the day.

Our War and We Must Win It

In a recent address in Chicago, a prominent American business man said:

"Our war vessels have been destroyed, our soldiers and sailors killed and captured, and our casualty lists are being published, yet, in the face of this we go on from day to day, living in an atmosphere of snug peace, making the war effort that comes to us, that is forced upon us, even as if we refused to realize that THIS IS OUR WAR, AND WE ALONE MUST WIN IT."

Now is the time, before some fearful disaster overtakes us, to shake off this dangerous lethargy, to rouse ourselves from this false dream of peace and safety, to awake to a full realization of the gigantic task we have undertaken, and the dread menace under which we rest. The "effort which is forced upon us" is not enough.

There must be universal, spontaneous, unstinted and unlimited effort if we are to win this war. There must be an overwhelming investment in Liberty Bonds.

This Is Our War --Let's Go In and Win It!

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Irregular but Little Disturbed—Cotton Higher—Steel Scarcity.

It seems that no one was more surprised at the action of the stock market yesterday than brokers on the floor of the Exchange. On news of the capture by the Germans of an important position upon the supposedly impregnable Messines Ridge it was to be expected that prices would break rather badly. Certainly, the impression left with those who took to heart General Haig's do-or-die message was that the Allies had suffered a great defeat with probable serious consequences. Yet the market opened off on an average of less than a point; many issues were practically unchanged overnight, and the list gained in strength until the more active stocks were either little changed at the end of the session or held advances. Steel common, after an overnight loss of more than a point, came back to exactly Tuesday's final price at the close. Baldwin Locomotive was off ⅝ and American Can ¾. The fluctuations in some of the less active issues illustrated the contrary nature of the market even more forcibly. International Paper, on publication of an excellent annual report, advanced 5¼ points for the common and 2⅛ for the preferred, while Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, on one transaction, lost 7½ points. From these changes it will be seen that the war news was not responsible for any important alteration in the day's prices. It is true that as the day wore on the news from the war zone in Flanders assumed a more cheerful color.

Appointment of Charles M. Schwab to take charge of the shipbuilding work for the Emergency Fleet Corporation was hailed as the forerunner of changes which will materially speed the construction program. The shipyards are generally up to their expectations where deliveries of steel have been made on time. In one week of this month plate mills have turned out more than 110,000 tons, it is reported by The Iron Age, which adds that at this rate the mills will be caught up on their ship deliveries early next month. The preponderance of Government orders in the steel trade is increasing until private consumers are allowed but a small part of the steel they would like to get. A rather serious situation has resulted in holding back the construction of freight cars, the need for which is only secondary to the need for ships.

After the violent slump through which it has passed the cotton market enjoyed a sharp recovery yesterday, the upturn being hastened by the Government's weekly weather report, which stated that the unseasonably cold weather in the Southern States had proved detrimental to the staple. Frosts have damaged seed and made much replanting necessary.

TRADING TAME IN LONDON.

Haig's Latest Report Has Stimulating Effect on Exchange.

LONDON, April 17.—The stock market today opened tamely, aside from the strength shown by the gilt-edged issues. Field Marshal Haig's communique, however, had a stimulating effect, although the man-power measures exercised a restraining influence. Spanish bonds slumped five points.

There was a further improvement in exchange. United Havanas were weak through fears of a scrip payment of the dividend.

Money was slow on demand and discounts were quiet.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, April 17.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 59 francs 25 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 16½ centimes. Five per cent. loan, 88 francs 55 centimes.

Standard Oil Insures Men.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society yesterday announced that the contract, for which negotiations were begun in April, under which the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has taken out group insurance on all its employes who have been one year or more in its service, has been completed. The contract covers more than 30,000 employes, and is consequently one of the largest ever written by any company. It forms another step in the carrying out of the Standard Oil's new welfare plans.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

War Absorbing Steel and More Steel.

John A. Topping's statement to stockholders of the Republic Iron and Steel Company at yesterday's meeting laid further emphasis to what other steelmakers have said of the concentration of manufacturing on war work. With more than half, perhaps nearly three-quarters, of the country's capacity devoted to Government orders, there is no need for conjecture as to whether or not the mills will be busy all of this year if the war continues through the twelve months. Mr. Topping made it clear that many commercial orders for steel will have to be laid on the shelf, to wait for times of less urgency and pressure at the mills.

Odd-Lot Buying.

Business in stocks was rather light yesterday, but the details of transactions showed unusual activity in odd-lot purchases. They were well scattered through the list, although industrial issues appeared more attractive to buyers than railroad stocks.

Missouri Pacific's Feat.

The annual report of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company bears testimony to the sound basis on which the road was reorganized by showing, for the seven months since the receivers were discharged, from June 1 to Dec. 31, 1917, a surplus over all fixed charges of $6,618,181. This amounts to $5.46 a share on the outstanding common stock, after the dividend requirements of the preferred at the annual basis had been allowed for. The operating revenues of the road for the full calendar year were the largest in the company's history, totaling $78,320,313, but this was true of most of the big railroads of the country for 1917. But whereas the road, in receivership, in 1916, reported a surplus of only $959,608, it now has a surplus of $8,965,104.

Texas Company Earnings.

The Texas Company is estimated to have earned about $25,000,000 net in the twelve months ended Dec. 31 last, after providing for the Federal war taxes. This total would be equal to more than $30 a share of outstanding stock. The fiscal year now ends on June 30, but hereafter it is expected the year will be changed to coincide with the calendar year. The change will eliminate bookkeeping details, due to the fact that the fiscal periods of several subsidiaries end on Dec. 31, and also make easier the calculation of Federal taxes.

Paper Stocks in Demand.

The paper stocks profited yesterday from the large income displayed in the International Paper Company's report for 1917 and also through the generous circulation of a tip that the shares ought to move up. The 5¼-point gain in International Paper common to 38¼ was scored in the face of considerable profit-taking sales, which were so well absorbed in the early part of the session that the greatest strength was shown in the last half hour. The preferred moved up more than 2 points, and American Writing Paper preferred shares largely in the movement, gaining 4¼ points. Stories in commission houses indicated that some shrewd traders, knowing that the International's statement would be good, began picking up the common more than a week ago in the expectation of a good profit. The final quotation last week was 29.

The State Pays As It Goes.

Since the Controller of New York City has denounced the "pay-as-you-go" plan for city finances, it is interesting to learn that the Controller of New York State highly approves it, and now has the State practically operating on that basis. Announcement has been made by Controller Travis that, thanks to the additional tax levies made by the Legislature in the last two years, the State will be able, in all human probability, to meet its share of the extraordinary expenses of the war out of current revenue, although at the time of the Spanish war it was necessary to issue more than $1,000,000 in bonds for the purpose.

Cotton Price Puzzles.

One outstanding result of the recent big break in cotton prices here, which will be talked of for months to come, is a remarkable discrepancy between prices in New York and in the South. Cotton, figuring on the normal expense of shipment north, is now about $15 a bale cheaper in New York than it is in the place where it grows. Naturally, there is not going to be much cotton shipped north so long as that condition obtains. The prices represent a deadlock between what the Northern consumer will pay and what the Southern grower will take. So much any market follower knows. The only thing he doesn't know, and would give a good deal to find out, is, will the mountain come to Mohammed or Mohammed go to the mountain?

PRIVATE STEEL WORK GIVES WAY TO WAR

Industry at Top Speed to Get Out Material for Government and Allies.

ACTIVITY IN PLATE MILLS

Present Output Indicates Plants Will Be Caught Up on Shipyard Deliveries Soon.

The steel industry is rapidly being geared up to a new burst of speed in getting out material for the Government and the allied nations in Europe. From trade centres this week has come news that many producers have set aside, temporarily, at least, the contracts of private consumers, while the mills are concentrated on war and shipbuilding products.

The Steel Corporation is co-operating with the Government for the rapid construction of a great new gun works. Chairman E. H. Gary has declined to comment on this project, but from what may be learned in the trade, news may be expected from Government circles in a short time that the plant is under way. It is expected that the works will surpass anything now in operation in this country, and, if retained by the corporation after the war, will make the leading unit in the steel industry an important factor in the world's ordnance business. The corporation has never made guns, so the venture will be entirely new, as was the construction of shipyards at Government behest last August.

The steel industry generally made good strides forward in the last week, especially in ship-plate making.

"Plate mills, put to a test of their ability to supply the shipyards," says The Iron Age, "have shown remarkable outputs, more than 110,000 tons of plates having been turned out in one April week. At this rate the mills will be caught up on shipyard deliveries early in May. The coming of Charles M. Schwab into the Government service as Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation will mean a further speeding of effort that is full of promise.

"This week most plate mills are running 100 per cent. on Government and ally work, save such part of their product as in ordinary practice cannot meet ship requirements. Great Britain is getting 5,000 tons of plates a week to apply on the 300,000 tons her yards are to have in return for British advances of munitions and other steel to the American army in France.

"Definite moves will be made this week on the project for the greatest American gun plant, which the Government and the Steel Corporation will carry out in co-operation, the latter building the steel works. The Pittsburgh district is a suggested location and a great projectile plant is to be included. The largest machine shop in the country will be provided.

"Important steel companies in the Central West have notified their customers that they must concentrate on Government work for the time being, a thirty-day period being named in some cases. There is a closer sifting all along the line, among both producers and consumers of steel, of Government work from commercial work, and the amount of the latter is steadily decreasing.

"Car awards are still delayed to the jeopardizing of deliveries of fuel and all war material later in the year. The proposal is now to build many more cars of wood than has been planned. In view of the new designs few cars can now be had before August."

The Iron Trade Review says:

"New policies put in effect this week by leading producers in the Pittsburgh district and elsewhere represent actual setting aside of all private obligations, temporarily at least. The largest of these interests now has closed its rolling schedules to everything but Class A tonnage. Even indirect war needs are being disregarded. Another large independent company formally has denied itself to open market inquiries and has notified the trade that promises of delivery hereafter are not to be expected. In this turn of affairs is to be seen the most rigid barrier to non-war consumption that has been raised."

SAYS NATION WILL GET 60% OF STEEL OUTPUT

President Topping of Republic Iron Predicts Busy Year for Corporation.

John A. Topping, Chairman of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, informed stockholders at the annual meeting in Jersey City yesterday that the great demand for steel, chiefly from Government sources, indicated that the corporation's plants would be fully occupied this year, at prices substantially below those of 1917. While Mr. Topping, in a statement to the stockholders, said he could not foretell what percentage of the company's output in 1918 would be for military purposes, he expected that between 50 and 60 per cent. of the country's steel making capacity would be engaged steadily on Government orders.

"Since last year a great change has come over the country," said Mr. Topping, "and one which brings the company under different obligations than previously maintained. In 1916 approximately 7 per cent. of the company's output was in war materials. The pressure of war increased this slightly in 1917, but we were not large contributors in that year to war materials and munitions, only about 10 per cent. of our output being of that character. A large amount of our production in 1918 will be for military purposes. We may be compelled to make larger expenditures than heretofore in order to support the country. Whatever that calls for the Board of Directors and the company will make."

Mr. Topping said the company had substantial property expenditures in contemplation and unexpended appropriations for the purpose amounting to about $8,000,000. The total expenditures up to 1918, he stated, were a little more than $34,000,000, indicating that the Republic Company had been practically made over in recent years. The 15 per cent. wage increase recently put into effect, Mr. Topping said, would increase costs this year about $2.50 per ton and add about $2,500,000 to the payroll outlay. These charges would naturally come out of profits, he added, as the selling price has been fixed. The retiring Directors were re-elected by the stockholders.

The company's quarterly statement, issued yesterday, showed a surplus in the three months ended March 31 of $3,021,768, after all charges, including the Federal war taxes, a decrease of $1,315,157 from the total in the same period last year. This was equal to $9 per share of common stock, after allowing for the preferred stock dividend, compared with $14.40 in the first quarter of 1917.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

F. W. Ellsworth, Secretary of the Guaranty Trust Company, has been elected Vice President and Director of the Hibernia Bank and Trust Company of New Orleans, to take effect May 1.

An analysis of important oil companies, including the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the Ohio Oil Company and several pipe line concerns, has been prepared by Douglas Fenwick & Co.

The New York Cotton Exchange membership standing in the name of the late James Stillman was sold yesterday to J. A. Hartcorn for $12,750. The quotation represented an advance of $250 from the last preceding sale.

NON-WAR INDUSTRY FURTHER REDUCED

Clay Products Restricted 15 to 50 Per Cent.—Other Lines to Follow.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Further restriction of the country's less essential industries, which will drastically limit non-war building operations for the duration of the war, was announced today by the Fuel Administration in the issuance of orders curtailing the manufacture of ten principal clay products from 15 to as high as 50 per cent. Simultaneously the manufacturing program of this industry was ordered rearranged, placing it on the basis of war industry.

Face brick, common and paving brick, terra cotta, roofing tile, floor and wall tile and sanitary ware were ordered curtailed 50 per cent. Hollow tile, sewer pipe and drain tile, 25 per cent., and stoneware, with the exception of chemical stoneware, 15 per cent. Another new order curtails the output of enamel ware 50 per cent. The curtailment in each case is based on the average output for the last three years.

Today's action by the Fuel Administration, which was approved by the War Industries Board, is declared to be the forerunner of similar curtailment of practically every industry considered not vital to the war program. Two important things will be accomplished, in the belief of the Fuel Administration and the War Industries Board. Parts of the plants affected will be converted for war industries, and men, materials and transportation will be made available for war production.

That the production of all building materials eventually may be substantially curtailed was disclosed by the statement accompanying today's orders. Clay products and other building material, the statement said, are a greater tax on transportation and fuel than any other industry, and, while these industries are considered of great importance to the life of the country and essential to the war, reorganization was considered necessary.

Explaining the action taken, the statement said:

"The experience of the last year has brought two facts clearly to the front. First, that as far as possible the new war work must be put into old factories to take the place of less essential production; second, that, in addition to this transference, it will be necessary for many industries to make deliberate sacrifices of a part of their ordinary business in order that there may be transportation, men and materials enough for war production.

"In general, the minimum basis of running for the year has been established in each class of clay products. This minimum has taken account of the more necessary requirements outside of strictly war activities, as well as the necessities of the Government. Beyond this, it is arranged that whenever the Government departments certify requirements in any of the divisions exceeding the productive capacity of a given district on the minimum basis, such facts will be certified to the Fuel Administrator and permits for additional running will be issued.

"The aim has been to conserve the larger interests of the trade involved. Equal treatment for all plants is provided wherever possible. Allowance, however, is made in the plan for recognizinz individual instances where an abundance of fuel and absence of congestion make it desirable that a larger proportion than usual of the product be produced in a given district. The granting of such additional output has been hedged about with safeguards so that general conditions in the different trades will not be seriously affected."

ROCK ISLAND EARNINGS.

Operating Revenue, $89,608,722, and Net Income $19,193,047.

The first annual report of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company since it reorganization, for the calendar year 1917, was issued yesterday. Although earnings were less than in 1916, the report shows a balance available for dividends on the common stock, after payment of the dividends on the two classes of preferred stock, equivalent to 7.7 per cent, the total amounting to $5,747,371.

The total operating revenues amounted to $89,608,722, an increase of $8,719,502 over 1916, and the greatest in the company's history. Owing to heavy increases in expenses, however, the net operating income fell off $2,799,294, to a total of $19,193,047. The balance available for dividends amounted to $7,527,145, and out of this preferred dividends were paid totalling $1,779,773.

The receivership of the Rock Island terminated July 27, 1917, the receiver, Jacob M. Dickinson, being complimented highly in the report for his able administration which enabled the property to be returned to the original company without a sale. Regarding the expectation that the road will be treated, in its contract with the Government, with especial consideration because it was in the receiver's hands during a large part of the three-year period, the report merely alludes to the circumstances. During 1917 the receiver and the management expended $3,909,953 for additions and betterments.

DUTCH WILL ACCEPT GRAIN.

Await German Promise to Let Ships Come to America.

AMSTERDAM, April 17.—The Dutch Government, Dr. Loudon, the Foreign Minister, announced in the Second Chamber yesterday, is prepared to accept the American Government's proposal to send three shiploads of grain to Holland on condition that Holland sends three ships of about the same tonnage to America. According to the Telegraaf, the Minister added:

"Holland must, however, have the certainty that the three ships will reach America. The Government has reason to assume that Germany will place no impediments in their way. It has, however, asked Germany as to her intentions, but has not yet received a reply."

Dr. Loudon announced he had been informed by the Anglo-American Governments that Dutch ships entering British or American ports after April 20 would not be seized. He said he regarded the word of the Anglo-American Powers as a sufficient guarantee.

EXCHANGE FIRM SUSPENDS.

Obligations of Atwater, Foote & Sherrill Said to be Small.

The suspension of the Stock Exchange firm of Atwater, Foote & Sherrill, whose main office is in Poughkeepsie, was announced from the rostrum of the Board Room yesterday. The firm failed to open its doors on Tuesday morning, but notification did not reach the Stock Exchange until yesterday morning. Reasons for the failure could not be learned here.

The house was organized in 1912. The members are Elliot Atwater, Stock Exchange member; Gilbert F. Foote, who holds a membership on the Cotton Exchange; Morton Atwater, and Harold W. Sherrill. The outstanding obligations were said to be small.

M'ADOO TAKES OVER ERIE BARGE CANAL

Big Cargo Fleet to be Built and Operated Under G. A. Tomlinson of Duluth.

TO CARRY GRAIN AND COAL

System Capable of Moving 10,000,000 Tons of Freight a Season —To be Used at Once.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Director General McAdoo tonight ordered that the Erie and New York State Barge Canal System be taken over by the Railroad Administration, and that a fleet of barges be constructed immediately, and operated there under the direction of G. A. Tomlinson of Duluth, Minn., to relieve freight traffic.

This is the first inland waterway whose operation under the Railroad Administration has been definitely decided upon, as a result of the extensive investigation made by the Committee on Inland Waterways of the Railroad Administration. Within a few weeks, however, the Director General is expected to order several other canal systems and navigable rivers, including the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, the Black Warrior River in Alabama and several Atlantic coast waterways used actively by the Railroad Administration to relieve traffic on the rail lines. Construction of barges within two or three months, and their intensive use in the late Summer and Fall are planned. Investigation now is being made of the practicability of concrete barges, which, it is said, can be built quickly and cheaply.

The Director General announced that "he had decided to construct as quickly as possible and put into operation a line of barges to be operated by the Government on the Erie Canal."

"The barges," the announcement continued, "will be of modern construction of the most improved type and will be operated in conjunction with and as a part of the general railroad and waterways transportation system of the country under the control of the Director General of Railroads. This will insure the complete co-ordination of the Erie Canal facilities with the railroad facilities, and, it is hoped, will greatly enlarge the available transportation facilities throughout Eastern territory.

"G. A. Tomlinson of Duluth, Minn., a man of large practical experience in lake navigation, has been appointed General Manager of the Erie Canal operations, including the construction of the barges and general equipment. Under Government control of the railroads and the canal there can be diverted to the canal all of the traffic that can be handled to the best advantage by water, and the canal be made in the highest degree serviceable in the present situation."

Several hundred steel barges of about 700 tons each will be ordered immediately from construction companies on the Great Lakes, and the first of these probably can be completed in five or six weeks. Each will cost about $60,000. Most of the old equipment will not be used to any great extent.

The canal system, running from Buffalo to Waterford, near Troy, on the Hudson River, is capable of carrying about 10,000,000 tons of freight a season, and probably half of that amount will be hauled this year. Grain from Buffalo and coal from Ithaca and Watkins, N. Y., will be the principal commodities transported. Grain will move through the canal and down the Hudson River to New York, where it will be taken largely by the Food Administration's Grain Corporation for storage and transshipment to Europe. Coal will be carried from Troy and other upper Hudson terminals by rail to New England.

Gov. Whitman Approves Action.

ALBANY, April 17.—Government operation under the direction of the Railroad Administration of New York State's barge canal system, which was announced tonight by Director General of Railroads McAdoo, will not interfere with the construction work on the system now under way, or contemplated, it was stated by representatives of the State Department of Public Works.

"The action of the Director General meets with our heartiest approval," Governor Whitman stated tonight. "It was really done at our request, and we will give the plan our entire co-operation."

The Governor made it clear that the Federal Government would simply have charge of the operation of the canal traffic, and that the canal property itself would remain in charge of General W. W. Wotherspoon, Superintendent of Public Works.

Very little construction work remains to be done, and it is expected that within a few weeks the entire system will be open to navigation.

DISCUSS CITY LEGISLATION.

Twelve Bills Considered at Mayor's Public Hearing.

Mayor Hylan held a public hearing yesterday on twelve legislative bills affecting the city which were sent to him for approval or veto. The Mayor has fifteen days in which to return the bills to the Governor, and he did not indicate what action he would take on any of them. In the course of the day the Mayor received a letter from Governor Whitman calling his attention to the fact that several bills passed by the Legislature regarding county matters which did not require Mayoralty action had been sent to him for his opinion and also the opinions of the other members of the Board of Estimate.

The letter did not specify what these bills are and the Mayor sent the Governor a reply asking him for more specific information. The Mayor also sent the Governor a telegram protesting against his signing the so-called Walters bill, which provides that the County Judge and Surrogate of the Bronx, together with the County Clerk and the recently appointed Commissioner of Records of that borough, may appoint clerks in the latter office and fix their salaries without the consent of the Board of Estimate.

Altogether the Mayor has eighty-seven bills before him, and he will hold further public hearings next week. One of the most important bills on which a hearing was held yesterday was one providing for a teachers' retirement fund for Hunter College. Thomas W. Churchill, former President of the Board of Education, spoke in favor of the bill, while Irs. J. Ettinger of the Real Estate Owners' Protective Association attacked the measure. He said he favored granting pensions to teachers, but pointed out that the bill under consideration would favor only a certain few, while legislation was really needed to provide pensions for teachers throughout the city.

A bill providing for the changing of the age limit to 35 years of applicants for places as patrolmen in the Police Department was objected to by taxpayers on the ground that the city would, in a few years, be overburdened with pensions from men who had gone into the department at the advanced age. Under the present law no man more than 29 years old is eligible to become a patrolman, but because of the draft it has been found impossible to obtain men below that age for the department. These conditions also prevail in the Fire Department. Mrs. Henry Faddon of the Women's Municipal League advocated meeting the situation by appointing policewomen.

Gray Goods Sales Again Small.

Gray goods sales were again limited here yesterday, and among the reasons given for it were the hop, skip, and jump condition of the cotton market and the German offensive on the other side. Most of the little business done was put through by second hands at prices ranging from a quarter off on spots and nearbys to a half off on contracts. For instance, spot lots of 38½-inch 60-48s sold from second hands at 16½ cents, while contract business on 39-inch 68-72s was done from the same sources at 19½. Prices continued firm on printcloths so far as the mills were concerned, and the sheeting end of the market was steady on the bases of 22¼ cents for 37-inch, 48-square four-yards and 22¾ cents for 36-inch, 56-60 goods of the same weight. These were nominal first hand closing prices on printcloths:

39-inch, 80-80s....25c	38½-inch, 64-60s..19c
39-inch, 72-76s....23c	38½-inch, 64-56s..18¼c
39-inch, 68-72s....20c	38½-inch, 60-52s..17c
39-inch, 56-44s....15½c	38½-inch, 60-48s..16¾c
38½-inch, 64-64s..19½c	27-inch, 64-60s...*13½c

Government Still After Drugs.

Drug and Chemical Markets will say today that further purchases of these commodities in the last week have absorbed supplies in the hands of the manufacturers and restricted civilian trade. There has been a sharp advance in the price of camphor and thymol crystals. Botanical drugs are firm and tending higher. Miscellaneous drugs are strong. Essential oils have advanced. Nitrate of silver has eased off 1¾ cents an ounce. Wax of all descriptions closed strong.

Felt Hats for Fall Called For.

Though as yet the Spring season in felt hats can hardly be said to be over, inquiries for Fall lines are reported to be coming in thick and fast. Several of the local manufacturers state that they have already booked a very substantial number of orders for Fall and Winter merchandise. While some of this early buying is prompted by a desire to guard against any possible freight congestion which may develop later on, it is said to be chiefly due to the price situation. Furs of which felt is made are mounting to unheard-of prices, and quotations on the finished hats are going higher correspondingly. With no indication of anything but a continued advance, retailers and jobbers everywhere are anxious to anticipate the increases which are thought certain to come later in the season.

Fabric Gloves Popular.

Fabric gloves for women are said to be having a very heavy run of popularity in the Spring trade. Silk is very much in favor in the better grades. It is reported that in those lines made to retail from $1 to $2.50 it has been almost impossible to supply the demand. Cotton gloves from about 50 cents to $1 a pair are also actively sought in many parts of the country. Various tan shades and pearl gray are given as the leading colors. Black and white, however, are as usual the most generally preferred, with white in the lead.

Catalogue Houses Buying.

Interest in Fall merchandise in the women's ready-to-wear trade is developing remarkably for so early in the year, according to reports from the local market. It is said that a number of large catalogue houses are among the most eager "early birds" seeking Fall and Winter supplies. It was pointed out that once these houses get their catalogues out they cannot very well change their prices, and that, aside from any desire to get their Fall goods on order, they are anxious to anticipate any further advances which may, and it is thought probably will, occur later on.

Men's Spring Suits Selling.

Spring business in suits for men is said to have been very good thus far. Local manufacturers report that many jobbers as well as retail merchants have been in the market during the last few weeks looking for additional supplies in some of the more popular lines. Though part of this late buying is said to be due to over-cautious ordering last Winter, when some merchants felt that business this Spring would not be active, a great deal of it is thought to be the result of a really good season. There is still some call for fancy cut garments and extreme styles, but this is said to be much smaller than ordinarily. Subdued and rather indeterminate cloth designs and conservative styles seem to be the order of the day.

Boston Wool Sales Postponed.

The auction sales of Colonial wool that were to be held yesterday and today in Boston have been postponed. An announcement giving the reasons for the postponement was made yesterday by the Textile Alliance, Inc., of this city, in which it was said that it was due to the unusual condition existing in the American wool market at the present time and to a desire not to embarrass the Government in any way in its present wool-buying plans.

Asbestos Products May Advance.

As a result of the import restrictions placed on asbestos fibre, among many other commodities, that became effective on Monday last, still higher prices on asbestos products are looked for here. One of the things in which this fibre is used to a considerale extent is boiler covering, and the latter has already gone up $6 or so a ton since the first of the year. Another article that is said to be very scarce nowadays, and which is expected to go still higher, is waterglass. This is largely used for coating eggs to preserve them.

Crepes to be Big for Fall.

So well does he think of Georgette crêpe and crêpe de chine for the Summer and Fall seasons that the head of one of the best-known waist manufacturing firms in this city has, within the last four days, placed orders for them that aggregate about $1,000,000. The deliveries begin in May and are spread over several of the following months.

Non-Delivery Prices No Help.

One of the best-known retail dry goods men in this city is authority for the statement that to sell goods in the big shops and stores on a nondelivery basis, and then charge for deliveries, would in the long run prove not only a failure as a wartime economy, but would increase their overhead to such an extent that profits would have to shrink or selling prices rise. "It would be a troublesome and unwise thing to do," he said yesterday. "In the first place, it is unfair to expect any woman to carry bulky merchandise in this city with traffic conditions as they are, and still more unfair to penalize her, if she did not, by charging for delivery. It would drive trade to the neighborhood stores, the owners of which will do almost anything in order to cut into the business of the big stores. If this should happen, operating expenses in the big establishments would unavoidably rise to such an extent that higher selling prices would be imperative."

NO TRADING IN WOOL.

Dealers Send Their Inventories to the Government.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 17.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"No sales of wool were made during the last week because of the cessation of trading since the offer of the wool trade to place all unsold stocks at the disposal of the Government. An inventory of the wool on hand in Boston was sent to Washington this week, but no word has been received from the Government at the present writing. The only activity in the wool market is the sale of noils.

"The cotton situation is regarded by some as very much mixed. It is felt that there will be considerable planting of foodstuffs and that there is a possibility that cotton may suffer. The prediction is made that, if there is less than a 12,000,000 bale crop, cotton will sell at 50 cents a pound.

"There is not much activity in the woolen goods market in civilian business, and this situation bids fair to continue until Government needs are more fully supplied.

"The cotton goods market still continues its upward trend, and is likely to do so for some time. Available supplies for civilian distribution are declining. Altogether the market appears strong."

DIVIDEND FOR NEW HAVEN.

Stockholders Told It May Run from 1 to 3 1-2 Per Cent.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 17.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company here today, Eli Whitney of New Haven retired from the directorate. All the other Directors were re-elected. Walter B. Lashar of Bridgeport filled Mr. Whitney's vacancy.

Vice President Buckland explained the Government's operation of the property by agreement. He said that the basis of reimbursement established the net operating revenues at $21,500,000. Out of this the company must pay $18,000,000 for rentals of leased lines and interest on indebtedness, leaving about $3,000,000 available for dividends, to which will be added the benefit of 1 per cent. saved in interest in the refinancing of $43,000,000 by the Government. The law, however, gives the President power to compel the putting back into the road for betterment of all kinds a portion of the whole of the net revenues available for dividends.

Stockholders asked what the dividend would amount to, and Mr. Buckland thought it might be 1 per cent. The matter of the dividend rested with the President, and would be determined by the amount of net surplus made available. While the amount available might appear to be as high as 3½ per cent., there was no certainty that the dividend would be that.

NEWS PRINT OUTPUT FALLS.

Decrease Attributed to Lack of Fuel and Water Power.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Production of print paper declined in the four weeks ending March 31, statistics made public today by the Federal Trade Commission show. Shipments continued to exceed production, and mill stocks showed a decrease of more than 7,000 tons.

From Jan. 1 to March 31 the total print paper output was 291,746 tons, of which 266,070 tons was standard news. The production for the corresponding period of 1917 was 327,037, and 301,707 tons, respectively.

Loss of production in March was attributed largely to lack of fuel, and to the fact that power at Niagara Falls was diverted for war purposes. One mill in Maine was unable to obtain fuel oil.

There was a considerable increase during March in jobbers' stocks, both of rolls and sheet.

TRADE GERMANY'S LURE.

War Started to Obtain Control, American Investigator Finds.

WASHINGTON, April 17. — Germany started the war to establish domination of the world's markets for her manufactured goods and to gain a stronger control of the sources of raw supplies, says a report by the Department of Commerce made public tonight. The report is the result of a detailed investigation of German political, industrial, and commercial activities before and after the outbreak of the war, conducted by Chauncey D. Snow, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, who was engaged in industrial studies in Germany when hostilities began. The failure of these commercial aims already is apparent, says the report, and German industrial efficiency has deteriorated materially.

"There has been serious bungling in high places, profiteering, gross mismanagement, and intense dissatisfaction among the working classes," it says. "Stocks of materials have been used up, substitutes have failed to satisfy, equipment has deteriorated, and some industries have profited greatly by the war at the expense of efficiency for peace times."

Germany's problem as viewed by her rulers was to overcome "the limitations of German territory and the restrictions of our climatic conditions, in connection with its increasing and more refined requirements."

As phrased in the report, "Germany confidently expected as a result of the war to get huge indemnities, which, like the great indemnity exacted from France in 1871, would pay the bill of war and clear the way for uninterrupted, unparalleled strides, leaps, and bounds in industry and trade. Germany unquestionably counted on crippling the resources and competitive powers of her chief European commercial competitors."

When Germany on the close of hostilities enters the race for commercial supremacy she will be handicapped, says the report, by the fact that she will have as rivals eighteen nations which actually have been at war with her, and nine more which severed diplomatic relations.

"Commercial treaties with the advantages all on the German side will be hard to negotiate," is the opinion expressed in the report. "It will be a rare country where Germany may dominate trade, industry, shipping, and finance without local regulation and opposition."

BUSINESS NOTES.

Secretary Thomas A. Fernley of the National Wholesale Jewelers' Association has issued a call for a convention of that organization to be held in Atlantic City, at the Hotel St. Charles, on May 9 and 10. It is expected that about 300 members of the association from various parts of this country and Canada will attend.

PORT NEWARK WAYS FILLED.

28 Ships Now Under Construction at Government Yard.

The Port Newark shipyards, the nearest to New York of the three great Government yards, swung into full productive capacity yesterday. Henry R. Sutphen, Vice President and General Manager of the Submarine Boat Corporation, which is operating agent for the Emergency Fleet Corporation, announced yesterday that the twenty-eighth keel had been laid in the yard, which means that ships are now under construction up to its full capacity. Twenty-eight ships being built simultaneously in one yard represents the greatest number ever started together in the world, but this record will only hold until the Hog Island yard swings into full capacity, for there are fifty ways there. The Port Newark yard is building 5,500-ton standardized steel freight steamers for the Government.

"Due to the severe Winter weather, delay was experienced in building the shipyard, and in obtaining the steel material," said Mr. Sutphen, "but this has been largely overcome and the progress made to date is most encouraging to all concerned. Eventually 15,000 men will be employed in the plant, and the work on the entire twenty-eight ships will progress at one time. When the plant is operating at its maximum capacity, it is expected a complete ship will be produced every two working days. The progress so far made indicates that with prompt delivery of material the ships will be completed in record time."

TOWN BARS GERMAN PAPERS

Hackensack Home Guard Found Their Presence Irritating.

Despite protests of New York publishers of German newspapers no more German language papers will be sold in Hackensack, N. J. The Home Guard in that city recently barred German papers because they were a source of irritation, particularly when some German resident was observed to be chuckling at something he was reading. The news dealers consented to stop the sales, which totaled about 300 papers a day, and notified the publishers.

Yesterday Henry Drysen, representing the Staats-Zeitung, and John Condon of Das Morgen Journal went to Hackensack to confer with the Home Guard. They protested vigorously, Condon asserting the action was "un-American and a conspiracy in restraint of trade." The Guard authorities resented that and the representatives departed after Mr. Condon had apologized for the un-American part of the remark. The sale of German newspapers in Hackensack will continue to be barred. About 75 per cent. of their former patrons are said to be able to read papers published in English.

SCHWAB TO BEGIN SHIP WORK TODAY

Director General and Piez Will Study Conditions Reported by All the Yards.

LARGER VESSELS FAVORED

More Thorough Supervision Also in View — Builders in Seattle Make a New Record.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Charles M. Schwab, head of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, who was made Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation yesterday, notified Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board this afternoon that he had been able to arrange his business affairs in a day and would be here on the job as a Government employe tomorrow morning.

As the first step in the drive to speed up shipbuilding Mr. Schwab and Charles Piez, Vice President of the Fleet Corporation, will hold an all-day conference to discuss ways and means to get the shipyards under full head of steam. They will have before them the reports which have been received from all shipyards in response to Chairman Hurley's recent telegram asking for detailed information about operations.

Mr. Hurley was elated today over his success in obtaining the services of Mr. Schwab, and was apparently confident of quick results. Every department of the Shipping Board and Emergency Fleet Corporation, the management of the shipyards, and the workers, have been called on for the fullest co-operation in "putting the ship program across."

There was a conference today attended by Mr. Hurley and Mr. Piez, Rear Admiral David W. Taylor, Chief Naval Constructor; P. A. S. Franklin, Chairman of the Inter-Allied Ship Control Committee, all members of the Shipping Board, and other officials in the organization to discuss the needs of the nation and other matters of policy so that full information as to what is expected may be laid before the new Director General of the Fleet Corporation.

Needs in Concrete Form.

It will be the general policy, it is understood, to present to the Fleet Corporation in concrete form the needs of the army and navy and Shipping Board and give Mr. Schwab full power to determine the methods which should be employed to build these vessels. His powers will be absolute where construction is concerned.

Today's conference, it was understood, was of the opinion that a general plan to increase the size of the ships contracted for, but not already on the ways, was desirable because of the added capacity of the vessels and the saving in equipment. It is believed that this can be done without serious delay. These problems will be discussed tomorrow by Mr. Hurley, Mr. Schwab and Mr. Piez.

It is possible that Mr. Schwab will bring with him to the Fleet Corporation some of the men who were associated with him as head of Bethlehem Steel, but no definite information in that connection was obtainable today. It is understood that he expressed great satisfaction in the organization which Mr. Piez built up in the Fleet Corporation after he became General Manager as well as Vice President.

One of the things contemplated, it has been said, is a more thorough Government supervision in all of the shipyards, so that men in whom Mr. Schwab has the fullest confidence will be "on the job" at all shipyards at all times and thus prevent delay when questions requiring quick judgment come up for decision.

Announcement was madet oday that contracts had been let for the building of another Government owned fabricating steel shipyard at Wilmington, N. C. Six ways will be laid at this time, and the first contracts call for eighteen cargo ships of the Isherwood type, each of 9,600 tons. The work will be done by the Carolina Shipbuilding Company, which is controlled by the George A. Fuller Contracting Company interests.

Plans for the Isherwood type of ship were controlled by the United States Steel Corporation, and the Shipping Board recently sought to buy them. The plans were turned over to the Government immediately, "with the compliments of the Steel Corporation."

Keen Competition at Yards.

Reports of the keenest competition between various shipyards to establish the world's record for the luanching and delivery of ships have added to the confidence of the Shipping Board that the program will be rapidly increased.

The Skinner & Eddy Shipbuilding Company of Seattle, which launched the 8,800 freighter Seattle in sixty-four days, has delivered another 8,800 ton freighter, the Ossineke, in 109 days from the date of keel laying. From the time the keel of the Seattle was laid until she was delivered there was a period of 137 days. Thus the company has beaten this record by twenty-eight days. Moreover the Ossineke was delivered eighty-one days ahead of the scheduled time of delivery.

Before the Ossineke was launched the record for fast construction was temporarily taken away from the Skinner & Eddy Company by the Columbia River Shipbuilding Company of Washington, when, on March 23, the 8,800-ton freighter Canoga was delivered in 113 days. In pre-war times from one year to eighteen months was required for the delivery of a ship of this type and size.

A telegram received by the Shipping Board from the Columbia Shipbuilding Company states that it hopes to deliver another 8,800-ton ship, the West Grove, on April 28. The keel of this vessel was laid on Jan. 15, and if the delivery is made, as promised, a new record of 103 days will have been established.

Eastern shipyards also are beginning to do rapid work. A telegram from Manager H. R. Carso of the Newark Bay Plant, today said:

"We are laying twenty-eighth keel today, which fills all ways of the Newark Bay Shipyard."

In the week ending April 13 two new requisitioned steel ships were accepted by the Shipping Board. They were the transport Siboney, 4,500 tons, and the Westover, 8,800 tons. The former was built by the Cramps, and the other by J. F. Duthie & Co. of Seattle, Wash.

A bill was passed without roll call in the House this afternoon which provides that private traction systems in cities where there are shipyards may be taken over by the Government, where the Shipping Board deems it necessary for them to come under public control in order that a steady flow of labor to the shipyards may be assured.

Discuss Express Combination.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Heads of express companies discussed today with the Railroad Administration a proposal for consolidating the express companies into one corporation, which would be authorized by Director General McAdoo to conduct all the express business in the country. The corporation would have a capital stock of about $40,000,000, divided among the companies in proportion to the physical valuation of their property.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Adjoining Owner Buys Irving Place Hotel—Millions in Fifth Avenue Lease.

An old hotel property on Irving Place passed into new hands yesterday after remaining in the same ownership for many years. The Lynch Estate and the Frost Estate sold 15, 17 and 19 Irving Place, at the northwest corner of Fifteenth Street, a five-story brick structure, covering a plot 62.6 by 80, and assessed at $118,000, to the Kops Realty Company, which owns the adjoining twelve-story loft and office building at the southwest corner of Irving Place and Sixteenth Street. Horace S. Ely & Co. negotiated the transaction. Max Stern, as attorney, represented the buying company, which now owns the entire block front on the west side of Irving Place from Fifteenth to Sixteenth Streets.

One of the largest leasing transactions affecting mid-town properties in some months was closed yesterday as a result of which the United Cigar Stores Company gains control of the Hotel Lorraine, a twelve-story structure at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street. This property has been leased from the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, as trustee of the estate of Matthew Byrne, for a term of twenty-one years, with a renewal privilege at $115,000 a year, indicating an aggregate rental for the first term of $2,415,000.

The Fifth Avenue frontage now contains a row of stores, one of which will probably be taken over by the leasing company for its own occupancy, although this has not been officially announced. J. C. Bolger, Vice President of the Company, said yesterday that no extensive alteration of the building was contemplated for an indeterminate time, dependent upon the duration of the war, although he intimated that eventually the hotel occupancy would be given up and the structure remodeled for business purposes. Possession will be taken on October 1.

Mr. Bolger commented upon the keen competition for the property which developed since it was placed on the market, declaring that rarely within his experience had he encountered as many and as persistent rivals for its acquisition. He considered it one of the most important properties that had ever come into the control of the United Cigar Stores Company.

Harlem Stable Resold.

Christopher Chapman has resold the three-story stable at 170 to 174 East 123d Street, on a plot 68 by 113 by irregular, to Deutsch Brothers. George W. Brettell was the broker. The seller bought the property last month from J. Manheimer.

Carpet Cleaning Company Buys East Harlem Factory.

The estate of Lambert S. Quackenbush sold to K. Chibouk, President of the National Carpet Cleaning Company, the three-story factory building, 421 to 425 East 101st Street. The structure occupies a plot 75 by 100.11, located 300 feet east of First Avenue. There is a $15,000 mortgage at 6 per cent. for five years, which was allowed to remain on the property.

Dwelling Deals.

Stanley M. Isaacs has sold the five-story remodeled residence at 110 East Seventy-third Street, on a lot 18 by 102.2. The new owner will occupy the house upon the expiration of the present lease in October. Douglas L. Elliman & Co. were the brokers.

Danforth Cardoza, Treasurer of the Scandinavian Trust Company, has purchased from Addie B. Curtis the four-story dwelling at 136 West Seventy-first Street, on a lot 20 by 100.5, between Columbus Avenue and Broadway. The buyer will occupy after extensive alterations are made. Pease & Elliman negotiated the sale.

$200,000 Simpson Street Purchase.

The Nason Realty Company resold the four five-story apartment houses at 956 to 968 Simpson Street, each on a plot 40 by 100, to the Dumbia Realty Company. Max I. Lefkowitz was the broker. The seller acquired the properties last month from Anna R. Spratley.

Bronx Sale.

The Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company sold 3,053 Heath Avenue, a two-story dwelling on a lot 25 by 92.2, to Mrs. Wilhelmina Wilkins, a tenant. The house was taken over by the seller last November at foreclosure.

Queens Borough Sales.

W. B. Greenman sold to J. Naughton the dwelling and plot, 30 by 101 feet, on the northeast corner of Beauford Street and Ward Street, Jamaica.

G. W. Hudwalker, the Mechanics Bank, and C. Viebrock sold to A. Mayer, a plot 100 by 267 feet, on the north corner of Cypress Avenue and Stevens Street, and a plot 100 by 267 feet, on the east corner of the two streets, at Ridgewood.

J. Munson sold to A. P. Price, a plot 74 by 100 feet, on the northeast corner of Centre Avenue and Rockaway Plank Road, Jamaica.

The O. P. Holding Corporation sold to C. F. Simonson, a plot 75 by 100 feet, on the southeast corner of Lefferts Avenue and Hillside Avenue, Jamaica.

$30,000 Purchase at Plandome, L. I.

Mrs. Ella J. Doig, of Bayville, L. I., has purchased the estate of Leona P. Harrison at Plandome, held at $30,000. Baker Crowell negotiated the sale.

New Jersey.

S. S. Walstrum-Gordon & Forman sold for Walter Roberts the residence 97 Godwin Avenue, Ridgewood, N. J., to Dr. Robert Blackburn.

Long Term Fourth Avenue Lease.

Paul A. McGolrick, as President of the 429 Fourth Avenue Corporation, has leased to Harry Rubinstein the seven-story bachelor apartment house at 429 Fourth Avenue, with the exception of the ground floor. Mr. McGolrick took a long lease recently on this property from the late Harry C. Hallenbeck, and made extensive alterations. The present lease is for a long term of years involving an agregate rental of about $140,000, and was negotiated by William H. McDonald.

New Seventh Avenue Restaurant.

The Hanover Lunch Company, Abraham Krimm, President, has leased from the C. & H. Corporation the three four-story buildings at 430 to 434 Seventh Avenue, on a plot 50 by 100, just south of Thirty-fourth Street. The lease is for a twenty-one-year term, at an aggregate rental of about $250,000.

Extensive alterations to cost about $50,000 are planned. The same company now conducts a branch at 422 Seventh Avenue, which will continue to be operated. The brokers in the lease were the H. M. Weill Company and A. H. Levy.

Commercial Leases.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased the entire eighteenth floor in the Masonic Building, Twenty-third Street and Sixth Avenue, to the Erie Railroad for its land and tax department now at 50 Church Street.

William A. White & Sons have leased the store and basement in 310 Bleecker Street to Matto Vito.

Joseph J. Herold has closed a ten-year lease for the five-story basement and sub-basement building at 127 Reade Street, through the Cruikshank Company.

Loan Drive Progressing.

Subscriptions obtained by the Real Estate Board's Liberty Loan Committee have reached $712,200, in the aggregate, recording an increase of $107,850. Large individual subscriptions yesterday included the R. W. Dimock estate for $30,000; the Acquilan Corporation, $25,000; the Cruikshank Company, $10,000; John W. T. Nichols, $5,000; Central Real Estate Association, $5,000; William H. Wheelock for a client, $4,000, and the De Forest Estate Corporation, $2,500.

Liberty Bonds as an Asset.

Archibald W. McEwan, Secretary of the Metropolitan League of Building and Loan Associations, in a letter to the various Boards of Directors of loan associations, says: "Why not carry some Third Liberty bonds as an asset? Many associations bought bonds outright—$40,000 in one instance—of the second issue. A large New York State association will buy $50,000 of the Third Liberty bonds and carry them indefinitely. If every association in New York and New Jersey averages even $1,000 Third Liberty bonds as an asset, about $1,000,000 will be purchased by this source alone. Please consider "liquid" assets for emergencies, and also give this suggestion immediate attention; your members will applaud favorable action."

Recent Buyers.

Elias H. Lang is the buyer of the dwelling 258 West 135th Street.

The Rosae Crucis order, now located at 306 West Forty-eighth Street, is the buyer of the former Langtry residence at 361 West Twenty-third Street.

Realty Notes.

The Church of St. John the Evangelist, at West Eleventh Street and Waverly Place, has acquired the abutting property at 19 Perry Street, to be used for settlement work. It is a three-story house located just west of Waverly Place, and was secured from Henry Presser, subject to a mortgage of $8,000.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The development in the weather during the last twenty-four hours has been unusual and in marked contrast to the last few days. A depression developed overnight in Texas and moved to the lake region, attended by thunder showers in the East Gulf States, Tennessee, and the Ohio Valley. A second depression has apparently lodged in North Dakota and has caused a marked lowering in the temperature in the Upper Missouri Valley, with snow in Southeastern Montana, Western South Dakota, and Northeastern Wyoming.

Snow has also fallen in the Lake Superior region with freezing temperatures, while Summer temperatures prevail in Atlantic Coast districts and the Gulf States.

Showery weather will continue in practically all parts of the Washington forecast district during the next twenty-four to forty-eight hours and there will be a marked fall in temperature in Atlantic Coast districts, the lake region, the Ohio Valley, and Tennessee.

Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from Delaware Breakwater to Boston.

Winds for Thursday and Friday along the North Atlantic Coast will be fresh south, rain; Middle Atlantic Coast, fresh southwest, thunder showers; South Atlantic Coast, moderate south, fair.

"LIBERTY LAND"
69th Regiment Armory
Lexington Ave., 25th and 26th Streets

See the battery of the famous French 75s, war worn in the service of Liberty; see the wrecked sea-plane, the fragment of a destroyed Zeppelin, the captured German torpedo like that which sank the Lusitania, the actual wire entanglements brought from the Western front, the trench mortars, gas-masks, rifles, field kits, helmets, steel breast plates, picked up in No Man's Land.

The articles, direct from the battlefields of Europe, constitute the most vivid picture ever shown in New York of the wreckage and wastage of the Great War, and are supplemented by a wonderful series of enlarged photographs of war scenes.
